SWEET PEAS FOR SEED.

Will you kindly tell me what method sweet pea seed growers use to prevent their different varieties from mixing when flowering, so that they are sure of the varieties sown coming true when the seed is harvested? As I intend to grow sweet peas for seed, I would be grateful for any information you can give. My land runs 500 feet west and 175 feet north, long and narrow. D. F.

The sweet pea is what is termed a self-fertilizing plant and the varieties do not usually hybridize when planted close together. Five yards apart is, as a rule, the distance that the large growers give when growing the separate sorts and they find little trouble in keeping them fairly true to type. Roguing while in bloom and care in the keeping of the kinds from mixture after harvest, or when milling, seem to be the most important things. J. M. C.

grown on their own roots, 4 cents each. Stocks, cuttings and seedlings of all fruit and ornamental trees, deciduous and evergreen, shrubs and vines commonly known as nursery or greenhouse stock, not specially provided for in the section of this Act, twenty-five per cent ad valorem."

"This latter rate is necessary. We formerly paid for unskilled labor from $1 to $1.50 per day. We are now paying from $1.75 to $2 per day for the same labor. In France and Holland, where most of the stock comes from, there has been no material increase in labor in the last ten years.

"The average price for nursery labor in France is 40 to 50 cents per day for eleven hours, and from 30 to 50 cents per day for women; and in Holland from 30 to 60 cents per day for twelve hours, as against $1.75 to $2 per day for nine or ten hours' work in the nurseries of the United States. When it is realized that ninety per cent of the cost of a rose plant is labor, it is readily seen that we must have some measure of protection.

"The soil, climate and moisture conditions of Holland, with her cheap labor, are particularly adapted to the turning out of rose plants quickly. The Hollander grows from 50,000 to 60,000 plants per acre. Here we grow from 18,000 to 20,000 per acre. He produces large bushes, but the growth is forced, the wood is soft and pithy, and the plants do not succeed, seldom surviving over a year. The public does not know this and buys the plants because they are cheap.

"Nursery stock is in its nature perishable; it must be sold when it arrives at the marketable age and size. If it is not then sold it is dug and burned; it can not be laid on the shelf and be carried over to another season like merchandise. This condition led to the dumping of large consignments of stock from Europe to be sold by auction on commission, and all that was received above freight and expenses was clear gain. This was largely done previous to the duty of twenty-five per cent which the goods now carry.

"We ask that the present rate of twenty-five per cent ad valorem on the trees, shrubs and evergreens known as 'nursery stock' be retained.

"The present rates of duty are satisfactory and there is less friction and fewer misunderstandings in administering the law than at any time within the last twenty years."

Mr. Rouse also asked that evergreen seedlings be defined as of an age of 3 years or less. He stated that the appraisers considered trees of 20 or more years as seedlings, which was not intended by Congress. He advocated continuing these young seedlings on the free list, but not those over 3 years of age.

Rep. Harrison, of New York, said it would be a mistake to limit the free imports of seedlings to those of less than 3 years, as it would retard reforestation. The witness said large trees were not used for reforesting purposes.

After the hearing the nurserymen conferred with the members of the horticultural board at the Department of Agriculture in regard to regulations covering importations of nursery stock. No details were decided on, but the that there's one place where you can buy really good Azaleas, Palms, Araucarias, etc., without the least bit of doubt as to the delivery? Many florists have wanted just such a connection for many years—a firm who would fill your order exactly right—just as you want it filled. You expect to pay for such service, but perhaps you have never known just where to get such service performed. Well, you can get it from "Petrick's"—C. Petrick, of Ghent, Azalea Specialists, known all over the world. Of course in order to get this superior service your order must be given a reasonable time before the season opens. You can't expect anything extra if you wait too long, nor can you expect an early delivery. In the Petrick Establishment orders are filled in strict rotation, and everyone is treated alike—no favorites. Mr. Petrick solicits through us orders from firms in first-class credit standing only. We can send you a catalogue by return mail if you want one, and if you prefer to buy at f. o. b. New York prices, we can quote you that way, too. If you are a buyer of such stock, write us—it will pay you.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

FELIX & DYKHUIS, Boskoop, Holland, January 1 absorbed the firm of Van Balen & Co. Mr. Dykhuis will now devote all of his time to the firm's trade in America, while A. Van Balen will look after their European interests, Mr. Felix as heretofore devoting his time and energy to the nursery, which has been considerably enlarged.

ORLANDO HARRISON, Berlin, Md., is to lecture at the Maryland Agricultural College January 28 on "The Propagation of Fruit Trees and General Nursery Practice." With Herman Beckenstrater Mr. Harrison will give a demonstration of budding and grafting. A free two-weeks' course in horticulture is to be given, most of the lectures being by members of the college staff or employees of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, but a number of nurserymen will participate. J. W. Kerr, Denton, Md., and W. F. Allen, Salisbury, Md., have places on the program.

WANT DUTIES UNCHANGED.

Representatives of the American Association of Nurserymen appeared before the House committee on ways and means January 20 in the tariff hearings and urged that the present duties on nursery stock be retained in the law to be enacted in the coming extra session.

Irving Rouse, of Rochester, N. Y., chairman of the tariff committee of the association, headed a delegation of nurserymen at the hearing, but he was the only speaker. Those accompanying him were Wm. Pitkin, of Rochester; J. H. Dayton, of Painesville; Thomas B. Meehan, of Deckertown, Pa., and Messrs. Moore and Flemmer, of New Jersey.

In his testimony before the committee Mr. Rouse said the association embraced practically the entire nursery interest of the United States, and the ornamental growers' association. He said:

"Previous to the last tariff act we had a mixed specific and ad valorem duty, and at the request of this association Congress changed the law to a straight specific duty on seedlings as follows: Stocks, cuttings or seedlings of Myrobalan plum, Mahaleb or Mazzard cherry, 3 years old or less, $1 per thousand plants, and on apple, pear and quince stocks, $2 per thousand. This specific duty was what the nursery trade was anxious to secure and what we especially desire to have retained in the pending bill. It is really of much more importance than the rate of duty.

"We ask for a specific duty such as we now have because these goods are an annual crop like corn, or potatoes, and are affected by the weather and climatic conditions, and thus subject to violent fluctuations in price. At least eighty-five per cent of the crop is bought from three to nine months in advance of the actual delivery, as the goods can only be shipped in winter, when the growth is completed and the plants dormant. Now the ten to fifteen per cent of the crop unsold in Europe at the beginning of the shipping season fixes the price, as far as the United States appraisers' valuation for duty is concerned, of the entire crop. If the demand is heavy or the crop poor, the price for this unsold balance is higher than the eighty-five per cent of the stock purchased early, and there is no way whereby the early buyer can tell what the market is at the time of shipment, and he is thus liable to fines and penalties by reason of the fact that he enters his invoices at actual purchase prices, which are or may be lower than the market price fixed by the board of appraisers. If, on the contrary, the price for the unsold balance goes down, the importer does not benefit, as he must pay on invoice prices, even if they are higher than market rates at the time of shipment. This creates an almost intolerable situation. A straight specific duty avoids this trouble entirely.

"On stocks, cuttings or seedlings of Myrobalan plum, Mahaleb and Mazzard cherry, Manetti, multiflora and brier roses, 3 years old or less, we ask that the present rate of $1 per thousand plants be continued.

"The average prices quoted last season by five of the leading French nurseries are: $9 for Myrobalan plum, $5 for Mahaleb and $8 for Mazzard cherry, and $8 for rose stocks, an average of $7.50 per thousand, on which our present rate of $1 per thousand amounts to 13½ per cent ad valorem. The average price on stocks quoted last season, taken from the five leading French nurseries, is: Pear, $8 per thousand; apple, $7.77; quince, $6; so that the average for the entire list is $7.77, and under the present duty schedule of $2 per thousand we are paying twenty-five per cent ad valorem.

"A specific duty also tends to lessen the planting of seedlings of inferior size and quality, which do not produce strong and healthy trees and which when met by a specific duty do not seek a market in the United States. Previous to the passage of the Dingley Act, little of this stock was grown in this country. Today at least eighty per cent of all the apple seedlings planted are grown here, with a less quantity of other items.

"For the above reasons we ask that the present specific duty on these items be retained.

WHITE FLY IN TOMATO HOUSE.

I am bothered with white fly on my tomato plants. I understand that hydrocyanic acid gas will kill them, but that it is dangerous to use. Is there any other remedy—one that is safe and that will absolutely kill the fly?

H. C. B.

There is no way to exterminate white fly except the use of hydrocyanic acid gas. It takes only a light dose to kill the white fly, but it does not take much to injure the tomatoes. You must have the house perfectly dry when you use the gas. Do not water any the day you are going to fumigate. Let the temperature down to about 58 or 60 degrees before putting in the cyanide.

A house twenty-five feet wide and six feet high to the gutters would not need more than three jars per hundred feet of the length of the house. In each jar place a half pint of acid and the same amount of water, one hour before putting in the cyanide. A good tablespoonful of cyanide, heaped up a little but not all that you can get on it, would be sufficient to use in each jar, but this must be wrapped in paper. Drop the packages, paper and all, into the jars and then get out of the house quickly, before the acid eats through the paper. Lock the house and let no one in there until along toward morning. It is safe for the night man to go in at 3 or 4 o'clock and see whether the temperature is all right. If this application does not kill all of the white flies, use the gas again a few days later.

Choose a still night for fumigating. Handle the acid and cyanide with care, but do not be afraid of it. You will soon get accustomed to handling it, but must always be extremely careful. The ninety-eight per cent granular is the best kind for fumigating. The gas can be noticed in the morning and the vents can be opened a little at once, to let some of it out, but there is no danger then, as the fumes are too weak to do anyone any harm the next day.

Eight Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Southwestern Market.

The week ending January 18 was a trying one for our wholesale men, as clean sales were out of question. Stock of all kinds was more than the demand could consume. Roses were the only flowers that sold up well, as some of our local growers are off crop, but expect to be on for Easter. Beauties, the few that are coming in, are of poor quality and so badly bulled that they are hardly salable. Killarneys and Richmonds are of good quality, with the demand good. Carnations were a big glut and the wholesalers had their troubles in order to dispose of them at anything that looked like a fair price. The quality of the stock was extra good. The common sorts could not be given away.

Violets were plentiful and were disposed of at low prices, averaging about 30 cents per hundred for good stock. Sweet peas are many and these, too, had to be reasonable in price in order to sell them. The best quality of stock averaged about 40 cents per hundred for the week. Bulbous stock, more than any of the other flowers, was hard to handle, and especially Paper Whites and valley. The former brought as low as 75 cents per hundred in thousand lots and the latter were down to $2 per hundred. Easter lilies had a fairly good demand and held up in price, as did callas. Romans are not selling well.

Various Notes.

M. Le Vine, representing Lion & Co., New York, called last week.

H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., at Nursery, Mo., has the large office force busy mailing the spring catalogue. Walter Weber, of the greenhouse department, says they had a fine cut of roses and carnations this season. Frank Weber, head of the nursery department, expects a busy season.

Mrs. M. M. Ayres reports that she has had a good business in cut flower work and decorations. The show house has been restocked since the first of the year, with a fine lot of blooming and decorative plants.

F. H. Weber made a special trip to Chicago last week to buy up Mrs. Aaron Ward roses, of which he needed 700 for a big decoration this week. He says that this month has been a specially busy one for him, in party and wedding decorations.

Adolph Brix, of the Brix Floral Co., says his firm has received a large importation of novelties from Germany, some of which have never been seen in this country.

Otto Sander is sending handsome cardendars to his customers.

Henry Ostertag, of Ostertag Bros., says the decorations at the governor's mansion and the capitol for the inauguration last week were the biggest his force has handled this season. They were pronounced the best the guests had ever seen at an occasion of this kind.

meetings of the Florists' Club, Retail Florists' Association and Botanical Club. Should these three combine for this project, with the $500 of Shaw prizes, there should be no reason why a successful show could not be held this fall. More will be known at the next meetings of these organizations.

Fred Foster has installed a large electric sign showing an American Beauty over his doorway. He says business has kept up well since the first of the year.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. reports an excellent run on florists' supplies last week.

Tom Carr, the Union Market florist, is preparing his stands to be ready for the early spring plant season.

C. Young & Sons Co. is making preparations for the spring seed and bulb trade, having a large mail order business. The cut flower department has been busy with all kinds of work.

George Angermueller received a fine lot of orchids last week.

Paul Scheider and the Alexander
Floral Co., at Clayton, have had splendid cuts of roses so far this season.

A. Jablonsky's carnations are of the usual fine quality this season. H. G.
Berning markets them.

Suburban visitors during the week were: E. W. Guy, W. J. Pilcher, J. F.
Amann, F. Vennemann, Al. Schei-degger, W. E. Ogle, W. J. Edwards, P.
Scheider, H. Emunds, H. Gross, W.
Winter, F. W. Ude, Jr., Joe Hauser, E.
Denker, John Cannon, Hugo Werner,
J. Wunderli and P. Schneider.

Mrs. Frank Fillmore, Sr., met with a bad accident a few days ago, caused by the slippery sidewalks. She fell and broke her arm. She is greatly missed, as she is the artist in the cut flower department.

Mrs. C. C. Sanders is at Amarillo, Tex., visiting her son, Walter, who makes his home in that city.

Oliver K. Sanders, who has charge of the cut flower department of the Sanders Nursery, was married Wednesday, January 15. His bride was Miss Ethel Chadsey. The happy pair reside near the store, on Clara avenue.

The election of officers of the Engelmann Botanical Club, at its last meeting, January 13, resulted as follows:

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

There has been a busy time among the florists during the last week, with an unusual number of dinners, teas, receptions and dances. Roses have been slightly below the demand, but lily of the valley, orchids and gardenias have served to bring up the tone of the market. Violets have become quite plentiful and on Saturday, January 18, the drug stores began their annual cut, offering bunches of twenty-five, with leaves, foil and pin, for 19 cents a bunch. The retail florists met the cut by offering similar bunches for 15 cents.

R. I. Horticultural Society.

At the monthly meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, January 15, nearly a score of names were added to the membership rolls. George W. Gardiner, collector of customs for the port of Providence, gave an address on "Foreign Importations Under the Plant Quarantine Act." It was the annual meeting of the society and the reports showed that the net increase in membership for the year was more than 100. In place of the deficit reported a year ago, there was now a substantial surplus in the treasury. Thomas Hope was reelected president and Arthur C. Miller secretary. Among the vice-presidents were Prof. W. W. Bailey, Eugene Appleton, John J. Dunn and Prof. H. J. Wheeler. The exhibition committee includes Eugene Appleton, Joshua Vose

Various Notes.

Edgar E. Morey, who conducts a greenhouse at 552 Public street, will enter the employ of Nathan D. Pierce, at the Home Nurseries, Norwood, February 1.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor in this city last week.

L. D. Bryant, representing A. H. Hews & Co., Cambridge, Mass., on his last trip to this city received one of the largest orders for flower pots ever given to his firm. It was an individual order covering 700,000 pots, which will make nine carloads.

William Hay, of Oakland, reports two yellow sports among his roses this season which promise to be exceptionally fine.

Albert Holscher is clearing land on Hartford avenue preparatory to erecting another large house in connection with his range.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, Mass., is cutting some fine daffodils of various kinds, which find ready sale.

Johnston Bros. had the decorations for the annual dinner of the Pomham Club, Wednesday evening, January 15.

John A. Macrae is bringing in as good acacia as was ever handled in this market. He had indifferent success with it last season, but this year it is doing well.

S. Kinder & Bro., of Bristol, recently had a large decoration at the Rhode Island Country Club, at Nayatt.

Halliday Bros., dealers in seeds and agricultural implements at East Providence, lost a large barn by fire Thursday night, January 16. An automobile, a pony and other contents increased the loss to more than $5,000, partly covered by insurance.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

A week of awful weather has not been much help to trade. However, there has been a fair demand for good stock, of which there has been enough of all kinds to go around. Carnations are becoming more plentiful every day. Tulips are arriving in quantities, but are mostly short-stemmed. Trumpet narcissi are fine. Roses, which were somewhat off on account of the dark weather, are much improved. Killarney, which suffered most, is greatly improved in color. Violets have let down in price and will likely continue so the balance of the season.

Among the retail shops they still have advance orders for social affairs, which will continue until Lent begins, but there is no unusual excitement, as the counter trade suffers on account of the weather.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Sacramento, Cal.—A. Duhem has opened his new store, the Flower Shop, in the Forum building, on Ninth street, near K street. Besides flowers, he will handle seeds and nursery stock.

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.

The attention of the entire country has turned to California to ascertain the exact facts of the late freeze. We have been in the nursery business in California over eight years and never witnessed any such weather before. We can truly state to The Review, however, that the freeze was not so bad as has been represented by the press. Antone Soethout, proprietor, and W. S. Childs, salesman for the Hollywood Nurseries, have just completed an automobile tour of the frosted sections of southern California. They state that in many places, such as the high and protected sections of Riverside, Redlands and Hollywood, as well as some parts of Orange county, the oranges were scarcely touched. Hollywood is the least affected of all places visited. Unless one is a careful observer he would not know that there had been any frost, owing to the splendid rain that fell recently. Although it looks bad to Californians who never saw frost before, it is hardly noticeable to those who lived in the other states, where they have frost more frequently.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

During the last week it has been impossible to obtain stock enough to fill orders, and the unusual spectacle of windows filled with Boston ferns, instead of good flowers, has been seen, especially in the second-rate stores. The street fakers and doorway florists took a holiday for a time, but, as violets and a few poor carnations are arriving, they are gradually returning. One result of the scarcity of flowers has been the quite unprecedented demand for magnolia leaves, these making up well with a few flowers and in some cases without any.

Indoor roses and carnations have been practically the only standard flowers in the market, though orchids have been well represented and there has been a fair supply of cut Easter lilies. Violets were the first flowers to recover after the frost, as the abundant rain suited them well. The local stock is already much better than that shipped in from northern markets, the latter having no fragrance.

The frost has been a great disturber of business, and wholesalers report collections as extremely slow.

Various Notes.

H. L. Musser, of the Aggeler & Musser Seed Co., broke his arm recently, when cranking his automobile.

The Gibraltar Investment Co. has now a little over 1,750,000 olive cuttings in the sand at its Montebello plant. The capacity of the frames is 2,000,000, which mark E. Nolte, the skillful and energetic foreman here, intends to reach shortly. Some of the earlier cuttings are already calloused. The frames are enclosed in a high lath house and are all supplied with bottom heat through the medium of hot water. The sand temperature is kept as near 75 degrees as possible and the frames are kept quite close, strips of burlap being fixed on the frame runners to exclude air. The olive trees are being prepared for the firm's large holdings at Bloomington and elsewhere, and when one considers that the Montebello plant is only one—and not the largest one—of the units the firm is running, then the importance of the olive industry in southern California becomes apparent. Should we get many winters like the present, olives would appear to be better property than citrus fruits.

The Germain Seed Co. has broken ground at the Montebello trial grounds and the irrigation system is going in. Large consignments of Cocos plumosa seed are arriving here, the firm having bought heavily. As C. plumosa has stood the recent frost better than any other palm outside of C. australis, it looks as though this grand species will be more largely planted than ever. The seed has been scarce, but is now in brisk demand.

The Los Angeles Flower Market has been severely taxed to keep pace with the orders during the great scarcity of flowers. City orders have been well taken care of, but some of the shipping business had to be let go on account of the scarcity of outdoor stock in all varieties.

John Mentier, of Montebello, was the first to bring in violets after the recent freeze, cutting fine stock January 13.

Morris Goldenson supplied the roses for the opening of the Rose Maid company at the Mason Opera House. Many fine bouquets were presented to the principals, besides the large number of flowers used in the show itself.

H. Reeve Darling, of the Hayward Floral Co., made a flying trip to San Francisco January 12.

About 65 or 70 of the principal Japanese growers of cut flowers will shortly open a market at 419 South Los Angeles street. All classes of cut flowers will be handled, but especially outdoor stock of carnations, violets and similar flowers. It will be under the auspices of the Japanese Growers' Association, which has headquarters here.

W. Armacost & Co. came in with a fine lot of pot Liliun Harrisii just after the freeze, which led to a brisk demand. The plants are fine, having street store have been finely fixed with American Beauty roses. Funeral work has been brisk here, and there have been several decorations.

The H. N. Gage Co. provided the flowers for several large wedding decorations by prominent retailers of late, and it has kept all busy looking up stock. The bulbous flowers are coming in again from the Montebello ranch.

C. Muller, of the Roserie, reports good business since opening up at the new location on Third street. All hands are busy rearranging the store.

Notwithstanding their heavy loss in Boston ferns under lath, Dieterich & Turner have immense numbers under glass, from which they are shipping now. The hardness of Cocos plumosa is well shown here in the nursery rows, hardly a plant being injured.

A feature of the recent cold weather not quite expected is the way Asparagus scandens deflexus came through. It is apparently harder than A. plumosus or A. Sprengeri.

S. Murata & Co. report more orders than they could fill during the recent shortage. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

All of central California has been treated to a heavy downpour and the threatened dry season has been averted, for the present at least. Directly after New Year's and for a space of about a week, severe frosts visited this section, with the effect of making all kinds of blossoms extremely scarce. There is little, however, at this time to be expected from outside growths, with the exception of narcissi and violets, and these shared a hard fate for a few days. With the return of warmer weather, prospects are much better for plenty of flowers.

Carnations and roses have been held at even higher prices than they were during holiday week and only a limited number can be had. The prospects are for lower prices, however, in a day or two. Valley and Romans are inferior in quality, but this will be remedied soon. Lilium longiflorum is being brought into town in large quantity and moves well. Other kinds of stock show the closeness of the cutting and the coldness of the season, but there will be plenty in a short time. In green stock there has not been any more than the occasion demanded. Maidenhair ferns, asparagus and smilax have been closely cut and it will be several weeks before the stock plants will be in good shape again. Business in the funeral line has been heavy, but outside of this there has not been much to mention. Now that the weather has regulated itself to the satisfaction of almost everyone, we can look for an early improvement in trade.

Various Notes.

The Market street plant dealers report a good, steady trade in hardy flowering stock. All are completely sold out of Holland bulbs, which moved this season faster than ever before in the history of the street.

The Alameda County Floral Society will give a spring exhibition in the Chamber of Commerce building, Oakland, about May 1.

The San Rafael rose carnival will be held early in May also, according to the present plan.

A. R. Johnson is in town, with the intention of locating permanently in the neighborhood of San Francisco, Cal.

The Oakland Flower Market will move from Tenth street to Broadway, near the corner of Ninth street, Oakland. G.

Business has been mending since last week, but there is still room for improvement. Funeral orders, wedding and other decorations used up considerable stock, but the orders for small quantities and transient trade have not been good. The weather has militated against good business. So much snow and rain as we have had lately keeps flower buyers off the streets. Carnations are becoming rather too plentiful and there is some talk of cutting the price on them, but several growers are contemplating discarding their plants shortly to make room for cucumbers age in California, while not causing any serious harm in this locality, has been an unusually protracted one. We have had snow on the ground now for over ten days and there does not seem to be an end in sight yet.

Various Notes.

At the Florists' Club's meeting, January 14, H. B. Slauson gave an instructive and interesting discourse on violet growing, his main contention being that violet growing could be carried on here profitably in spite of the opposition from California. The club decided to endorse the application of Mr. Huntley for state horticultural commissioner and a working committee was appointed to see about amalgamating the different improvement clubs and having a good rose show here this year.

A. B. Matthiesen had the misfortune to lose his oldest son, who died January 13 following an operation. At the funeral, January 15, there were a great many flowers and tokens of respect from his many friends. The Florists' Club, of which Mr. Matthiesen is secretary, sent a design.

Carl Melby, the popular young foreman at Risdon's, is an inmate of Providence hospital, having to be operated on for appendicitis January 16. By last accounts he is doing nicely and will, we trust, soon be ready for his duties again.

Several Seattle florists visited Tacoma January 16, going over on the invitation of the Tacoma Florists' Club to join in the social held that evening. In the afternoon they visited the plants of the Smith Floral Co. and the Northwest Floral Co., finding everything in fine shape. The entertainment in the evening left nothing to be desired.

Miss Lulu Risdon, in addition to her Arcade store, has opened a new place of business at 227 Union street.

Henry Bornhoft is working for the Seattle Floral Co.

The stock of Easter lilies being grown in this neighborhood is not quite so extensive as last year. Considering the earliness of Easter and the present appearance of the plants in most establishments, there will be none too many in bloom in time. T. W.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is holding up steadily, yet there is nothing of interest going on to create a demand. The continuous dark and stormy weather for several weeks has checked stock. Roses are far short of demand. Killarneys and Maids have held their color wonderfully, despite the adverse conditions. Carnations are in good crop, but soft, with lots of splits, but everything is used, for there is always design work on hand. Lilies are coming in nicely and find ready sales. Orchids are becoming more plentiful.

Various Notes.

Wm. Martin and family are spending a few weeks in California.

John Bubach, representing Lion & Co., New York, was calling on the trade this week.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held last week. Regular business was transacted, with a goodly number present.

J. J. Karins, of Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, called on the trade this week. He reports business satisfactory. The annual pool game was pulled off according to Hoyle. It was an entirely one-sided affair, between Karins and James Forbes, in favor of the latter. Mr. Karins claimed that traveling made his cue unsteady, but it was a case of scientific work on the part of Mr. Forbes. The attention of S. Lundy and J. R. Fotheringham is called to this event. E. PREPARE FOR MEMORIAL DAY is the peer of all Snapdragons. It is not the coarse and long-headed kind, but a soft, delicate pink that comes most perfect in full sunshine, both indoors and out. It is unexcelled for the field or border. Use seeds for bedding stock and plants for Memorial. I have a block of plants that will be ready about Feb. 20, when they must go, as we need the space March 1.

AND BEDDING-OUT TIME

MY

Plants will be stocky and branched, same as shown here, and the price is $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000, by express. Order today, as my stock is limited to 8,000 plants.

Price of pure seed, $1.00 per pkt. of over 500 seeds; 3 pkts., $2.50, delivered anywhere in the world. Cash must accompany all orders.

Use seedlings for a full crop at Memorial day. Plants from cuttings are good, but will have an extended flowering season. When this is desired the same can be had of seedlings, regulated by pinching, but you cannot have every shoot ready for market at practically the same time except by the use of seedlings, where every shoot is a "live wire," of the same age. The plants we offer have been pinched and handled for a MEMORIAL CROP, when you will want BLOSSOMS, and all you can get. Plants will have three to five branches. Make room for a lot and order at once. If you need proof, read the following letters:

Now write your order to the original SILVER PINK man—

G. S. RAMSBURG, - Somersworth, N. H.

Mr. G. S. Ramsburg.

Dear Sir:—Your bed of Silver Pink Snapdragon seedlings at Memorial last year were a pleasing sight, being in full, even crop.

Very respectfully,
Charles S. Strout.

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 12, 1912.

G. S. Ramsburg, Esq., Somersworth, N. H.
My Dear Mr. Ramsburg:—I have been thinking over the matter of your Silver Pink Snapdragon for a good while, and have been waiting for them to come into bloom nicely before I would form a definite opinion of them. I personally think they are the finest I ever saw, both for size and color, and we are preparing for a big season with them the coming year.

Yours truly,
G. R. Noble.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

For the last two weeks the market has had a good run, although steady. Roses are rather scarce and prices are high. Carnations are much more abundant and other flowers are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Henry Kusik recently was in Chicago on business. He reports that roses were scarce and bringing a good price.

Mr. Carter and Walter O'Berg were on the sick list last week. Mr. O'Berg was poisoned by a rose thorn.

Jas. Biggam was busy last week, decorating for the implement convention.

The florists across the state line report business as being good since the holidays, especially in funeral work.

Ed. D. Ellsworth is busy getting his place in shape for Easter. He always has a nice lot of pot plants.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. has had a fine run on decorations. Among the decorations this week was that for the Bell-Crowe wedding, which was one of the largest of the season.

A. F. Barbe has a fine lot of lilies that look promising for Easter.

Biedermann & Son report business as extraordinary. They have done a large amount of decorating.

J. Austin has been troubled with rheumatism and is unable to look after the business as he wishes to.

R. S. Brown is able to go to his greenhouses in good weather for a short time each day. He walks to his business for exercise.

J. Tobler is doing a good business on funeral work.

A. Elberfeld, of the Alpha Floral Co., is in Chicago on business.

Mr. Parker, president of the George M. Kellogg Cut Flower & Plant Co., was in the city last week to look over the trade. They cut an exceptionally

There is but one SNAPDRAGON worth while—and that is

Buxton's Silver Pink

IT PRODUCES large spikes, 30 inches long. Requires no wires or stakes to hold it erect. Flowers freely and brings the top-notch price in the open market. Whether you are a wholesaler or retailer, you cannot go wrong by planting a bench of this excellent variety. See testimonials in earlier issues of The Review from leading growers and retailers that prove the merits of this sterling variety.

Strong Pot Plants, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000.

NEW CARNATIONS

Wm. Eccles The First Prize winner at Detroit last year in the Red or Scarlet class, and the Silver Medal winner of the New York Horticultural Society for the best undisseminated seedling. The Scarlet everyone was waiting for. Has a strong, rigid stem, a perfectly formed 3½-inch flower, non-bursting calyx, highly perfumed, a grand keeper and as free as any Scarlet to date.

Lady Northcliffe (Engelmann). A beautiful Salmon-pink in color, much resembling Pink Delight. Has a well built up flower and just enough in it not to burst the calyx. While the flower is not the largest (about 3 inches), it is fully as free as May Day and will surely make a grand bread-and-butter sort.

British Triumph (Engelmann). One of the finest things ever raised in England. The color is a striking shade of Crimson. The flower is 3½-inch in size and well built up. It has the sweetest perfume of any Carnation ever raised, and its keeping qualities are the best. Has a fine stem, good constitution and is free.

PRICES: $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

Also Mrs. C. W. Ward and Enchantress. Fine rooted cuttings, ready to ship.

Prices: $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000

Patten & Company, Carnation Specialists, Tewksbury, Mass., say: "Wm. Eccles Carnation cuttings came in good shape, and we wish to thank you for the good stock sent."

ENCHANTRESS SUPREME

THE best Sport of Enchantress up to date, possessing all the vigor and freedom that distinguish its parent. Color a light salmon pink—a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching. A good all-round Carnation that retains its color at all seasons. Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter. Has shown no inclination to be a burster. The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years' duration convinces us of its great value.

EAST ORANGE, N. J.

The eighteenth annual dinner and dance of the New Jersey Floricultural Society was held at English's banquet hall Wednesday evening, January 15, and proved a great success, the attendance of the ladies and a program of dancing adding greatly to the enjoyment of the evening. The officers of the club are: President, Frank Drews; vice-president, George B. Wilson; secretary, John Dervan; treasurer, Fritz Bergeland. The dinner and dance committee was: John Dervan, chairman; Frank Drews, William Reid, George Strange, George H. Wraight, George B. Wilson.

Vice-president Wilson, on behalf of the club, presented Treasurer Grey and Secretary Reed with handsome gold watch chains as tokens of appreciation for faithful service during 1912.

The dinner was excellent, the addresses interesting, and dancing continued into the small hours. The toasts were: "The First Profession," by Wilson B. Killingbeck; "Wild Flowers and Cottage Gardens," by John Skern; "The Ladies," by Messrs. Wilson, Dexter and McTaggart, and "The Gentlemen," by Mrs. Niel, of Orange, N. J., one of the club's members. George Wittlenger responded for the Tarrytown society, Francis Dexter for Yonkers, and John Dunn for Madison. J. Austin Shaw.

Longmeadow, R. I.—Stewart G. Pratt is manager for William C. Pratt & Son, proprietors of the Maplehurst Greenhouses. It is a new establishment, growing a general line for retail trade.

COMMODORE

THE BEST RED CARNATION

So pronounced by the leading carnation growers. A fine grower, does not split; a brilliant red, much deeper in color than Beacon and a variety destined to become the leader in its color. Its keeping qualities are as good as Pink Delight, which is considered the best keeper among Carnations. All growers should try Commodore.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The first part of last week found business somewhat quiet and stock accumulated just a little, but toward the end of the week the market was restored to satisfactory conditions. Carnations were quite plentiful all through the week and would not have fared so well had not a pronounced shortage of the inferior grades of roses turned up, so that orders were filled with carnations. The few tulips, which are still short-stemmed, sold readily, while Romans hung fire. Paper Whites, trumps, peas and violets moved well.

Various Notes.

Richard Lietz was at Detroit last week to attend the funeral of his mother, who had been ailing for some time.

F. Schmeling, on the Blue Mound road, has been confined to his home for the last ten days with a bad attack of grip.

Gust Pohl's business has increased too rapidly for his transportation facilities, so he bought a Ford truck at the auto show held at the Auditorium last week.

C. Desebrock and daughter, who have been employed by the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., as bookkeeper and clerk, respectively, for some years, will open a flower store at 2827 North avenue February 1. Being conscientious in all their undertakings, they will be likely to make a first-class success.

The Gust Rusch Co. reports business good, with shipping trade on the increase.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. reports business so far for this year as most satisfactory.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. is cutting a nice lot of carnations these days, and a fair lot of roses.

Visitors: Harry Balsley, Detroit; Adam Zender, Chicago; J. J. Le Borious, Duluth. E. O.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

Business was exceptionally quiet last week, with little doing in any line. The weather has been unusually warm for this time of the year. There is plenty of stock of all kinds. Bulbous stock is beginning to come in.

Various Notes.

At the last meeting of the Toledo Florists' Club it was decided to hold a carnation show sometime near the middle of February.

Emil Kuhnke is showing some fine sweet peas.

Martin Reukauf, of Bayersdorfer & Co., called on the trade last week.

STANDARD VARIETIES READY

We are propagating from flowering stems only, not from cut back stock. Propagating from stem cuttings only insures perfect health and the most free-flowering qualities.

Renew your standard varieties by getting healthy cuttings from the stock that produced the blooms which won more prizes at the fall exhibitions than were won by the flowers of any other grower.

The Market.

Business last week was exceptionally good. With a fair general business, some large receptions and weddings and a goodly share of funeral work, all retailers are satisfied with results. Roses are arriving in fine shape, as are also carnations and violets. Bulb stock is plentiful. Fine lots of orchids and bouvardias are also coming in.

Various Notes.

O. Christians, formerly of 1003 Payne avenue, has sold that place and is now located at 907 Payne avenue. He reports an excellent business.

Munich & Wahler, of the west side, are cutting a fine lot of carnations and sweet peas, and are readily disposing of them.

Holm & Olson recently furnished the decorations for the Angelo-Elsinger wedding. This was one of the most pretentious decorations ever attempted in this city. The wedding took place at Ramaly hall and the room was converted into a church by the genius of Mr. Olson. The walls of the hall were hung with southern smilax, in which were cut cathedral windows. A rostrum was erected at one end and was covered with groups of palms and immense vases of lilies. The pews were all marked with lilies. The dining room was canopied in the form of an arbor, the columns of which were covered with Beauties. In this room 3,000 Beauties were used. This firm is cutting a fine lot of Cattleya Trianae and a good assortment of cypripediums.

The store of L. L. May & Co. looks well after the holiday rush and business is reported as fine.

St. Paul florists and their ladies were well represented at the annual dance of the Minnesota State Florists' Association, held at Minneapolis, January 13. All report having had a fine time.

The Merriam Park Floral Co. is cutting a fine lot of bulb stock and the place appears to be in the best of condition.

C. F. Haupt is bringing in some fine sweet peas.

The Acorn Greenhouses are in the midst of a fine crop of Killarneys. This firm is cutting and bringing into this market a fine lot of stock.

The O. R. Eckhardt Co. reports that stock is coming in fine shape and a lot of it, with no trouble in disposing of it.

P. Clausen & Son, of Albert Lea, Minn., are shipping a fine lot of violets into this city. G. A. Clausen, of this firm, spent a few days in the city last week. He reports a fine business and an abundance of stock.

Visitors: Julius Dilloff, of Schloss Bros., New York city; Harry Balsley, of Detroit; Allister Currie, of Milwaukee, and Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago. C. R. F.

New American Beauty GERANIUM

We take great pleasure in introducing to our many customers for 1918 our new American Beauty Geranium. For the first time, after working on it for nearly three years, we are offering it for sale.

Our Claim for American Beauty Geranium is that it surpasses all other Geraniums in its real American Beauty color. The individual blooms measure 2¼ inches across. It is semi-double, medium dwarf, of stately shape. It has come to stay as a money maker. Prices to the trade: 2½-in. pots, 50c each, $5.00 per doz.; 3-in. pots, $1.00 each, $10.00 per doz. cash. SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

Cloudy weather has kept stock back considerably; consequently flowers are higher in price just now than they have been for some time. Roses and carnations are scarcest of all. Richmond and Milady are extremely high-priced and there are few roses of any kind to be had at all. Beauties are seldom seen; in fact, they are so scarce and so costly that there has been no demand for them since Christmas. Violets have fallen off somewhat in demand and the price has dropped. Valley, daffodils, Paper Whites, sweet peas and marguerites are all abundant. Forget-me-nots are arriving in small quantities. Business in general has been rather slow since the holidays, but it is hoped that it will pick up soon. However, January is usually a dull month here.

Various Notes.

The Toole-Newton wedding at Holyoke, January 8, was a big affair. Great quantities of Harrisii lilies, poinsettias, daffodils and Killarney roses were used, besides festooning of southern smilax, which was used lavishly. Mark Aitken was the decorator. Miss Ella May Mansfield, formerly with L. D. Robinson, is now with Mr. Aitken. Linwood Morgan is growing some excellent White Perfection and Enchantress carnations in Agawam.

James Morrison's violets are coming on finely and will soon have their new growth. He expects to have a great many for the Easter trade.

Osterman & Steele are showing some attractive baskets of spring flowers in their window.

Wm. Schlatter & Son have some good La Reine tulips in pots thus early, and some fine Golden Spur daffodils.

The new Japanese glass centerpieces are finding favor here. They consist of a low glass bowl, with Japanese holders for any kind of flowers. The bowl forms a miniature pond for goldfish. The arrangement makes a most attractive table decoration and is quite unique.

E. B. Beals is growing excellent freesias and cyclamens.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubes, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2 1/2-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Supplies seem to be a little more plentiful, owing to the warm weather, but prices are fairly well maintained all around. Roses are selling moderately well. The quality leaves nothing to be desired. Funeral work has created a better call for White Killarneys, while Killarney is selling well. The yellow roses, such as Lady Hillingdon and Sunburst, continue to be in good demand. Carnations have shortened up. Violets are opening fast and moving well, which would not be the case if the weather were colder. There are to be seen about as many doubles as singles. Sweet peas are selling a little better, while lilies are also in demand. There is an excellent supply of fine freesia. Paper White narcissi are plentiful, with an increase in jonquills, causing a drop in prices. Tulips are not yet plentiful. Some Dutch hyacinths are coming in, mostly white. Stevia seems to be in demand, with a heavy supply. Lily of the valley is abundant and selling off nicely. Orchids are extremely plentiful. Both plumosus and Sprengeri are selling well.

Various Notes.

Fred J. Michell, Jr., of the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, was a caller here last week. He has been in the office for four years and now expects to be outside, representing the company on the road.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. is growing bedding stock on an even larger scale than heretofore.

At the January meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club Wm. Akehurst, of White Marsh, showed a seedling carnation, shell or peach pink in color, with fine stems about two feet long. It scored eighty-five points, which entitled it to a certificate of merit. The club is making preparations to celebrate its twenty-sixth anniversary some time in March, with the election of officers.

Prof. Thomas B. Symons has announced that there will be, at the Maryland Agricultural College, a free two weeks' course in horticulture, beginning January 27. R. Vincent, Jr., is to be one of the lecturers. L. S. W.

Aphine
The Insecticide that kills plant lice of every species

THE RECOGNIZED STANDARD INSECTICIDE

Not a cure-all, but a specific remedy for all sap-sucking insects infesting plant life, such as green, black, white fly, thrips, red spider, mealy bug and soft scales.

$1.00 per quart; $2.50 per gallon.

FUNGINE

An infallible remedy for mildew, rust and bench fungi. Unlike Bordeaux and lime and sulphur, it does not stain the foliage but cleanses it.

75c per quart; $2.00 per gallon.

VERMINE

A soil sterilizer and vermicide. Destroys eel, cut, wire and grub worms, maggots, root lice and ants. Used one part to 400 parts water, it does not injure plants, but protects your crops against ravages under the soil.

$1.00 per quart; $3.00 per gallon.

All are spraying materials and are effective in the greenhouse and in the garden.

ROOTED CUTTINGS.

Our young stock has a national reputation for quality; we have nothing but clean, healthy stock on our place and all cuttings are well rooted when sent out. We make a specialty of young stock for the trade.

THE NEW PINK CARNATION.

Color, cerise pink. This variety has been thoroughly tried out for the past five years and we offer it today with every confidence that it will ultimately take first place as the premier dark pink. The color is similar to Mrs. C. W.
Ward without the objectionable streakiness and tendency to burst the calyx of the latter variety during the dark weather. The growth is wonderfully free and continuous and Northport will produce more flowers per plant than any other variety of its type. The calyx is practically non-bursting. Rooted cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

We have for immediate delivery all rooted cuttings of Enchantress, White Enchantress and Beacon at $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000.

I have used the Imperial Plant Food, both in Powder and Biscuit form, and have always found it safe and reliable, as well as very marked in its effects on all classes of plants on which it has been used. For the commercial florist or private gardener who needs a really high-grade and quick-acting fertilizer, there is nothing superior to the Imperial Plant Food. Many skilled growers have been using it for years, and I have yet to meet one who does not commend it.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each boiler advertised in The Review is a good boiler, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

LICENSED FIREMEN.

I should like to get a few pointers on steam heating. What are the requirements for a fireman, in order to hold a certificate for running a steam boiler? Is there a text-book on the subject? C.

In most places where boilers are used for heating purposes and low pressures are carried, no certificate or license is required by a fireman. In some of the larger cities, however, boilers above a certain horse-power must be in charge of a licensed stationary engineer. The requirements are not uniform, but are based upon local ordinances. When licenses are necessary, applicants are generally required to take some sort of examination, which is usually purely technical. While actual experience, under an experienced fireman, is the best way of learning the business, there are several books which treat of steam boilers and their care, and some of the correspondence schools have courses on this subject.

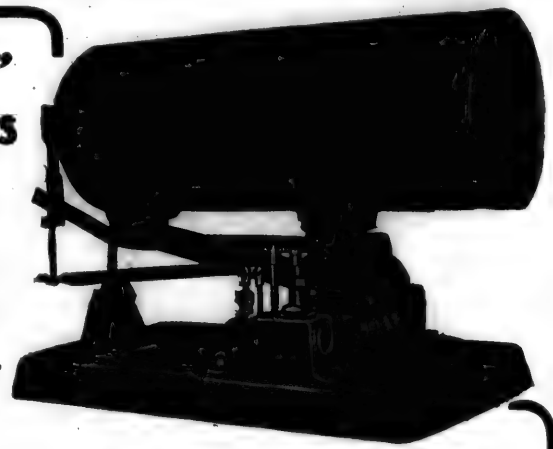

A COIL BOILER.

Next summer I shall build another greenhouse, but the boiler I have now will not be large enough to heat it and the houses I have at present. I have decided, therefore, to use a coil of pipe, but a man here, who should know, says that a coil of wrought-iron pipe will burn out in two winters, using soft coal for fuel. So I am thinking of using cast-iron pipe. Any information you can give me on this subject will be appreciated. H. B.

Coils made from wrought-iron pipe are not durable, especially when 1-inch pipe is used and soft coal is burned. Two-inch pipe is considerably heavier, and, especially if the threads are not exposed, will last much longer. Of course cast-iron pipes will last for several years, but, owing to uneven expansion, there is always more or less trouble from leaky joints. At best, coil boilers are not altogether satis-

HOLYOKE, MASS.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Holyoke and Northampton was held January 14 at Smith's College conservatories, with President E. J. Canning. It was decided to hold a banquet next month in Northampton. D. J. Gallivan gave a paper on the retail branch of the business, in which he advocated the importance of grading flowers and charging prices to conform to quality of the goods, the necessity for promptness in delivery, and other important features of the business.

James Whiting, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, read a practical paper on greenhouse heating, comparing steam and hot water and the best methods of installing each to secure economy of fuel with low cost of installation. Geo. Rackliffe read a paper on the growing of asters, in which he has been successful. He gave a number of original ideas which he had worked out with success.

President E. J. Canning exhibited two large and perfect specimens of staghorn ferns, which were awarded a certificate of merit. F. G. B.

The Market.

Business continues to pick up, but there is a falling off in the quantity of cut flowers, especially roses. The crops seem well timed this year and from the houses I saw last week it looks as if there would be a full cut again for Easter. I saw many thousands of lilies that were about a foot high. There need be no fear of such stock not being on time. Carnations continue to arrive in immense quantities, and are the only flower of which there is a real surplus. Prices are a little firmer than they were one week ago. There are few carnations selling below $1 and the best fetch $1.50 per dozen, retail.

There never was a time in the history of our city when there were so many good residences in the process of construction or under contract to be constructed in the early spring. Those who grow hardy ornamentals, or who do landscape work, say the outlook for business never was so good. The acreage of this sort of stock will be greatly increased this spring.

Various Notes.

Born, to T. H. Joy, Jr., January 15, a son, T. H. Joy IV.

When I called at the store of Geny Bros. I found all hands up to their eyes in work, making up funeral designs. They say business was good last week. They kept well cleaned up all the week. Their carnations continue fine and they have a good supply of violets that are selling readily.

Hillcrest School Farm is transplanting evergreens and planting peonies this week, between rains. The heavy rains prevented their getting all their planting done at the proper time, but they say any peonies planted before the middle of February are all right in this climate. Their work is entirely in hardy ornamentals. They will more than double their acreage this year. They grow and sell as a means of providing labor for needy students and in order to have facilities for class work.

The nurserymen's state convention will be held here next week. There is an interesting program.

The Joy Floral Co. has several thousand fine young carnations in 2-inch pots and the propagating house is full of cuttings. The rose man is busy grafting. The company believes in getting this work done early. F. B.

CURVED IRON EAVE Style "S"

This eave is intended for use on detached houses with either fixed glass or side sash.

It is practically all exposed to the inside heat of the greenhouse and so is ice clearing.

KING GREENHOUSE EAVES

THEY SOLVE THE EAVE PROBLEM

THEY MAKE THE LEAST POSSIBLE SHADE and as you can see

PRESENT NO SURFACE FOR ICICLES TO FORM ON

THEY HAVE GREAT STRENGTH WITH LIGHTNESS

THEY ARE DESIGNED AND MADE FOR THE PURPOSE AND NOT ADAPTED FROM STOCK STRUCTURAL SHAPES.

CURVED IRON EAVE Style "L"

This eave although lighter than style "S" is amply strong for all eave purposes.

It obstructs little light and is ice clearing in the most severe weather. It is intended for use with fixed glass only.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has held up remarkably well since the holidays. There has been some funeral work most of the time and the stock has been cleaned up nearly all of the time. Roses are first-class in quality, but at times there are hardly enough to go around. Carnations are in greater abundance, but are cleaned up daily. Beauties are fair in quality, but the demand is not heavy. Violets and sweet peas have been moving nicely of late. Orchids and valley had a slow call last week. Home-grown stevia is a thing of the past. Paper Whites and hyacinths are plentiful. Tulips and jonquils had considerable call last week.

Pot plants have been moving well, including azaleas, cyclamens, begonias, primulas, etc.

Various Notes.

Secretary Baur, of the American Carnation Society, has mailed out the premium list for the carnation show in New York in April.

George B. Wiegand has been appointed a judge of the decorative classes in carnations at the International Flower Show in New York next April.

Alfred Brandt is to move from his present location to 5 East Ohio street. Mr. Brandt thinks this will be a better location.

Mrs. Louise Ausberger has a new baby boy at their home. Mrs. Ausberger was formerly Miss Louise Pahud.

The Smith & Young Co. has been cutting some of the best Killarney seen in this market.

L. F. Benson reports business satisfactory in his new location.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co. is showing a nice lot of azaleas, cyclamens and primulas.

The Hill-Heller Co., at its handsome new store, appears to have struck the chord of popular approval. It is believed business is exceeding their expectations.

The Frame of Our Iron Frame

YOU know that it takes much more strength to hold a weight out at arm's length, straight from your shoulder, than it does when held closer to your body.

How altogether reasonable it is to apply the same principles to framing a greenhouse!

Our method of iron framing is based on that same principle of placing the supporting members in such a way that the load is distributed and eased up, so that there are no excessive strains on the columns.

Trussing—unless it is the compression type—we protest against using.

Look at this 55-foot house above and compare its extreme simplicity of compression framing with other houses of similar widths; and you surely must be impressed with the advantages of such simplicity in construction.

In this week's Florists' Exchange we take two pages to show our New Cantilever Iron Frame that requires fewer rafters, fewer purlins, fewer columns, and still has the necessary strength.

Twenty-inch glass is used.

Be sure to look the Ad. up.

Better yet, let us come and talk it over with you.

Glass Sash is an air space of $\frac{5}{8}$ of an inch in thickness

the glass is warm earth and plants growing like May

The secret of it all, is that the air space between the two layers of glass being a nonconductor will not let the cold in or the heat out. It makes the Sunlight Double Glass Sash complete in itself. It needs no mats or boards. The only cover is the air sealed between the layers of glass.

You can have hot-beds and cold-frames with Sunlight Double Glass Sash far cheaper in the long run than your single layer sash with heavy, dark covers of mats or boards. You can save more than half the labor and worry and you can control your beds better and get earlier, stronger and far more profitable plants.

The Sunlight Double Glass Sash method comes right home to every gardener and florist in the country. It is good business to learn all about it.

Write us today. We will send our complete catalog, free. If you enclose 4c in stamps we will also send Prof. Massey's booklet on hot-beds and cold-frames.
Be sure to write your name and post office plainly.

HERE ARE TWO FAMOUS MONINGER PATTERNS

THE No. 7 EAVE PLATE

This eave plate is the result of a great deal more thought and study than you would imagine just by looking at it.

The bevel on which the bar rests is just the right pitch all the time without affecting the other advantages of the plate and the groove for glass always comes just right. The drip groove for condensation from the roof is extra large and always takes care of the water.

Notice the rounding edge of the plate just beyond the glass rest. This is the famous ice clearing curve. The very end of the roof bar and the very edge of the roof glass comes at this point. The heat from the inside of the house reaches the important spot all the time.

It is of vital interest to you to know that this is the only practical wood eave plate on the market. It is the end of many experiments and tests in practical work.

This eave, together with all other wood patterns made by us, is manufactured of clear cypress and guaranteed.

THE No. 5 GUTTER

Many florists believe a wood gutter is superior to an iron one and there are several good reasons for this.

In the first place it must be a pattern that is perfect in all essential points. First of all it must be water tight. Now, water tight means just that and nothing less. In our opinion there is not another pattern as water tight as our No. 5.

The tongue and groove principle is the only right one and the gutter must be made with a flat bottom so you can walk in it for repairing broken glass. A flat gutter casts less shade than any other kind. Painted with thick lead and nailed up tight this gutter holds water and it keeps its shape, too.

The sills are set into the plate and the drip gutter fits right into its own groove. This drip gutter doesn't leak, always stays in place and is extra large.

This gutter is expensive, but it costs less than any other wood gutter made.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

A WEEKLY JOURNAL FOR FLORISTS, SEEDSMEN AND NURSERYMEN.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY NUMBER

You Can Save Money Easily by the Simonds Vacuum Heating Way

similarly to the LANSDALE MUSHROOM CO., Lansdale, Pa., or the J. W. DAVIS CO., Davenport, Iowa.

Greenhouses of Dunbar & Hopkins, Ashtabula, Ohio. Twenty-two roofs 15x285 ft., built in one range. There are over 11 miles of 1 1/4-inch steam pipe in this range for heating purposes only.

Here are two briefs from well known plants:

Ashtabula, O., February 15, 1912.

Simonds Heating & Specialty Co.,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

Gentlemen:—We have before us your inquiry regarding the continued operation of our Simonds Vacuum System and we are very glad to report as follows:

One block of glass containing about three acres was fitted out with this system in the summer of 1906, and another block of about two acres in the summer of 1909. We are at this writing just drawing a long breath after six weeks of intense cold and stormy weather.

Neither plant has given us one moment's trouble and we are well pleased with general results. We are able with this system to develop additional heat in any portion of the plant and find radiation equally effective under the glass farthest removed from the boilers.

We think we made no mistake in selecting this method of heating and would put in the same if we had it to do again.

Wishing you success, we remain,

Truly yours,

DUNBAR & HOPKINS.

Chicago, November 23, 1912.

Simonds Heating & Specialty Co.,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

Gentlemen:—In looking over our heating system at Edgebrook, which you installed, and comparing it with what we had there last year, we feel that it is due you to let you know how well satisfied we are with reference to same.

Although we have only been using it for a short time, still the indications are that there will be a great saving in fuel and that the expense that we had there this season will be more than paid for in the first season.

The courteous treatment that has been given us, we assure you, has also been appreciated, and we hope when the season is over that we will be able to give you some figures which you can use as a comparison and which might be of benefit to other florists, who had the same trouble as we had.

It is only a common-sense proposition, as we all know that air-bound pipes and poor circulation take a very high pressure to push the steam around and a high pressure means fuel, which is done away with by the vacuum system, so that there is no resistance there at all and an even temperature and low cost of operation is the result.

Very truly yours,

THE GEORGE WITTBOLD CO.

Per Louis Wittbold.

THE ONLY PROOF is the opinion of users.

You'll profit by looking into the merits of the Simonds One Pound heating way. It means the end of all your heating troubles and a plant fully protected against the coldest zero weather at a constant saving of fuel.

Write us—without any obligation whatever we will advise you how you can get better heat with far less fuel.

Won't you write us today?

A FEW FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW*CIRCULATION OF AIR

Do you know that the circulation system in our refrigerators is the most perfect of any on the market; that the air is kept in continuous motion; that it casts the greater amount of chilled air in the compartments; melts the ice evenly and works like a clock in extracting out all odors, without permitting the pent-up cold air to escape (a remarkable feature of our trap) and keeps the flowers fresh?

INSULATING MATERIAL

Do you know that the insulating material we use is (mineral felt) the most reliable and satisfactory and that it is glued on each side of a dead air space; that it has many advantages over other fillings, as it cannot settle in the walls, leaving the ice chamber unprotected?

BUCHBINDER CONSTRUCTION

Do you know that our refrigerators are noted for high quality from the treatment of the lumber to the posts, joints, etc., of our construction, from our linings to the heavy brass hardware and lasting finish?

[SECOND EDITION]

It sold so much better than was expected that the First Edition, intended to last a year, was sold out in eight months.

This Album was published in response to many requests from Florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book to be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it is not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it will be when ready for use. With this Album you can show the finished work, in beautifully printed pictures.

The Album has been THOROUGHLY REVISED for the Second Edition and contains a large number of designs not shown in the wonderfully successful First Edition.

NINETY-SIX PAGES, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy glazed paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

75c PER COPY POSTPAID
$6.00 PER DOZEN BY EXPRESS

The price has not been raised for the Second Edition, although everybody says the First Edition was worth more money, and this is a better book in every way.

10-inch and 11-inch tubs, 5 feet to 10 feet tall.....$4, $5, $6 and $7.50 each

FICUS CHAUVIERI.

This is an old variety, taken up again by us. We believe we have the only stock of this variety in the country. It is in a class with the old Elastica, being very hardy and doing equally well for both inside and outside decoration. This plant has already given great satisfaction.

6-inch pots, 18 inches high.....$12 per doz.
Large plants.....$1.50, $2 and $2.50 each

KENTIAS.

Strong stock for growing on.

NEPHROLEPIS IN VARIETY.

We are now the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country, in the following varieties; in fact, we are headquarters for them. The demand increases each year and it is our aim to have

EVERY VARIETY IN NEPHROLEPIS

IN EVERY SIZE

EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Excellent values in all sizes. Our entire stock, in all sizes, are all pot grown plants.

NEPHROLEPIS SCHOLZELI.

This is an ideal crested fern, holding the same relation to all other crested varieties that the Neph. Scottii holds to the old Boston.

2½-inch pots.....$6 per 100, $50 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$20 per 100
8-inch pans, heavy.....$12 and $15 per doz.
10-inch pans, heavy.....$18 and $24 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA IMPROVED.

This variety is a greatly improved Elegantissima and shows no tendency to revert to the old Boston. This will prove a valuable addition to the crested varieties.

2½-inch pots.....$6 per 100; $50 per 1000
4-inch pots, strong plants.....$20 per 100
6-inch pots, strong plants.....$6 and $9 per doz.

8-inch pots.....$12 per doz.
11-inch buckets.....$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4 and $5 each

NEPHROLEPIS WM. K. HARRIS.

A type of Boston more dwarf than Harrisii, but with the same wavy appearance of the fronds. An ideal variety in all sizes.

2½-inch pots.....$8 per 100; $75 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$20 per 100
6-inch pots.....$6 per doz.; $45 per 100
8-inch pots.....$12 per doz.; $90 per 100
11-inch tubs.....$2.50, $3 and $4 each

NEPHROLEPIS GIATRASIL.

Sport of Nephrolepis Bostoniensis. This variety is beautiful in a small plant and will prove a valuable addition as a small fern for pans, etc.

6-inch pots, heavy.....$6 and $9 per doz.
8-inch pots, heavy.....$12 and $15 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS SMITHII

This variety is a greatly improved Amerpohlii, dwarfed in habit, the fronds being much finer, and do not have any tendency to spoll in the center of the plant. It is the finest of all Nephrolepis for Christmas baskets and has given entire satisfaction.

2½-inch pots.....$15 per 100; $120 per 1000
3-inch pots.....$25 per 100

Buy Improved Cannas

Dear Mr. Florist,

Everywhere, U. S. A.

Have you seen these C. & J. Improved Cannas in bloom? Do you know how much difference there is between them and the ordinary sorts? Sometimes we call them Lily Cannas to describe that difference. They really are Lily Cannas.

You remember, do you not, how in England they won for us a majority of the awards over all other nations combined?

You surely know how the numerous big beds around the public buildings of the nation's capitol, at Washington, D. C., are adorned principally with the C. & J. Improved Cannas.

You've read about them in the parks of Baltimore, Philadelphia, Chicago, and elsewhere.

But have you tried them?

John Welsh Young is a wise man; he says, "There can be no question that could the Florists see those Cannas, they would be in every collection in the country."

Why? Not only because they are larger and finer, but because you can coin larger profits on these higher priced kinds. Our patrons have proved it.

The January 25th Florists' Exchange gives this canna advice to its readers: "Now is the time to make up a list of such as are to be grown. Don't wait until everybody else has found out how good a sort is before you get hold of it."

That is why we are making it easy, in the Special Offers below, for you to try out the entire set of

MAKING ANOTHER SPECIAL FLOWER DAY

[The purpose of this issue is to get 10,000 florists each to do at least a little something to attract the attention of the public to the appropriateness of flowers for use as valentines.]

T. VALENTINE'S day, February 14, offers florists an unusually easy opportunity to work up another special flower day. The public is ripe for it. Ready at hand, only waiting to be turned to use, is a sentiment ages old.

Read up on St. Valentine's day and you will find its origin lost in the mists of antiquity. You will find tales of many interesting and amusing customs peculiar to the different peoples of the world, but nowhere in the Acta Sanctorum, among the legends of the many saints of the name, is there any trace of the practice peculiar to the day as we know it—the day on which since time immemorial brave men have sent fair ladies fond tokens.

Children may exchange the crimped paper contraptions with the amorous verses that the department stores and stationers display in such quantity and variety, but for full-grown men and women these things are impossible.

All they need, however, is the suggestion to send flowers.

Of all the obvious things of this world, the appropriateness of flowers for valentines is most perfectly plain. It needs no argument—only don't wait for people to think of it for themselves.

In the last couple of years there has been a smart increase in the Valentine's day sales of flowers, mostly corsage bouquets, because florists have become more wide-awake to business opportunities and have, here and there, done more or less to bring their merchandise to the attention of those who need only to be reminded to become buyers. The jump in sales February 14 this year will be far greater than in 1912 simply because none of those who have seen how easily it works will ever again omit the effort, and because many more will take it up.

February 14 is in a fair way to become one of the important special flower days.

We all know how quickly and easily Mothers' day was pushed into profitable prominence by the florists. It will be even easier with Valentine's day, for the reason that the observance already is established and because flowers and hearts go naturally together.

If every retail florist this year spends ten per cent of his sales for February 14 last year in three days' advertising in his best local paper, a wonderful impetus will be given the business.

While newspaper advertising is the quickest and most effective way of reaching the great body of flower buyers, there are other ways that should not be neglected. The store window still is a potent advertising medium ness is growing steadily and St. Valentine's day is a specially good time for it. Let the man away from home, or whose wife or sweetheart is away, know that you have facilities for delivering a corsage bouquet attractively put up in a special valentine package and you are almost sure to get his order. Then, don't use the parcel post unless the distance is short and you are willing to run the risk of having the flowers crushed—if you haven't a regular correspondent in the town send the order to the florist there who has his card in The Review's department of Leading Retail Florists.

Besides planning advertising for St. Valentine's day business, plan your special offerings. One of the minor difficulties of flower selling is the sameness of the stock. Here comes a day on which you can offer a variety—heart-shaped boxes decorated with hearts and darts, something neither you nor any other florist will offer on any other day in the year. A few of the higher priced heart-shaped hampers and other specialties of the supply dealers are a good investment even if you do not sell them; you can use them in your window display next year as well as this.

It takes merely a little push, with all hands working, to set the business ball a-rolling for St. Valentine's. Let's all do something, each in his own way, each for his own profit.

The following pages carry articles and illustrations showing how progressive florists made good money, and the things they sold last year. Read these articles; study the illustrations. Don't go at it with the idea of copying but, rather, with the idea of thinking out something for yourself that is new and different. Individuality, personality, is what so many flower stores lack. It is not to be obtained by copying, but by thinking. It is not easy for a man not blessed with originality to be original, but the florist who merely plods along the beaten path makes progress only as the whole mass of the trade forges slowly ahead. Once out of the rut the going is easier; the view is clearer, motion is more free; you can accomplish with ease things that seemed

ST. VALENTINE'S ADVERTISING.

Reproduced in this issue are a number of advertisements used last season by leading retail florists to exploit St. Valentine's day in their local papers. These are all much reduced in size, those in the left-hand column on this page being one-fourth the original size, and those in the right-hand column only one-ninth the original size. In other words, the advertisements at the left were double-column displays and those at the right were triple column.

In nearly every case these advertisements were sent to The Review just after St. Valentine's day last year, with a few lines to the effect that results had been excellent. J. R. Cowgill, Canton, O., wrote: "I am a careful reader of The Review and, noting that from time to time you reproduce advertisements submitted to you for comment, I send one I used at St. Valentine's day. Quite a few complimented us on the appearance or wording of this advertisement, but, what is far more important, it brought a fine lot of business to the store. The advertisement shown was published in the Sunday papers of February 11. I started my campaign of advertising for St. Valentine's day about two weeks in advance. Nowhere in the entire series did I mention prices, all the advertisements being along the lines of the one submitted. I should be glad to have The Review point out the weak spots in the advertisement, as I am much interested in florists' advertising and hope to increase my knowledge of the ways to use it."

It will be noted that the advertisements are about equally divided as between those which quote prices and those that do not. It is characteristic of the retail florists who use the most printers' ink that they almost invariably make a direct offer in each advertisement. For instance, for Valentine's day corsage bouquets are offered at a specified price. Most of the retailers who use priced advertisements believe that the prices quoted should be low, but that does not mean that they are selling without profit. Usually it means that preparation has been made by way of securing special supplies at special prices with the object of offering a little lower selling prices than the usual one.

All these St. Valentine's day advertisements are illustrated. It is an occasion which lends itself to the use of attractive cuts—hearts and cupids. But the best illustration of all is the one that shows the article that is offered for sale; shows it attractively, but without exaggeration. There is nothing that will quicker kill the value of advertising than to have the advertising exaggerated. Once let a customer come to a store in response to an advertisement that offers a "great big bunch" of violets and go away with the impression that in reality it is a little, stingy bunch and thereafter the advertising money may better be saved. Unless the goods are as attractive as the advertising it is only possible to sell once to each customer. It hardly ever pays to advertise where one can only make one sale, with never a chance of getting the customer back into the store; it cuts the field down fast.

But to go back to illustrating advertisements: most of the large daily newspapers make illustrations for advertisers and charge only the cost. They will make the illustration from the article itself, from a photograph, or from a picture which has appeared in the text columns of The Review. In sending the advertisement reproduced in the lower right-hand corner of page 16 Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, say: "We enclose proof of an advertisement we used successfully for St. Valentine's day. You will recognize the picture as one which originally appeared in The Review in one of the January issues. The clipping was given to the newspaper artist, who resketched it with the successful result shown. We find the pictures in The Review most useful for reproduction in newspaper advertisements." CORSAGE BOUQUETS.

While a great number of boxes of loose cut flowers are sent out each St. Valentine's day, an extremely large business is done in corsage bouquets. Probably the sales of corsage bouquets February 14 exceed those of any other day in the year by a considerable margin. Retailers who are not content to settle down and wait have found they can devise means of getting advance orders for St. Valentine's day delivery. Most of these orders are for corsages of sweet peas, orchids or violets, the latter largely predominating.

In this issue there are illustrations of three typical corsage bunches. One shows the use of violets. Sometimes such a bunch is sent out with no other flowers in it, but usually in the center of a bunch of violets there will be a single bloom of cattleya or gardenia, or a few spikes of valley, sometimes of Roman hyacinths. The orchid corsages are all more or less similar, varying more in size than in character. With the cattleyas, valley usually is combined. Some retailers still use adiantum for the green, but others use Mexican ivy exclusively. The adiantum-users argue that the Mexican ivy is too coarse for the purpose, while the devotees of the hardy California product maintain that the adiantum wilts so quickly that it destroys the appearance of a bouquet before its usefulness otherwise would have departed.

At this season sweet peas are popular. In corsage bouquets they make a fine showing for the money and can be sold in quantity.

The sales of corsage bouquets have become so large an item in first-class stores that a capable man must be expert at making them up. The bunches nowadays are usually backed by a shield of more or less elaborateness, according to the price of the bouquet. Usually the stems of violets are wrapped in violet or green foil, but the best workmen use ribbon. It is surprising how quickly one accustomed to the work will wrap and fasten the ribbon and attach the shield. Then comes the tie, which may be one of the ready-to-wear affairs now offered in such great variety by all the supply houses, or it may be a bow of wide ribbon cut off the bolt. The box then is lined with white tissue, not waxed paper, for there is little moisture. With the advent of the better grades of boxes the outside wrapping of paper has been discontinued. The box is too fine to conceal. The tab makers now supply special designs for St. Valentine's day, and all other special flower days.

In the big stores where corsage bouquets are made by the hundred for such an occasion as St. Valentine's day, the work is systematized most interestingly. The orders are accumulated so that the workers know just what is to be done before they begin, in the early morning. Sorting out the orders for one kind of bouquet, as of violets, each man is given one part of the work to do, that part for which his talents are best suited. The first man does nothing but bunch the flowers, passing the bunches to the one who covers the stems, who sends it down the line to the worker who applies the ribbon or shield and hands it to the next in line to be decorated with the tie; thence to the clerk who selects an appropriate box, then to the packer, and finally to the order clerk, the work being divided up so that each one has about an equal amount of time for his task.

THE POPULAR PACKAGE.

The St. Valentine's day calls are largely for corsage bouquets, the leading stores in the large cities accumulating orders for hundreds to be delivered February 14.

The popular package is the heart-shaped box. For several years these boxes have been offered in bright red, but some of the high-class stores have not cared to use the same thing that was to be seen in other windows and have had their own boxes made, corresponding in style to the boxes ordinarily used by the store. The accompanying illustration shows the Valentine's day corsage package used by C. A. Samuelson, Chicago.

PUSHING THE WORK ALONG.

How the Individual May Aid.

In these days when florists' clubs are appointing publicity committees that, for the most part, find their task too big for the time and resources available, it is worth while noting what the individual can do. As an example, at Wichita a florist has for months conducted a column in a leading daily paper. W. H. Culp is the author. His department is headed "The Home Florist" and in it he gives weekly hints on flowers and plants. He grinds no axes. The matter is written with the first object of interesting the public—but anything that interests the public in flowers is of value to the florists. As a sample of his work the St. Valentine's day article is reprinted here:

St. Valentine's Day.

"St. Valentine probably deserved the honor which belongs with the title of Saint and quite possibly it was due him long before it was bestowed, but it may possibly compensate the good saint to observe that the day set apart as St. Valentine's has as wide, and possibly wider, observance as that of any other saint on the calendar. And this, too, among the young and light-hearted, to whom quite often one saint looks much like all the others.

"It is quite possible that because Dan Cupid seems to have set himself up as doorkeeper at the shrine of St. Valentine, the luster of the good saint's name is not allowed to grow dim. And it is probable that many who visit his shrine are satisfied to pay their respects to the aforesaid Dan, believing that they can do no better. And they are probably right, for Dan is certainly onto his job, and is one of those lively chaps whom it is better to keep busy with legitimate employment than to have tearing around loose with nothing much to do except get into mischief.

Flowers for Valentines.

"As a valentine gift or offering, flowers are always considered most appropriate, and the daintily arranged basket of choice flowers or the box of flowers, nicely trimmed and tied with ribbon and accompanied with the note or card bearing an inscription appropriately expressing the sentiment of the sender, has the air of personality and individuality that can hardly be said to go with the most elaborate creation of celluloid and satin, which in most instances owes whatever it may claim in beauty to the fact that it is designed and built in imitation of flowers.

"The use of any particular flower for this day is not indicated so much as quality of flowers, and daintiness of arrangement. This element of daintiness permits the use of many of the smaller flowers like hyacinths, violets, lily of the valley, jonquils, etc., along with choice roses or carnations.

Special Boxes or Hampers.

"The box or hamper in which the flowers are sent, can, with propriety, come in for attention at this time, and if something especially worth while is wanted, it is well to let part of the price go for that item. The designs available for this include heart-shaped boxes and hampers; also the basket-woven box hamper, as well as some creations in birch bark, and the Porto Rico matting. Many of these have an added value, inasmuch as the receptacle may be of practical use afterwards as trinket or work baskets, which is more than can be said of many of the vehicles used by Mr. Cupid in his trade.

"For those who wish to avoid 'fussiness' the plain box of flowers, or the box with the flowers arranged to look their best and apparently tied in the box with a bow of appropriately colored ribbon, will appeal most strongly and is a deservedly popular valentine gift.

Valentine Decorations.

"Most of the social functions taking place during valentine week use the valentine theme to a greater or less degree, and quite generally in the decorative scheme of the apartments or dining table. This is usually indicated by the use of the heart design in some form or other.

"Red paper hearts are much used in some cases, but as they are not properly a florist's material, I shall only mention them where they will fit in with some scheme properly belonging to this department.

"The floral heart for dining table centerpiece with ribbons, usually red, running flat over the cloth between the places to the edge of the table and falling over edge of table and ending in a bow from which may hang a real heart, forms a very striking and satisfactory arrangement.

"Where a valentine shower is wanted a receptacle of proper size made of three or four floral hearts properly hinged and fastened together at the point, so that pulling a ribbon will allow them to open and shower down the contents, is a very nice arrangement. This receptacle it is best to order in advance of the florist, for it takes some little 'know-how' to get them up properly.

For Personal Wear.

"For ladies' corsage bouquets the cluster of violets with holder and chiffon tie is correct, as is also lily of the valley or hyacinths.

"The heart-shaped corsage with much chiffon and an almost shower effect of little bows of baby ribbon is quite the style, too.

"Enchantress carnations and lily of the valley with valley leaf chiffon make a combination that is beautiful and unique."

OLD-FASHIONED BOUQUETS.

The so-called old-fashioned hand bouquets can be made to sell at almost any price the florist pleases, at from 50 cents to $5. Those who featured these bouquets in their St. Valentine's windows last year, and in their newspaper advertising, did an extremely large business, some stores selling hundreds.

There has been a great revival in the popularity of these old-time hand bouquets since the supply houses began offering the appropriate holders. These may be had of paper, in various sizes, at prices so low as not to be worth mentioning, or they may be had of silk, satin and lace, commanding a price greater than many flower stores ever are able to get for a bouquet.

The making of the bouquet itself is a more or less mechanical operation. Most of the stock must be wired. Several fine flowers are grouped for a center and around them ring after ring of symmetrically arranged, tight packed blooms is placed, quantity and quality depending on the price to be charged for the bunch and kind depending largely on the whim of the designer. Almost anything can be used and, in the hands of a person of artistic capabilities, a pleasing result will be achieved.

Two of the illustrations in this issue of The Review show old-fashioned hand bouquets. One shows the front view of the bunch. The holder can be seen only around the edges of the bouquet. The handhold is concealed, and so is the greater part of the ribbon bow on the front. The other old-fashioned bouquet is in a heart-shaped red and white hamper, with arrow decorated cover. The supply houses now make it possible, with the infinite variety of accessories, to show a large range of selection in any retail store.

PLANTS AS VALENTINES.

The St. Valentine's day sales have grown so rapidly in the last few years that the plantsmen have come to the front to demand their share of the business.

In the first place, when the retailers began to push St. Valentine's day, they offered only cut flowers. The public responded most satisfactorily and the increased sales led some of the retailers who grow more or less their own stock to devise ways of offering plants in a form to make them attractive February 14. The first attempt merely was to decorate some of the seasonable varieties, such as tulips and cyclamens, using heart-shaped spangles, Cupid's darts and other suggestions of the day. Then the supply man, being appealed to, offered something better—and it must be confessed that to the ingenuity of the men who manufacture florists' supplies the plantsmen are largely indebted for the popularity their product has obtained at all special flower days.

One of the most attractive illustrations in this issue shows red and white heart-shaped hampers filled with red tulips and tied with big bows of red ribbon on the cover. The edge of the hamper is planted with small ferns, to relieve an otherwise bare appearance at the base of the tulips. The illustration shows front and back view of the same arrangement. NEW YORK FEDERATION.

The New York Federation of Floral Clubs will hold its annual meeting at Ithaca February 12, during Farmers' Week, at the College of Agriculture at Cornell. The following is the program:

9:00 a. m. "Greenhouse Construction" (illustrated), by Professor A. C. Beal.
10:00 a. m. "The Rose and Its Culture" (illustrated), by Dr. E. M. Mills.
11:00 a. m. "Twentieth Century Horticulture" (illustrated), by H. A. Bunyard.
12:00 m. Business session.
2:00 p. m. "Asters and Their Culture" (illustrated), by George Arnold.
3:00 p. m. "Diseases of Florists' Crops" (round-table talk), by Dr. D. Reddick.
6:30 p. m. Horticultural banquet.

In connection with the meeting of the Federation of Floral Clubs, an exhibition will be held. It is desired that all the growers of new varieties of carnations, roses and other flowers will send in exhibits of their stock for this exhibition. From present indications this will be one of the largest of the midwinter exhibitions, and it is hoped that all growers of novelties will participate. Special mention should be made of the horticultural banquet and the address by Dean L. H. Bailey to the assembly on the following evening.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

Public notice is hereby given that the following named varieties of gladioli have been registered by the nomenclature committee of the American Gladiolus Society for the originator, John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y.:

Firefare—Bright, soft salmon-rose, with beautifully marked and rayed center. Flowers large, perfect and of great substance. Spikes stout, compact and perfect in form.

Fireking—Long, graceful spikes, showing half a dozen immense blooms open at the same time. Color, intense fire scarlet. More brilliant than Branchleyensis, Cardinal, Mrs. Francis King or any other variety. It is perfectly grand, and will become the leading cut flower variety of its color.

Mrs. F. M. Lupton—A distinct light rose, equal to Panama or America. Large, wide-spreading flower and long, perfect spike.

Rareway—Large, wide-spreading flower of a rare, bright lilac-pink, with carmine flaked throat. It is a rare and most beautiful and desirable shade of color.

Shedown—Soft, delicate pink flower, exquisitely marked and mottled in center. Enormous spike and large, wide-spreading flower of perfect form.

Southampton—An immense spike of large flowers. Color, a soft orange-rose, sometimes slightly flaked. White bars and light yellow throat. This is quite a distinct and most pleasing color, and a splendid flower in every way.

All of the above are of the Childsii type.

A. C. Beal,
Chairman of Committee.

Larchmont, N. Y.—John Moll will open a new store shortly. Hitherto all stock has been disposed of at the green-houses.

ROSE TROUBLES.

Under separate cover I am mailing a Killarney rose plant. These plants, along with Bridesmaid and Richmond, were planted the latter part of June, Killarney and part of the Bridesmaid and Richmond being young stock and part replanted 2-year-old stock. The plants started nicely and gave two heavy crops, the young stock three crops, not being disbudded. These plants are on concrete benches molded on top of the old wooden benches, the sides being wood. The only drainage is 1-inch round holes spaced from twelve to fourteen inches apart each way. They had two dustings of lime scratched into the soil, one dusting of bone meal and liquid cow manure used two times, each time just before the buds were showing color. Along in October and November the night temperature dropped to 50 degrees or less, perhaps 45 degrees at night, and went up to 100 degrees or more in the day, with full air on. After the last crop the leaves began to drop. This kept up until many plants had no leaves left.

New growth started with many eyes, but was yellow and soon shriveled up when watered. They were not watered heavily; just enough to moisten the soil to the bottom. Many of the plants died altogether. Some of them that were just coming into crop at the time of the low temperature came through fairly well, but not as they should. Lime and sulphur was blown in the air and copper solution used several times. The plants were well cared for and gave good flowers and plenty of them until the leaves began to drop, which started after the low temperature. Most of the young yellow shoots that came were blind, from cut flower shoots, all shoots being cut to three eyes. The stems of many are of a rather purple color now. The only way I can account for the trouble is the low night temperature as stated and it seems to me not by any means enough drainage in the benches, and the molded bench does not take up any water. S. S.

The trouble among your roses, losing their foliage and drying, is due less to the few nights of low temperature than to the inadequate drainage provided. In the warmer months beds dry out so quickly that lack of drainage is not much noticed. In the fall, however, with declining sun power and lower temperature, much less watering is needed and once well soaked, with poor drainage below, a sour and stagnant condition of the soil could hardly be avoided.

Your treatment seems to have been intelligent apart from the lack of drainage and the leaving of the decaying old bench below the concrete one. To secure adequate drainage, the slabs should be spread half an inch or so apart and below this a moldy, sour, decaying mass should not be tolerated; rather a good bed of stones, coarse cinders or other suitable, sweet drainage.

The few low night temperatures may have aggravated your trouble and helped to bring it to a head. I would buy new stock from some reputable firm and not take any cuttings from even the best of your plants. Rosa.

WINTERING ROSES IN CELLAR.

I have several hundred rose plants, hardy teas, hybrid teas, hybrid perpetuals and hardy climbers, stored in my basement, to carry them through the winter, dormant, for spring planting. I tied them in bundles of twelve each, stood them upright and placed enough soil about the roots to protect them. The plants had several freezings before digging, but they had not dropped their foliage. I noticed the other day that they were beginning to mold and I found that they were starting a root growth. I was advised to remove them from the soil and to store them in straw. I opened each bundle that was affected and shook them out well, tied them up loosely, packed them in old hay and put hay around the roots in the basement. The basement is damp, but can be aired out well. It has no heat in it and is frost-proof except in severe weather. I do not want them to shrivel up or to sprout out. I want to keep them for late spring planting. Will they keep this way? Should they be watered to prevent drying out? Would sawdust be better to pack them in? If so, I think I could get it. Anyway, I could get shavings from a planing mill. I would prefer to use the hay if it will do. Any information on the subject will be greatly appreciated.

F. M. D.

You had your roses properly stored in the first place, and all the attention needed was to shake the falling leaves from them. Keep them well aired and maintain a low temperature. Probably you have ventilated them insufficiently. If kept at all close, both roots and shoots are bound to start. The fact that they were making some roots was no reason for moving them, and the advice to store them in straw was not given by any practical man, for you could hardly adopt any plan which would sooner dry out and kill your plants.

Pack your roses either in damp soil or sand. Keep them freely aired and the temperature as near freezing as you can, or even a little below it, and they will come through all right. Some people tie the plants in bundles and pack damp moss about the roots, but moist earth or sand is much better.

NITRATE OF SODA FOR ROSES.

Please publish the amount of nitrate of soda that should be given rose bushes in the garden, and state whether it should be given in water or sprinkled dry on the ground.

W. B. J.

Nitrate of soda is not a fertilizer I would suggest for hardy roses. When used at all it must be used with great care, or it will do far more harm than good. If used as a liquid, one pound to thirty or forty gallons suffices. If applied as a top-dressing, do not give more than at the rate of 150 to 200 pounds per acre. Do not continue giving the plants doses of nitrate of soda. It may stimulate a rank, soft growth, but that is not what you want. Cow manure applied in a fresh or green condition is far superior to nitrate of soda for roses, both under glass and outdoors. Bone and dried blood are other useful fertilizers for hardy roses.

SINGLE VIOLETS.

I would like to ask if single violets, to be grown successfully, can be housed as early as September 1; also when is the best time to do so? What is the best variety of single violet? How far apart should they be planted? Also, do plants in the field require any shading?

A. J. S.

It would be a great mistake to house single violets as early as September 1. The result would inevitably be a big crop of foliage and few flowers. These violets, in order to have the best results with them, should be left out until they have had one or two moderate freezings before lifting. Usually they can be lifted during October, although some growers leave them out even later. I do not care to subject them to a lower temperature than 24 degrees, although the plants will survive one as low as zero. If you lifted your plants early and they are blooming poorly, you can improve them by allowing them to freeze for a few hours. I would not let the temperature go below 28 degrees. Plants in the field need no shading, but require constant cultivation through the hot months.

C. W.

VIOLET BUDS NOT OPENING.

Enclosed you will find three violet buds of different sizes, one when the bud has just started from the crown, the next when it is half-grown and the third when it is almost ready to develop. I should like you to inspect these buds and help us to locate the trouble which we are now having. The plants are in perfect condition and full of buds, but when the buds reach a certain size, almost ready to open, they seem to stop growing and to wilt. They have kept on the same way for the last five weeks. It puzzles me that the buds are strong and healthy when they are almost full-grown. I also send you a small amount of soil. Please look at that; I think it is good for violets. Any information regarding this trouble will be highly appreciated.

S. B.

The violet stems are of good average length; some of the strongest are ten inches long. They appear perfectly healthy. The reason for the buds failing to open is hard to determine, as I do not know anything of your culture. The soil must be pretty good, or you would not get such stems. What temperature are you giving your plants? The night reading should be as near 40 degrees as possible. On warm nights it is not possible to keep it as cool as this, but the ventilators should be wide open in? If so, I think I could get it. Anyway, I could get shavings from a planing mill. I would prefer to use the hay if it will do. Any information on the subject will be greatly appreciated.

F. M. D.

You had your roses properly stored in the first place, and all the attention needed was to shake the falling leaves from them. Keep them well aired and maintain a low temperature. Probably you have ventilated them insufficiently. If kept at all close, both roots and shoots are bound to start. The fact that they were making some roots was no reason for moving them, and the advice to store them in straw was not given by any practical man, for you could hardly adopt any plan which would sooner dry out and kill your plants.

Pack your roses either in damp soil or sand. Keep them freely aired and the temperature as near freezing as you can, or even a little below it, and they will come through all right. Some people tie the plants in bundles and pack damp moss about the roots, but moist earth or sand is much better.

NITRATE OF SODA FOR ROSES.

Please publish the amount of nitrate of soda that should be given rose bushes in the garden, and state whether it should be given in water or sprinkled dry on the ground.

W. B. J.

Nitrate of soda is not a fertilizer I would suggest for hardy roses. When used at all it must be used with great care, or it will do far more harm than good. If used as a liquid, one pound to thirty or forty gallons suffices. If applied as a top-dressing, do not give more than at the rate of 150 to 200 pounds per acre. Do not continue giving the plants doses of nitrate of soda. It may stimulate a rank, soft growth, but that is not what you want. Cow manure applied in a fresh or green condition is far superior to nitrate of soda for roses, both under glass and outdoors. Bone and dried blood are other useful fertilizers for hardy roses.

SINGLE VIOLETS.

I would like to ask if single violets, to be grown successfully, can be housed as early as September 1; also when is the best time to do so? What is the best variety of single violet? How far apart should they be planted? Also, do plants in the field require any shading?

A. J. S.

It would be a great mistake to house single violets as early as September 1. The result would inevitably be a big crop of foliage and few flowers. These violets, in order to have the best results with them, should be left out until they have had one or two moderate freezings before lifting. Usually they can be lifted during October, although some growers leave them out even later. I do not care to subject them to a lower temperature than 24 degrees, although the plants will survive one as low as zero. If you lifted your plants early and they are blooming poorly, you can improve them by allowing them to freeze for a few hours. I would not let the temperature go below 28 degrees. Plants in the field need no shading, but require constant cultivation through the hot months.

C. W.

VIOLET BUDS NOT OPENING.

Enclosed you will find three violet buds of different sizes, one when the bud has just started from the crown, the next when it is half grown and the third when it is almost ready to develop. I should like you to inspect these buds and help us to locate the trouble which we are now having. The plants are in perfect condition and full of buds, but when the buds reach a certain size, almost ready to open, they seem to stop growing and to wilt. They have kept on the same way for the last five weeks. It puzzles me that the buds are strong and healthy when they are almost full-grown. I also send you a small amount of soil. Please look at that; I think it is good for violets. Any information regarding this trouble will be highly appreciated.

S. B.

The violet stems are of good average length; some of the strongest are ten inches long. They appear perfectly healthy. The reason for the buds failing to open is hard to determine, as I do not know anything of your culture. The soil must be pretty good, or you would not get such stems. What temperature are you giving your plants? The night reading should be as near 40 degrees as possible. On warm nights it is not possible to keep it as cool as this, but the ventilators should be wide open on such nights and the heat shut off. A rise of 10 degrees in the daytime is all right, but on dull, cold days if you can hold it around 45 degrees it will be better.

Be sure your plants are moist at the roots. It is a common error to under-water in midwinter. The surface soil may appear moist though it is quite dry below. Soak your plants well. If the soil seems lacking in plant food, add some weak liquid stimulant. Air freely and keep your night temperature down to 40 degrees and the flowers should open satisfactorily. C. W.

PINCHING BEGONIAS.

Would it be proper to pinch back begonias when young, to make them short, bushy plants? E. S.

Tuberous-rooted begonias should not be pinched, but fibrous-rooted varieties, such as Lorraine, Glory of Cincinnati, Vernon, Erfordii, Scharffiana, Weltoniensis, gigantea rosea and many others, require a moderate amount of pinching. C. W.

New Britain, Conn.—The business of Arthur G. Volz has been incorporated, under the name of the Volz Floral Co., with an authorized capital of $20,000. The incorporators are Arthur G. Volz, Rose Volz and Albert Volz.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Bouvardias.

To increase the stock of any of the bouvardias, the present time, when fire heat is being steadily used and there is a good heat in the propagating bench, should be taken advantage of. Root propagation is much the best except in the case of Humboldtii, which increases readily from either roots or soft-wood cuttings. Use the thicker portions of the roots, which need not be over one-fourth to one-half inch long. Merely cover with sand, keep well moistened and, as soon as the young growths are an inch long, pot them off singly.

Tuberous Begonias.

If it is desired to have a batch of those showy and persistent blooming plants, the tuberous begonias, in flower around Memorial day, start the tubers now in flats of sand and leaf-mold. Place them in a warm, moist house and, after the first watering, damp rather sparingly until growth is well started. Pot off singly before the shoots become too far advanced, using a light but rich compost, containing plenty of sand to make it porous. Tuberous begonias, once they are well started, succeed best in a comparatively cool house; 50 degrees at night is sufficiently high.

Gloxinias.

Gloxinias can be started in the same way as recommended for tuberous begonias. They, however, need a much warmer house to make their growth in. They must also be protected from the direct rays of the sun or their leaves will soon become disfigured, particularly if water happens to be lying on them. Gloxinias can be started at any time between now and the early part of April. Those placed in heat now should flower in May.

Seed Purchases.

A good proportion of the 1913 seed catalogues are now at hand. They are interesting to look over during the long winter evenings, the descriptions of the novelties being particularly inviting. I always like to try a few of these. I do not expect all to live up to their highly painted descriptions, but one or two may prove to be desirable acquisitions and worth extended culture a year later. It is well to place orders for seeds early; the seedsmen will give your orders much more prompt attention than is possible later in the season. Therefore I advise ordering now, before stocks become depleted and while the dealers are not overburdened with orders, rather than putting it off until you actually need the seeds and when vexatious delays are almost unavoidable.

Jerusalem Cherries.

Sow the seeds of Jerusalem cherries now if you want strong, bushy, well-fruited plants for next Thanksgiving and Christmas. Pot off singly when large enough to handle. Gradually harden off and plant outdoors early in May in well enriched ground. You can also propagate from cuttings now if desired. These root easily and can be treated just the same later as seedlings. They do not make as fine, bushy plants as the seedlings, but ripen berries a little earlier. Personally, I much prefer seedlings.

Gardenias.

Take a good sized batch of cuttings of gardenias now and place in a case where they can be kept tolerably close. Spray freely; in fact, you can hardly overwater them. Herein lies one of the rocks on which many growers fail; viz., giving the cuttings an inadequate water supply. On bright days, damp them over at least three times a day, and less on dull days. You need not worry about the cuttings damping off. Given a brisk bottom heat and plenty of moisture, the cuttings should be rooted and fit to pot off in four or five weeks. Keep them close for a few days until they become established; then stand them on a bench in any house with a minimum of 65 degrees.

Corsage Bouquet of Cattleyas and Valley.

Corsage Bouquet of Violets with Cattleya in Center.
(Lilies of the Valley or a Gardenia may be used in place of the Cattleya.)

Genistas.

The genistas wanted for Easter should now go into a cool greenhouse. They should never be subjected to any forcing, or they will speedily go to pieces when placed in a flower store, and much quicker in a dry living room. The cooler that genistas, ericas and acacias are grown, the more substance will their flowers have. If a batch of cuttings has not yet been put in, place in sand now. A propagating bench which roots carnations and mums is just what they want. These will make good stock in 6-inch pots for next winter.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Atlanta, Ga.—With a listed indebtedness aggregating $2,483.96, of which $179 is for wages and $140.71 other debts preferred by law, the balance being unsecured claims, Hugh C. Waters, doing business as the Atlanta Seed & Produce Co., January 22 filed with Deputy Clerk Fred Beers, of the federal district court, a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The papers indicate assets amounting to $697.

New York, N. Y.—Joseph G. Leikens, florist, residing at 251 East Forty-ninth street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $3,026 and no assets. He has a military uniform, bearskin shako, sword and side arms valued at $150, which are exempt. Among the creditors are Elsie De Wolfe, who obtained a judgment against him January 4 for $540, on which execution was issued to the sheriff, but nothing could be found to levy upon, and Mrs.

Elizabeth W. Ellis, $930 on a note. Of the liabilities, $270 were contracted in Newport, R. I., for storage of plants and flowers and for water. He has been in the florists' line for several years. The list of creditors does not include any New York wholesalers. It is as follows:

SOWING CANNA SEEDS.

For the benefit of those who sow canna seeds or any other hard seeds that must be cut, I should like to state how I do it. Just take one of those small emery wheels and touch the seed against it while you turn the handle with the other hand. Zip! The hole is cut. In two weeks seventy-five per cent of the canna seeds I sowed were up.

Corsage Bouquet of Sweet Peas and Valley.

THRIPS.

You will find some carnation buds enclosed. Please tell me what the trouble is. It is becoming general in the house. The stems and foliage are healthy. J. D. B.

Those brown edges on your carnation blooms are caused by thrips. You will do well to get rid of these before the arrival of warmer weather, or you will lose a considerable portion of your crop when spring comes. Get some one of the nicotine preparations and apply it vigorously. Do not increase the strength much over the directions on the can, but apply two or three times as often as recommended for a few weeks, until you can see that you have the pests conquered. If you use steam for heating, a good plan is to put some on one of the pipes in each house once or twice each week. Put it in an oiling can and let it run on the pipe as you walk along slowly. A. F. J. B.

CUTWORMS ON CARNATIONS.

In looking over my carnations today, I was surprised to find so many of the buds hollowed out by some insect. The varieties are mostly Enchantress and White Enchantress. Kindly advise me through the columns of The Review. C. F. K.

Your carnation buds are being eaten by one of the several varieties of cutworm. At this time of the year, and until spring, these pests give the carnation grower considerable trouble. If you will take a bright light and go through your houses late at night, you can catch them feeding on the buds. Or you can poison them by mixing bran and sugar or molasses, and mixing into it enough Paris green to make it deadly. Drop a little of this here and there on the edgeboard and through the bed. A. F. J. B.

SPLIT CALYXES.

We are greatly troubled with our carnations splitting, and if you can offer us some suggestions as to how to prevent them from doing so we shall feel greatly indebted to you. The rooted cuttings were received last February from a large florists' establishment. Could there be anything in the plants themselves to cause their splitting—for instance, if they had been taken from poor plants at the start? The plants grew well outside last summer and we moved them into the house about October 15, with large balls of earth. They were carefully syringed and aired, and have also grown well in the house. They are free from disease, as far as can be seen.

The plants were set in the bench 8x9 inches apart. The soil used was a good, sandy, clay loam, taken from newly cleared land. There was mixed with the soil about five parts of cow manure.

This was mixed in the bench just before planting. We have kept the temperature between 48 and 52 degrees at night and have given plenty of air during the day, possibly too much. We have given the soil a thin coat of wood ashes three times, but still the stems do not seem brittle. We do not water them until they are quite dry, but then we soak them down well. The buds split long before opening and seem to be unusually short and heavy. The varieties are Enchantress, Dorothy Gordon, Alma Ward, White Perfection and Beacon. They all split about alike. A whole calyx on a flower is a rare exception. It seems that the flowers on the Beacons are getting smaller or more single and the stems are also getting weaker and light in color.

I have helped to grow carnations in other establishments and given them almost the same treatment, except that I used sheep manure instead of cow manure, and the splits were extremely few. Our location is western Michigan. Any information will be greatly appreciated. L. L.

Either one of two things, and perhaps both together, may be at the bottom of your trouble. First, October 15 is entirely too late to house carnations and expect good results in your latitude. Two months earlier would be the proper time, and even two weeks earlier than that would be still better. Although your plants have grown nicely, yet they were not established when winter set in, and could not be expected to give as good results as plants which had two months' start of them.

Second, you are not watering them properly. By letting the soil become quite dry, you slightly check the growth, and then, when you soak them, you cause a jump in the growth. If the plants were not blooming, you would not notice this, but the bloom will show any check or jump in development before any other part of the plant. And the calyx seems to be the first to suffer; that is because the calyx is always strained to its utmost just before the petals have pushed through the end of the calyx. Any check at that period will cause it to give way.

Your soil seems to be all right, and so does the temperature. A. F. J. B.

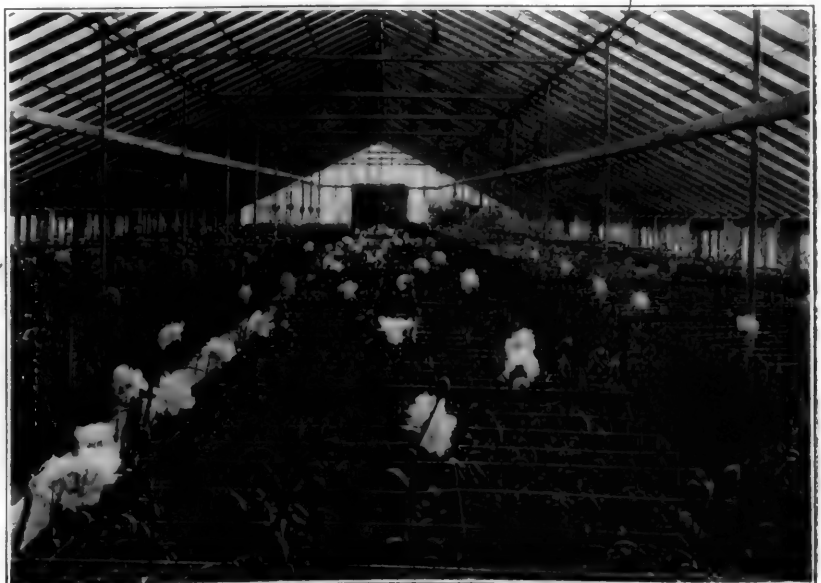

CARNATION RUST.

I enclose samples of carnation leaves, showing some disease. Please tell me what it is, with cause and cure. H. E. R.

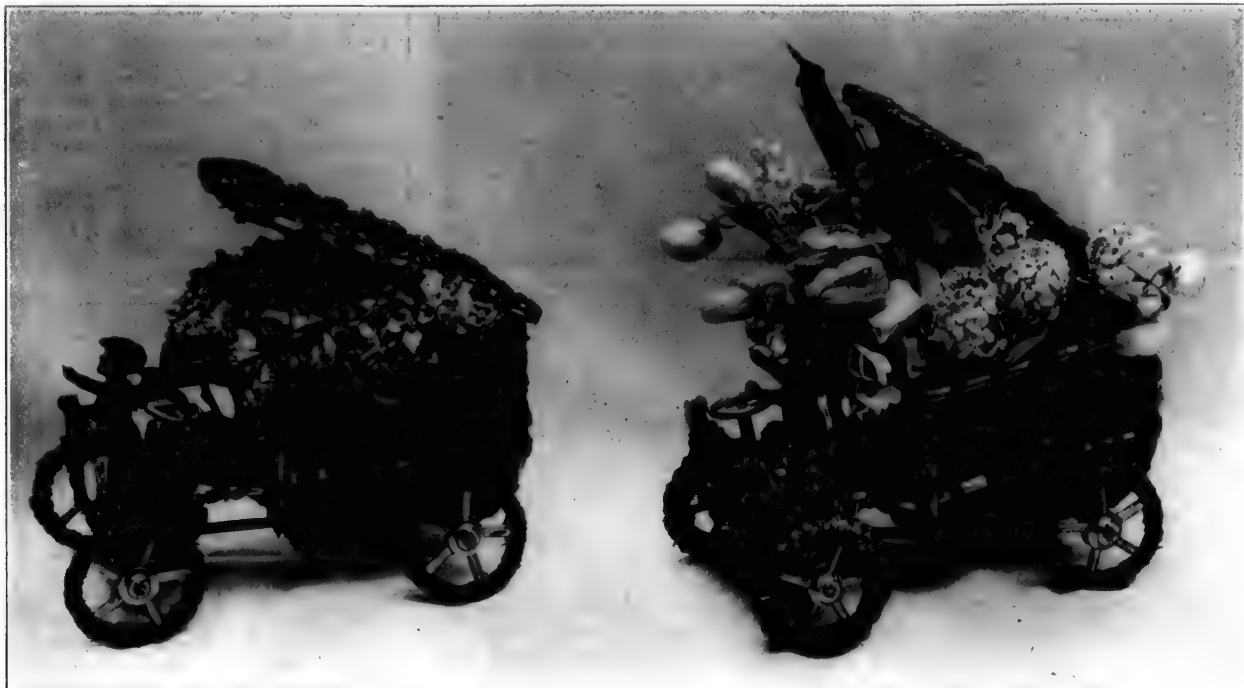

The specimens had several rust pustules on them. Unless there is considerable of this on your plants, you need not be alarmed about your crop. Keep the atmosphere dry and bracing, and as the sun gains strength the trouble will likely disappear. A. F. J. B.

STARR, OF GOLDSBORO.

S. A. Starr, proprietor of the Goldsboro Floral Co., Goldsboro, N. C., is only 22 years of age. His establishment consists of three greenhouses, with the necessary service buildings. One house, 25x100, shown in the accompanying illustration, is planted to carnations, the varieties being Enchantress, in three colors, and Beacon. Two other houses are used for mums, peas, roses, valley, Easter lilies and callas, snapdragons, bulbous stock and a general line of bedding and pot plants. Mr. Starr also leases another plant, owned by the Denmark Floral Co., in which he grows cut flowers and plants for the cemetery trade, the establishment being advantageously located adjoining the burying ground. Goldsboro is a town of between 5,000 and 6,000 population, in addition to which there is a good population in adjoining towns where there are no florists. Business is so good with Mr. Starr that his two establishments do not produce anywhere near as much stock as he needs. During the winter months he has regular shipments of cut flowers from the northern markets, mostly from Philadelphia.

STOCKS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Please give me the names of some good dwarf double stocks in pink, white and lavender. I want these in flower for May 30, 1913. When is the time to sow the seed? J. G.

There is nothing better than a good selection of giant ten weeks' stocks for Memorial day work. Sow the seed from the middle to the end of February, starting it in shallow flats of light soil. Cover the seed with fine sand and it will germinate better and be less liable to damping off than when covered with soil. C. W.

STOCKS FOR OUTDOORS.

Would you kindly tell me the date when to sow stocks for outdoor culture? What varieties would you advise? How far should they be planted apart in the field? H. B.

Make a first sowing in flats in a greenhouse late in February. Plant these out in May, when the weather has become settled. Make additional sowings until June 1. The later batches can be started advantageously in cold-frames. Plant in rows thirty inches apart, allowing twelve to fifteen inches between the plants, cultivating freely right through the growing season. Early varieties are Beauty of Nice, Crimson Column, White Column and Queen Alexandra. Good main crop sorts are Giant Ten Weeks and Cut and Come Again, also called Perpetual Perfection. C. W.

GERANIUMS ROTTING.

Is there any way to treat geraniums so they will not rot? We do not have good luck with such varieties as Jean Viaud, Dryden and others. They are handled exactly the same as S. A. Nutt. E. S.

You do not state whether you have trouble with cuttings rotting, or established plants in pots. Most probably you are overwatering them. When you put in cuttings, use a 2¼-inch pot for each, using sandy loam. Place on a bench in full sun and where they can get some bottom heat. The temperature of the house need not be over 48 to 50 degrees at night; they will damp off more in a warmer house. Water sparingly after the first thorough soaking, until the cuttings are rooted, then more freely. It is a good plan to run bedding geraniums a little on the dry side at all stages of their growth and not to spray them overhead at all. C. W.

GOLDEN SPURS NOT FLOWERING.

What is the cause of Golden Spur narcissi not blooming? I boxed 1,500 about October 20 and covered them with five inches of ashes. One box not being full, I put in some double Von Sions. The Von Sions are blooming, but though the Golden Spurs formed buds, the buds stayed down well into the bulb and rotted. C. H. C.

Your experience is a common one. Golden Spurs and other trumpet narcissi often fail to bloom if forced early. They will not stand as hard forcing as tulips and should not be subjected to a higher night temperature than 55 degrees. Narcissi placed in the soil October 20 should not be placed in heat earlier than January 5 to 15. C. W.

GIGANTEUMS FOR EASTER.

I have some giganteums from four to six inches high, growing in a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees and a day temperature of 55 degrees. This is all I can do with my present heating capacity, except on sunny days or in mild weather. I am watering with water as warm as I dare to use. Can I make it for Easter? C. P. N.

You lack sufficient heat to get your lilies in bloom for Easter. Giganteums, even if given 70 degrees at night, would hardly be on time. This lily needs a brisk heat from start to finish. I find an average night temperature of 65 degrees suits it best, with 5 degrees additional if the plants are at all late. Easter comes unusually early this year and your lilies should show their buds plainly when Lent comes in, February 5, in order to be on time. Under the circumstances it would be a waste of energy to attempt to have your plants in flower with so low a temperature to grow them in. C. W.

DRACÆNAS FROM MIXED SEED.

I should like to ask you about my Dracæna indivisa. I bought seed and I have some nice dracænas, but some have a white vein in the center of the leaf and the leaf is narrow, while others have a red vein in the leaf and are wide. Are they a mixed lot or not? I like the latter; they sell better. E. S.

The seed you used must have been mixed. The true indivisa has green leaves and no white or red veins down the centers, as yours have. Probably all will prove equally hardy, however, and the narrow-leaved ones will come in useful for vase or piazza-box planting. C. W.

ROOTING SANTOLINA CUTTINGS.

We have not been successful in rooting santolinas, which we use for carpet bedding. Any hint would be appreciated. J. M.

Santolinas are of easy propagation. Give them a warm cutting bench, such as you would use for alternantheras, and practically every cutting should root. Water freely, protect from sun and air currents, and you should have no trouble whatever in rooting this plant. C. W.

Middleport, N. Y.—It is said that the new section of John H. Gould's greenhouses was partly wrecked by a heavy fall of snow in the first part of January and that the stock was ruined.

SWEET PEAS DROPPING BUDS.

What is the cause of sweet peas dropping their buds? I usually run my house at 50 degrees, but several times during this warm weather my man let the temperature get up to 65 degrees. Did that cause it? C. H. C.

You do not state whether 50 degrees has been your night or day temperature. If it rose as high as 65 degrees at night, it would be accountable in part for the dropping of the buds. The present winter has been a remarkably warm one and on some nights it has been difficult to keep even a night temperature of 50 degrees. On dull days 55 to 58 degrees is about right as a maximum, while on clear, sunny days it can run up to 65 degrees, with plenty of ventilation.

Violent changes in temperature not infrequently start buds to drop. Another cause is partial dryness at the root. The soil may appear moist on the surface and yet be quite dry below. Ventilate freely on every possible occasion, keep as even a temperature as you can, be sure the roots are sufficiently moist and avoid the use of chemical stimulants and your plants should soon show an improvement. C. W.

EARLY SWEET PEES.

I read an article in The Review of December 19 about sowing sweet peas

February 1. Does that mean outside, and when would they come into bloom? I should like to have some early ones and have them in bloom by Decoration day. What would be a good kind to sow outside, as stated in The Review? I am located in northwestern Oregon. J. J. S.

The date given, February 1, was for outdoor sowing in Alabama. Farther north, of course, the date might be one or even two months later. Even in Alabama, sowing at so early a date would only be possible if the ground were open. Sweet peas should flower with you outdoors for Memorial day, but, to be more certain of an early picking, use some of the earlier flowering or forcing sorts, such as Christmas Pink, Mrs. Sim and Mont Blanc, in addition to such varieties as Countess Spencer, Frank Dolby and Nora Unwin. They will not flower persistently, like the Spencer sorts, but will flower at an earlier date. Also start in a coldframe a quantity of any of the sorts you plan to go in pots, setting them out five or six weeks later. For instance, if your ground opens up March 1, sow February 1, and plant out about the middle of March. This will insure a much earlier lot of flowers. C. W.

CATTLEYAS IN KENTUCKY.

All over the country growers have been taking up the cattleya and specializing in it with much success. C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati, sends The Review the photograph reproduced herewith with the statement that it shows a house of Cattleya Trianae now in flower with L. A. Fennell, at Cynthiana, Ky. Mr. Critchell is Mr. Fennell's Cincinnati agent. Cynthiana is a county seat well down in Kentucky, south of Cincinnati and it has no local market for cattleyas, but that has not deterred Mr. Fennell from making them his specialty with marked success.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The market has not been fully up to the January standard, probably due to the open weather. Roses are scarce, while carnations are becoming more plentiful every day. Some fine Golden Spurs, La Reine tulips and other early spring flowers are on the market, quality unusually good.

Various Notes.

Novelty night at the Florists' Club will be Monday, February 10. Exhibits of new roses, new carnations, new geraniums and novelties in florists' ware, such as baskets, corsage cups, etc., have been promised by the introducers. This is the first of a series of interesting events to be put on at the club's monthly meetings, by the entertainment committee. Meetings hereafter are to be held once each month instead of twice, as formerly, the second Monday of each month being the date. Don't forget this. The entertainment committee appointed by President Adam Graham to serve for two months is George W. Smith, Guy Bate and Frank Friedley. The committee promises to spread a substantial lunch in addition to the display of new flowers, and they intend to make this a meeting worth while. Remember the date, February 10.

The bowling club tournament started January 27. Bowling every Monday night. Come to see the fun. F. A. F.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Flowers are now accumulating in the markets and there is a considerable surplus of some varieties. We still have weather more suggestive of April than January and this is bringing flowers on with a rush, bulbous flowers never having been so abundant in January. Roses are not in heavy supply and have declined less in value than other flowers. Beauties are rather scarce and prices of these show no decline. Short-stemmed stock of all roses has been in good demand, but the better grades are moving rather sluggishly. Flowers lack substance and keeping qualities, owing to the warm weather.

Carnations have taken a sharp drop and quantities are now being sold at $1 per hundred. The best make $3. There has also been a considerable drop in violets. Sweet peas are arriving in large numbers and are down in price. Bulbous stock is seen in great quantities and of grand quality for January. Double daffodils are selling rather better than the more refined singles. Such snapdragons as arrive sell with ease. The same holds good of yellow marguerites and bachelor's buttons.

Lily of the valley has softened in price, but callas and lilies have held up well. Cattleyas still are decidedly druggy. Gardenias are more abundant and selling somewhat lower. The call for asparagus and ferns has not been robust.

There is a fair business being done in pot plants, such as ericas, genistas, cyclamens, acacias, primulas, lilacs and azaleas.

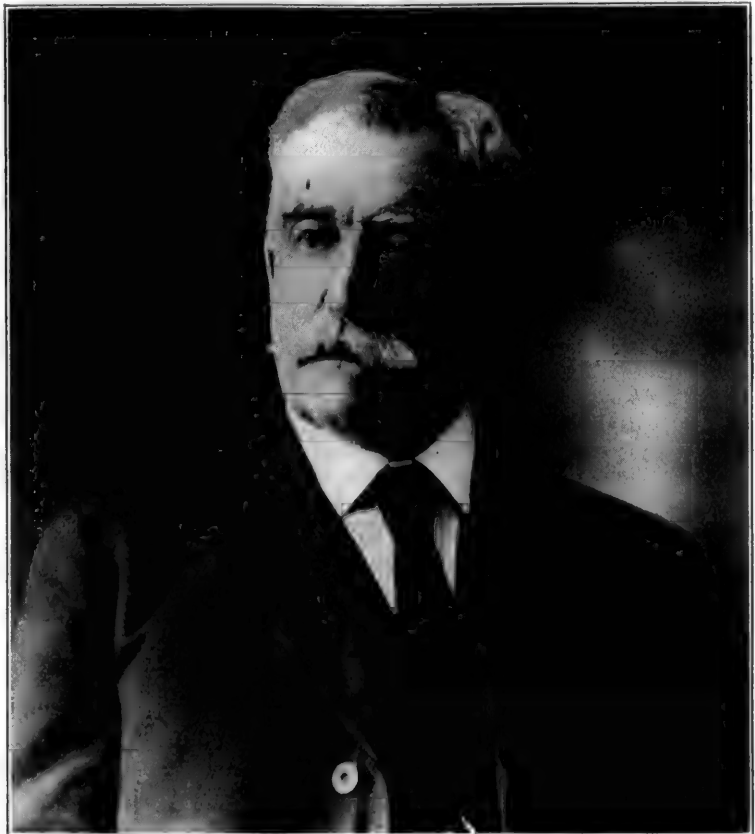

Various Notes.

The midwinter show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society occurs February 1 and 2, at Horticultural hall. There are classes for primulas, azaleas, begonias, orchids, various bulbous plants, etc., also for roses, carnations, violets and sweet peas. A good display is expected.

A fire, due to crossed wires, which was discovered at 3 a. m. January 24, burned through part of the roof over the Boston Coöperative Market, and smoke, fire and water damaged the interior considerably. H. M. Robinson & Co. lost considerable stock in their cases of sundries, such as ribbons, etc. W. H. Elliott's salesroom, directly above the wholesale market, escaped with comparatively slight injury. A few windows were broken, but little damage was done to flowers. Repairs were started as soon as the insurance was adjusted and the present week will see these practically completed. There were, fortunately, comparatively few flowers or plants in the flower market, or the loss would have been much heavier.

"WHO'S WHO—AND WHY"

MICHAEL H. NORTON.

OLDEST of the living ex-presidents of the S. A. F. are Robert Craig, E. G. Hill and John N. May. Then comes Michael H. Norton, who presided at the Toronto convention in 1891 and who was for years a prominent figure in trade circles in Boston. He retired from the business a few years ago and is now 70 years of age. Norton Bros. were famous in their day. They built a greenhouse 200 feet long when such a dimension was a marvel; they were the first to grow violets in a greenhouse, and more than any other growers, their success with Bon Silene rose brought that variety, shortly after its introduction, into the wide popularity it at one time enjoyed. There is nothing Mr. Norton more enjoys than talking over the old times in the flower business.

and Frank Murray. The club will hold a carnation night February 18, for which many exhibits are already promised. There will be papers by one or more well known experts.

F. H. Houghton this week has attractively arranged baskets of amaryllis, camellias and single narcissi in his windows.

James Wheeler, of Natick, reports snapdragons as doing finely with him this season. He has had no trouble in getting $12 per hundred for all his best spikes. In carnations Benora, White Wonder, White Perfection and Pink Delight are leaders.

H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, is one of our largest and most successful bulb specialists, sending in thousands daily of such varieties as La Reine tulip, double Von Sion and Golden Spur narcissi.

W. D. Howard, of Milford, has some of the finest Mrs. C. W. Ward carnations coming into the Boston market this season. Of other varieties, Penn, Winsor, Pink Delight, Beacon and White Wonder are of top-notch quality.

Galvin, at his Tremont street store, has one of his large show windows filled with a fine display of plants of Cattleya Trianae from F. J. Dolansky, of Lynn.

John K. Alexander, of East Bridgewater, has taken advantage of the extremely warm January weather to plant an acre of peonies, purchased from the estate of the late Geo. Hollis, of South Weymouth. State Forester Rane has a large force of men planting white pines on state reservations and numerous orchardists have planted fruit trees, something unusual for the first month of the year.

E. H. Borowski, of Roslindale, built two new lean-to houses last season, in addition to a Lord & Burnham house 35 x 100. He grows pot plants exclusively and no finer ramblers, cyclamens and azaleas are seen in the local market. He has also built a garage for an auto car, to be used for delivering his plants.

Work is being pushed ahead with all possible expedition at the new wholesale flower market in Winthrop Square. At the opening, which will be about the middle of February, there will be a fine exhibition of flowers and interesting exercises. This will be the finest wholesale market Boston has ever had, and if the committee gives it the necessary publicity, all available stall space should soon be occupied.

Albert Roper, of Tewksbury, is sending some fine sweet peas to the Boston Flower Exchange. He has some good seedling carnations, a scarlet being promising.

Harry Quint, who recently opened a flower store at 164 Tremont street, is having good business. He carries a fine line of stock.

Wax Bros., on Tremont street, in their attractive window displays have some fine vases of yellow annual chrysanthemums. One window is devoted to a display of hyacinths in pans. These are extremely well grown.

W. P. Rich, secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, is convalescing from an attack of the grip. Single violets with most of the growers are not in size or color equal to those of former and cooler winters.

Zinn's, on Park street, has this week a capital orchid display.

At Carbone's I noticed some beautifully flowered plants of Erica codonodes magnifica, also a fine assortment of amaryllis and a host of attractive miscellaneous flowers.

Visitors the last week included F. G. Sealey, representing Julius Roehrs Co.; G. F. Struck, of Knight & Struck Co., New York, and H. P. Hodgkins, of the Moore Seed Co., Philadelphia.

Willow Hill Greenhouses have this week a novelty in well flowered myosotis in pots, which sell well.

The warm weather has given quite a little fillip to business at the seed stores. Some growers are already sowing peas and sweet peas and figure on excellent crops by sowing this early.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The market prospects are much brighter than a week ago. The general supply has slackened somewhat, while the demand is much better than it was. All roses, with the exception of white, are running short of the call, while the whites, too, are selling clean. The medium lengths enjoy the heaviest call and are, fortunately, in the largest supply. Richmond is pretty well off crop. The same is true of Beauties. Sweet peas are cleaning up fast. Carnations are moving much better than a fortnight ago and at the opening and close of each week all are easily taken up. The white is, however, the slowest seller. The average quality is high. The smaller blooms, such as violets, orchids, valley and gardenias, are finding a somewhat better market than before, but the demand is not yet good enough to take them all. Callas and Easter lilies sell well. All bulbous stock, too, with the exception of Paper Whites, finds a good market.

Various Notes.

Frank & Sons, Portland, Ind., are sending in a fine lot of roses. L. H. Kyrk is their consignee.

Max Rudolph is practically the only retailer in town who was actively pushing carnations for McKinley day in advance of the day. For the last week he has been decorating his windows to remind the public of the day. With this advertising and with his own elegant carnations, Mr. Rudolph deserves to clean up handsomely as a reward for his efforts.

C. E. Critchell says he has been finding a good market for orchids, valley and gardenias.

An unprecedented early call for wire hanging baskets has kept the wire-working force at E. G. Gillett's busy for the last fortnight.

Miss Margaret Weiland, after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Olinger, has returned to her home in Evanston, Ill.

Miss Mae Carroll has returned from a trip on which she had good business everywhere.

Hereafter Joe Beran, of the J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., will have to be called "Our Hero." At a fire at Third and Vine streets January 27 he assisted in juggling a hose to the top floor.

G. Brunner & Sons had another large wedding decoration January 29.

Recent visitors: Mr. Peal, of Centerville, Ind.; W. H. Kirby, of Quincy, Mich. C. H. H.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

Business last week was good. Funeral work was plentiful and, as the Lenten season is drawing near, social activities are at their height. All social functions are being crowded in before Lent. These conditions are always beneficial to the florists. The social calendar last week included several prominent weddings and a number of receptions. All retailers seem to have had their share of the business.

Roses and carnations were not plentiful on this market last week; in fact, on several days some of the retailers were compelled to draw on Minneapolis growers for stock. Bulbous stock is plentiful and the demand equal to the supply.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association was held at the Holm & Olson store, Tuesday, January 21. A good local representation was present and Minneapolis was also well represented.

S. A. Jamieson, the Twin City representative of the Geo. M. Garland Co., Des Plaines, Ill., addressed the meeting with an interesting talk on greenhouse construction of the present day. N. C. Hansen exhibited some fine blooms of White Enchantress and White Wonder. This stock was well grown and the judges reported it as scoring eighty points.

A committee was appointed for a dance to be held in St. Paul in the near future. Messrs. Olson, Hansen, Vogt and Eckhardt, of St. Paul, and Messrs. Rice and Will, of Minneapolis, comprise that committee.

Elected to membership were: S. A. Jamieson, Oscar Magnuson and H. Neilson.

The next meeting will be held at R. A. Latham's establishment, February 18.

Various Notes.

O. J. Olson, of Holm & Olson, has been confined to his home for a few days. He is not seriously ill, however.

Holm & Olson recently lost two of their best horses. These will no doubt be replaced by a machine in the spring.

The Riverside Greenhouses had the misfortune last week to have their automobile collide with a Selby Lake street car. The machine, however, was only slightly damaged and no one was injured.

The Warrendale Floral Co. is cutting some fine antirrhinum. This is good stock and brings top-notch prices.

The wedding of a daughter of James J. Hill next week is expected to bring a fine order to someone. C. R. F.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

The third week in January has been phenomenal hereabouts on account of the bursting forth of buds on trees and shrubs, and in some instances leaves have actually commenced to come forth. Business has been especially good, owing to the large number of social gatherings, many of which, though small, have called for an unusual lot of flowers and decorations. Bulbous stock is in good supply, and the market has eased off considerably in roses and carnations. Funeral work continues brisk.

Various Notes.

Richard M. Bowen, treasurer of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, was elected vice-president of the New England Fruit Association at the annual meeting at Boston last week.

At the monthly meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, January 20, plans for the coming year were discussed and a committee was appointed to endeavor to secure a large representation from the society at the International Flower Show in New York. Notice was given of the illness of the treasurer, James Hockey, at his home in Pawtucket, and the secretary was instructed to send a letter of sympathy to his family. It was decided to omit the annual banquet this year. President Eugene Appleton announced the following standing committees for the year: Essays and discussions, James Hockey, Cornelius Hartstra and Owen McManus; entertainment, Henry C. Neubrand and Alexander Macrae; investigation, J. Frank Schellinger, John Marshall and Michael Sweeney.

A gift of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy O'Connor in the shape of a memorial window, for their family, has been placed in the Holy Name church. It represents "Our Blessed Lord at the Marriage Feast of Cana," and was made in Munich, Germany.

William Appleton & Sons had the decorations for the big Commercial Club dinner at the Eloise, January 25.

Joseph N. Whelden, formerly superintendent of the North Burial Ground, and his wife celebrated the forty-fifth anniversary of their wedding at their home, 122 Camp street, January 23.

Alish & Kohn, gardeners and florists, have reopened the Dexter Greenhouses, at 187 Harrison street.

Nathan D. Pierce, of the Home Nursery, Norwood, is reported as being in a critical condition, from a complication of diseases.

William Tarbox, of West Greenwich, is to address the students of Eastern College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in the near future. He graduated from the institution in 1866.

Timothy O'Connor was a recent visitor in Philadelphia and New York.

George H. Wetmore, representing S. D. Woodruff & Sons, of Orange, Conn., was a recent visitor here.

NEBRASKA FLORISTS MEET.

The Nebraska State Florists' Association held a well attended meeting at Lincoln January 21 and 22, in connection with the gatherings of the other horticultural bodies of the state. An exhibition was staged on the opening day, with the business session on the second day. The following officers were elected:

President—Ed. Williams, of Grand Island.

Vice-president—J. W. Lawson, of York.

Secretary—Lewis Henderson, of Omaha.

Treasurer—J. E. Atkinson, of Pawnee City.

Directors—C. H. Frey, Lincoln; W. E. Davidson, of York, and Harry Pence, Falls City.

The papers read were as follows:

"Winter Blooming Plants," by C. H. Frey, Lincoln.

"Forcing Bulbs," by L. D. Tyrrell, Lincoln.

"Growing Lilies for Easter," by Ed. Williams, Grand Island.

"Cut Flowers for the Summer Months," by C. H. Green, Fremont.

"Growing Sweet Peas," by J. W. Lawson, York.

"Cement vs. Wood Benches," by J. D. Ellsworth, Grand Island.

"Heating Greenhouses," by Lewis Henderson, Omaha.

Question box and general discussion.

PITTSBURGH.The Market.

Sometimes a little sunshine and then a little rain, with the temperature ranging upward and downward from 23 to 60 degrees, does not seem beneficial to the flower business, either from the growers' or retailers' standpoint. Roses have been quite scarce all the week. While prices have not gone up, no bargains have been offered. The quality might have been better, but, since they were scarce, there was not much question on that point. The retailers generally have complained that trade has been wrong since the first of the year and could not be depended upon, but they always seem busy enough. Perhaps the weather is affecting their nerves.

The flower market looks much like spring, with the bulbous flowers coming in. Tulips are long enough to be attractive, and trumpets, freesias, daisies, mignonette and violets add to the variety.

Various Notes.

Murray C. King, of Washington, Pa., has sold his store, which he bought last summer, to B. W. Spragg, who also conducts a store at Waynesburg, Pa.

Mrs. E. A. Williams has been showing in her window some vases and baskets of mixed flowers which are quite attractive and seem to appeal to people after they have seen so many of the one-flower arrangements.

The A. W. Smith Co. has just given the store a new dressing, which makes it look all fresh for the new year. The firm has also been making special window displays of orchids; some fine cattleyas and Vanda cœrulea were displayed quite artistically.

Ray Daschbach is using bunches of flowers in shadow boxes as an advertisement, placing them in prominent places. They are attractive and are no doubt good ads.

The Blind Floral Co. had a heavy run of funeral work last week. They have been keeping up a fine display of blooming plants.

Randolph & McClements have been busy with out-of-town decorations. Their invalids are all back on their jobs.

The McCallum Co. got caught in the big wind and lost the glass out of their front door last week.

Say, you people in the business, do these notes interest you? If they do, when you meet the writer and you know him, do not be afraid to give him a few pointers as to what is going on. He cannot see it all.

Fred Burki was called to Kiskiminetis January 25, on account of the illness of his son, Frederick, who is a student there. He expects to bring the young man home with him.

E. L. Martin, representing the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., is here with the firm's new carnation, The Herald. It looks good to us.

Hoo-Hoo.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.The Market.

Business has been good. The performance of "Everywhere" created a strong demand for cut flowers, many of the performers receiving elegant bouquets. Plenty of funeral work has been going around. Roses and carnations are generally scarce and the demand good. American Beauties are short in supply, and the quality of those coming into the market is not up to the standard. Daffodils are in great demand, more being sold than in any previous year. Easter lilies are in good supply and the demand fair. Sweet peas are somewhat scarce. Violets sold well all the week.

Various Notes.

H. B. Williams and wife visited in town over Sunday. Mr. Williams is a progressive aster grower of Baldwinsville, N. Y., last year growing over forty acres of asters for seed.

George Cramer is back in the city, after spending the holiday season in Buffalo, making his famous baskets for S. A. Anderson. He is now with George B. Hart, most of the time making baskets. Mr. Cramer always has a great demand for his baskets.

Phil and Otto Gross have purchased another farm in South Greece, N. Y. This will be largely devoted to the growing of asters and other outdoor flowers. These two progressive young Germans started about ten years ago to grow a few flowers, as a side issue. They have steadily developed until they are now doing good work in this line.

George Arnold, of Jas. Vick's Sons, is to give a series of lectures on floriculture at Cornell University February 10 to 15.

H. E. Wilson furnished the flowers and decorations for the Noys-Williams wedding February 15. Killarney roses were used as the basis.

E. R. Fry has a house of azaleas well worth mentioning.

There are rumors of a flower store to be opened on South Clinton street.

Thomas Sharp, for a number of years a private gardener, is now in Rochester. He will spend the rest of his years resting. Mr. Sharp is an excellent example of the old saying, "It is not what you earn, but what you save that counts."

Edw. Brockmann, of Irondequoit, has three large houses of fine Enchantress and one of bedding plants, all in excellent shape. He finds Enchantress the best to grow.

H. J. Head, of the H. E. Wilson establishment, recently made a steamship design for a farewell party. It was a clever bit of work and was carried out in great detail, even to the wireless telegraph aërials, etc.

Schuyler Arnold.

NASHVILLE, TENN.The Market.

The week has been another unusual one, bringing stock forward too fast, but it certainly has been a saver of coal. There has scarcely been a touch of frost. Business has been better than for some time, largely because there has been more funeral work. Roses are rather scarce. Carnations continue to come in freely, and are wholesaling at from $2 to $3 per hundred. The red varieties are cleaned up most closely, in spite of their not being suitable for design work. We are having ideal violet weather and as a result there are so many that it is a question what to do with them. They are bringing from 75 cents to $1 per hundred, retail, but the demand is not equal to the supply, even at these prices. Another week of this kind of weather and everybody will have violets in his garden, as this is a violet town.

Golden Spur is in good supply and is cleaned up closely at good prices. Orchids are none too plentiful and are fetching $1 apiece for good stock.

There seems to be an oversupply of good azaleas, and the same situation is rapidly developing in rhododendrons. The stock is of the best, but the supply is greater than the demand. What are being moved are bringing good prices, however.

Floyd Bralliar, principal of the Hillcrest School Farm, is in the north this week looking after contracts for growing canna and dahlia bulbs. The school is arranging to build a propagating house and a house for growing bedding plants.

When I visited Joy & Sons Co. I found everyone busy making designs. The violet houses were literally blue with bloom. They are growing in the benches where the chrysanthemums were grown, having been transplanted from the field about December 1. Those in coldframes were doing equally well.

At the store of Geny Bros. I found everything filled with designs ready for delivery the next morning and all hands bunching violets. They had picked 16,000 that day. They were wondering who wanted them all. They grow mostly Giant of California, and grow it well, securing the long stems that are so much to be desired.

Haury & Sons are well satisfied with the business they are doing. They are getting a steady run of orders from out-of-town florists for work to be delivered here.

F. B.

Charlotte, N. C.—The Scholtz flower business has been incorporated, under the name of Scholtz, the Florist, Inc., by E. P. Scholtz, Mrs. Nellie Scholtz, J. I. McCallum and others. The paid up capital is $8,000.

OBITUARY.

Peter Britz.

Peter Britz, for many years in the florists' business at Danville, Ill., died in a hospital there January 23, following an attack of pneumonia.

Mr. Britz's career in America was started as a farmer. First he located at Chicago, but shortly removed to Oakwood and then to the suburbs of Danville. Here Mr. Britz and his sons carried on farming until 1890, when the family moved to the present home on South Bowman avenue and engaged in gardening. At first Mr. Britz established a small greenhouse for the growing of lettuce. Gradually the business was drawn from the fields into the greenhouses, and finally most of Mr. Britz's time was occupied in growing flowers. Meanwhile he had caused to be built for himself and family one of the best houses in the eastern section of the city. He had prospered from the beginning of his career in America, which began when the family arrived in this country, in May, 1883, from Germany.

He was born in Pelm, Rhine Province, August 18, 1849, and was married there November 10, 1875, to Anna Marie Schaeffer, who died December 21, 1907.

The sons born before the family came to America are John N., M. W., Jacob and Peter Britz, Jr. The other three children, Charles, August and Miss Aggie Britz, were born in Danville. The children are widely scattered; John lives in Chicago, Mat in Cincinnati, Jake in Indianapolis, August in Buffalo, and Miss Aggie, Charles and Peter Britz, Jr., in Danville. All the children were here when their father died.

Mr. Britz was a charter member of Court St. Boniface, No. 82, Catholic Order of Foresters, and a member for many years of St. Joseph's Catholic church.

Mrs. J. F. McHugh.

Mrs. McHugh, wife of J. F. McHugh, Detroit, Mich., died on Sunday, January 19. This is the second bereavement in the McHugh home within a brief period. When the eldest son died, only a short time ago, Mrs. McHugh suffered a stroke of paralysis and she gradually became weaker until death ensued.

Jules Grolez.

The death is reported of Jules Grolez, a well-known nurseryman in the north of France. He was one of the founders of the General Horticultural Society of the Nord and a member for a long period of the general committee of the French Rose Growers' Society. His name will long remain known, thanks to the Rose Mme. Jules Grolez, a first-rate hybrid tea.

Lydia C. Conard.

Lydia C. Conard, widow of Alfred F. Conard, died at her home in West Grove, Pa., January 21, in her seventy-fourth year. She had been in good health until September 28, but on the afternoon of that day she suffered a stroke of paralysis, from which she never recovered. All her life she was a member of the Orthodox Friends' Meeting, and true to the principles she had learned in her youth. She was born near West Grove, on the old homestead farm, a daughter of Samuel and Mary Ann Hughes. She is survived by a brother, Mark Hughes, of that town, and a sister, Hannah, widow of Edward Savery, West Miner street, West Chester.

Her husband, who died some years ago, was for many years a partner of the late Charles Dingee, these having organized the firm of Dingee & Conard about the year 1860, but later this was dissolved and Mr. Conard organized the Conard & Jones Co., in which he was active up to the time of his death.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The seventh annual dinner of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at the Oriental hotel January 23, and was one of the largest and most successful entertainments ever held under the auspices of this society, eighty-five members and friends being present. President E. J. Brown, on behalf of the society, presented the retiring president, J. F. Johnston, with a pearl scarfpin. Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J., was toastmaster and read a letter from M. C. Ebel, secretary of the National Association of Gardeners, informing the members of the bowling tournament to be held by the association the week of the big show in New York. W. H. Siebrecht responded for the New York Florists' Club and spoke on the coming show, asking every gardener and florist to do his share toward making the exhibition a big success. Among others who entertained the guests with songs and addresses were J. T. Ingraham, E. Ortiz, Rev. J. Gammon, J. C. Davis, William Kinneer and F. Bowne. Out-of-town guests who helped make the evening enjoyable were Messrs. Sperling, MacTaggart, Bunyard, Manor and Goodsell. J. M.

GREELEY, COLO.

The greenhouses of J. H. Ellis, which are modern in construction and always neat in appearance, were a special attraction during the last summer, on account of fine designs in carpet bedding, in which Mr. Ellis is a specialist.

The Gardner Floral Co. boasts of the largest greenhouse plant this side of Denver. The firm had a downtown store for the holidays, which was highly successful.

P. O. Hansen, owner of the old Searing place, built a large, modern house last season and will plant it to roses. He is getting a good cut of carnations, and his violets, of the Governor Herrick variety, are well known for their high quality.

Milwaukee, Wis.—H. W. Koerner has resigned as vice-president of the Western Dahlia and Gladiolus Association.

Worcester, Mass.—Harry I. Randall has purchased the business of the Pleasant Street Flower Shop. Mr. Randall has had twenty-four years' experience in the trade, in connection with prominent firms of this city.

Cleveland, O.—W. J. Leach, foreman of the Gordon park greenhouses, has been chosen for the position of city florist. This position has just been established by the city council and the salary is $1,200 per annum.

Florists' Publishing Co.,
Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1912, to December 31, 1912, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.....	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

Congress Heights, D. C.—O. W. D'Alcorn, the local bulb grower, is visiting the bulb fields at Spalding, Lincolnshire, England.

New Rochelle, N. Y.—Thomas J. Wade has received the contract to care for the trees of the city. This, in addition to his landscape contracts, promises to keep him hustling this spring. Store business is satisfactory.

Galena, Kan.—The Galena Greenhouses, of which Anna Lyscio is proprietor, were damaged recently by fire to the extent of $1,000 or more. The flames started near the boiler. The boiler room and two lettuce houses were destroyed.

Cedar Falls, Ia.—Joseph Bancroft, of Joseph Bancroft & Son, has been confined to his home for some time by serious illness, but at last report he had recovered sufficiently to be able to visit the greenhouses and give some assistance there. He is 87 years old and has been a resident of this city since 1855.

Norristown, Pa.—W. H. Catanese says business in general is quiet, but that there has been quite a heavy run of funeral work of late. The William R. Yeager Co. has been formed, to carry on the business of William R. Yeager. Harvey Unsuth, a grower of sweet peas and carnations at Center Square, has gone out of business and the greenhouses will be torn down.

Newburgh, N. Y.—The trade is watching with interest the outcome of a war between one of the leading florists and the largest department store, which has held a special sale on violets for two succeeding Saturdays. Commencing early in the day at 25 cents per bunch, the price was cut to 5 cents, with tinfoil and pin included, by the florist. As a result both establishments sold out clean and, being situated opposite, bulletins were watched with interest as the price was announced from time to time. It was dubbed the War of Violets and now the carnation may follow, as this is the first attempt of the department store to handle flowers.

Salina, Kan.—Edward Tatro's barn and its contents, including a delivery automobile, a wagon and some greenhouse materials, were completely destroyed recently by fire. It is thought that the fire was started by the auto, which had been run into the barn about half an hour before the flames were seen. Insurance to the amount of $1,100 was carried on the property burned, but that sum covers only about half the loss. Mr. Tatro thinks he has had more than an average share of this sort of misfortune. Last May his garage was burned, and the mischief in that case was also caused by the same automobile which has now been put out of existence.

Kearney, Neb.—The greenhouses of H. C. Green, on West Railroad street, were recently damaged by fire, but the amount of the loss is not reported.

Warren, O.—Frances Fletcher and Henry Kunkel have purchased the greenhouses belonging to the estate of the late Thomas Fletcher, and will continue the business.

Topeka, Kan.—James Hayes & Son have removed to a finely equipped store at 819 Kansas avenue. The new establishment is a great improvement over the former one, which was located on Eighth street, just off Kansas avenue, for twenty years. James S. Hayes is now associated with his father in the business.

Elyria, O.—Carrying into effect the option clause of a lease made six years ago, the Hecock Floral Co. has now purchased the Broad street lot on which its building stands. The ground has a frontage of twenty feet and the price was $6,000. In 1907, when the firm rented the land, the lease contained a provision that the property might be purchased for $300 per foot.

Syracuse, N. Y.—William E. Day and Robert C. Bard will represent the Syracuse Florists' Club at the midwinter meeting of the State Federation of Florists' Clubs, to be held at Cornell University, Ithaca, February 12. The Syracuse Rose Society will send as delegates Congressman John R. Clancy and George E. Thorpe. E. A. Bates, of this city, who is first vice-president of the state organization, also will attend in an executive capacity.

Gary, Ind.—The Gary Floral Co., which for about a year has conducted a store at the corner of Sixth avenue and Washington street, with Mrs. Kay M. Wells as its manager, has sold the business to John Owens. The stock for the store will be supplied from Mr. Owens' range, the Boulevard Heights Greenhouses, which are located at Forty-fifth avenue and Jefferson street. Mr. Owens has been in the trade for thirty years, and came here from Oil City, Pa., some months ago. The store will be in charge of his son, Emory Owens.

Rockford, Ill.—Henry Hendriksen, who conducts a grocery store at the corner of South Winnebago and Morgan streets, has purchased the greenhouses at the corner of Morgan and Corbin streets, which were recently bought by Leake & Offord. Mr. Hendriksen will not take charge of the property, but has secured the services of William S. Hizer, an experienced florist, who will be assisted by Edward Hendriksen, brother of the proprietor. Mr. Hizer owned the property several years ago, but has lately been manager of the flower department of Burr's West State street store.

Hinsdale, Mass.—H. J. Smith says the shipping of evergreens is going on as usual, this section not being affected by the federal quarantine against gypsy moth and brown-tail moth. It has been an unusually mild winter thus far and Mr. Smith thinks it may result in a scarcity of hardy cut ferns in the spring.

Bridgeport, Conn.—G. C. Bouton & Son have erected another large greenhouse and an office building, and they are planning to build still another greenhouse in the coming spring. Business has been highly satisfactory. They say they have a fine pink seedling carnation, of a slightly darker shade than Enchantress, and intend to put it on the market next year. They also have a red carnation which looks promising.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.—Henry J. Lubben, who recently opened a flower store in the Rex theater building, has sold the establishment to Donart & Louis, proprietors of the Coeur d'Alene Greenhouses. The store now occupied by the new owners, on the south side of Sherman avenue, will be closed, and the store in the Rex theater building will be used as the only downtown salesroom. Mr. Lubben's plans for the future are not yet completed.

New Brunswick, N. J.—Miss Ella Kitchenmeister, who is engaged in the florists' trade in this city, and Herbert D. Woglom, son of the late Captain Woglom, of Perth Amboy, were married on a recent Sunday in the parlors of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York city. The ceremony was performed directly after the morning service, and many of the congregation remained to witness the nuptials, among them John D. Rockefeller, who congratulated the bridegroom and wished the bride much happiness.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—According to a recent announcement, the Simonds Heating & Specialty Co., of this city, will concentrate the greater part of its efforts on greenhouse heating. The concern has handled so many greenhouse jobs, and its vacuum heating system has been so successful, that the directors have determined to direct special attention toward the securing of contracts from growers. In keeping with this action the company has opened two eastern offices, one in New York city and the other in Cleveland, O. The former office will be in charge of John A. Payne, a well known and experienced heating and ventilating engineer, who has represented the Foley Mfg. Co., Chicago, in that city for the last year. Mr. Payne will have supervision of the New England states, while C. A. Simonds, until recently at the head of the home office, will take charge at Cleveland, with Campbell Bradshaw assuming charge as general manager in Grand Rapids.

Washington, N. J.—Alonzo J. Bryan's shipping business is steadily increasing in volume. A recent shipment included 13,000 potted geraniums and as many canna bulbs, besides a great variety of other stock. The advance orders for spring indicate an unusually heavy trade at that time, and he is preparing for it by erecting more greenhouses, hoping to have them completed by the middle of March.

The Review brings results.

THE pamphlet of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, just received, shows the organization to have 206 active and forty associate members.

THE cut flower markets are in much the same condition all over the country—not many roses, a heavy supply of carnations, and an abundance of everything else.

E. G. HILL, president of the Florists'
Hail Association, has appointed J. F.
Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., as vice-president, to fill the unexpired term caused by the death of John T. Temple.

ONE of the greatest weaknesses in the flower trade is the looseness of credits and the slowness of collections. Too many florists are ready to trust anybody, and too many are afraid to ask for their money for fear of losing a customer.

THE warm weather, unseasonable for January, is general over practically the whole of the United States and is responsible for some unusual trade conditions.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE American Gladiolus Society has issued the schedule of prizes for its exhibition of forced gladiolus blooms to be held in connection with the National Flower Show at New York, April 5 to 12. Copies may be had by addressing the secretary, L. Merton Gage, South Natick, Mass.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

President Farquhar has appointed on the tariff and legislative committee:
Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass., chairman; Patrick O'Mara, New York city;

STRONGER AND STRONGER.

It is quite the regular thing for Review advertisers to get first-class results; indeed, their expressions of satisfaction are becoming stronger and stronger. For instance, A. B. Silliman & Co., mistletoe dealers, at Boone, Ia., have several times reported that they got good business through The Review.
Here is what they say this year:

Enclosed you will find our check to balance the advertising account and renew subscription. We find The Review better than all others combined as an advertising medium and if you write us about the middle of next September we will give you a much greater business than heretofore.
A. B. Silliman & Co., Boone, Ia., January 21, 1913.

Practically the only advertisers who do not now use The Review to a greater extent than any other publication are those shown by the published "statements of ownership, etc., required by act of Congress of August 24, 1912," to be financially interested in other publications.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The market has been decidedly quiet for the last week, with abundant supplies of stock in all lines except roses.
There has been the appearance of heavy receipts. Most of the wholesalers agree that were business at all active there would be no surplus. Carnations are in great oversupply, and the quality of the majority of the arrivals is not all that could be desired. Enchantress far outnumbers any other variety, or even the whites, but anything can be supplied; however, it takes a good eye to pick out the stock that will stand shipping.
There are many weak stems and much complaint of softness and sleepiness in the flowers. It is worthy of special note that the shipping business on carnations is extremely light; the local demand affords about the only outlet.
Naturally, under such conditions, averages returned to the growers are low.

Short roses are scarce; not nearly enough are to be had to satisfy the demand. As to longer roses, there are various reports. Some houses say they are able to fill about all the orders that

You Can GET HERE JUST THE STOCK YOU NEED For VALENTINE'S DAY

AND IT'S A BIG CORSAGE DAY IF YOU PUSH IT

No limit to our ability to supply just the flowers that are most in demand—the cream of the crops, always, and extra quantities arranged for for St. Valentine's. Here is what you will want:

ORCHIDS

We have a big crop of fancy Trianae—as fine Cattleyas as have come on this market this season. Try these for your corsage, table and fine funeral work.

VIOLETS

We not only handle the cream of the crops, but we have, we believe, the largest and steadiest supply of fine Violets that is to be found anywhere in the west.

VALLEY! VALLEY!!

We Handle Bruns' Chicago Market Brand Cut Valley Exclusively.

There is none better. Can furnish ordinary quantities on telegraph order, and no limit to the supply if notice is given ahead—but why not place a standing order? Get a regular shipment. You need it every day.

CARNATIONS

There is an abundance of Carnations in this market, but there are not so very many that are strictly good. It is not what you pay but what you get that determines value—and the more you think about it the more certain you are to order your Carnations of Amling. As always, we have a large supply of strictly first-class stock.

LILIES

A large crop of good lilies now ready; can supply in any quantity.

BULB STOCK

Plenty of Jonquils, Tulips, Freesia, Romans, etc., first-class quality.

BEAUTIES

Beauty buyers should not make the mistake of judging our Beauties by the Beauties of other growers; these are in a class by themselves. And we always have them. If you have a trade that calls for Beauties we can be of service to you.

FANCY ROSES

There are three reasons why the thinking buyers are ordering their Roses of us this season:—1st, there is no finer lot of stock; 2d, our growers doubled their glass last summer, giving us quantity, and, 3d, we have a full line. Specially strong just now on the extra long, fancy grades; not many short stems at present.

CORSAGE PINS

We are making a specialty of Corsage Pins, handling them in immense quantity. You can get of us any style or quality of pin you need, at from 85c per gross to $3.00 per gross—each grade guaranteed to be the best pin you ever bought at the price.

CORSAGE TIES

You would not know which to choose if you had before you our entire line of Violet Cords and Ribbon Corsage Ties—we have so great a variety. Prices from 25c to $1.00 per doz. Order an assortment; we guarantee to please.

CORSAGE SHIELDS

We can furnish Corsage Shields and old-fashioned Bouquet Holders at all prices. Tell us what you wish to pay and we will send you the best article the money will buy

RED RIBBON

What widths of Red Ribbon are you short on? It's as necessary for St. Valentine's Day as at Christmas. We have four special lines of Ribbon, each the best of its kind at the price, and a splendid Red in each quality. What shall we send you?

VALENTINE BASKETS

Order anything you need in the way of special Valentine's Day Baskets—or send for one of our assortments. We have a complete stock—every style and size.

HEART-SHAPED VALENTINE BOXES

This box is heart-shaped; it is white on the top and red on the sides. On the cover it carries a big red heart pierced by an arrow, and all over it are neat little Violets and Forget-me-nots. It is quite the neatest corsage box we ever have seen for Valentine's day use; will appeal to high-class trade, yet is so cheap you do not need to count the cost. Two sizes, nested, one for 200 Violets, the other for 150 Violets in corsage; two to a nest. Price only 50c per nest. Order now to make sure of your supply.

come in calling for stock at from 6 cents to 15 cents, while other houses say the demand for even the highest priced grade exceeds the supply. Beauties are firming up in price. There is considerable difference in the quality of the stock offered, and the demand is ample to take up everything that can be described as strictly first-class.

Violets are making an extremely poor average; while there are a few buyers who will pay fair prices for small quantities of the best grade, the bulk of the arrivals, both single and double, must be sold to the cheap sales people or go into the waste. The quantity of violets arriving shows, however, that this market is fully as good as any other large market. The sweet peas do not appear to be coming in so heavily as usual at this season and the good ones are selling excellently. There is the old complaint that dark weather is causing the sweet pea buds to drop. Orchids have shortened since last report and prices have firmed up a little. It is stated that the glut of Triana is over and that there now will be no oversupply until spring. Tulips are arriving in greater quantity and the quality has considerably improved. There is a good sale for anything first-class in yellow or red, with white finding an outlet for funeral work. Paper Whites and Romans continue a glut. Freesia is more abundant and cheaper. Jonquils are selling fairly well and daffodils have arrived. Easter lilies have become abundant once more, and here and there quantities of rubrums are seen. Snapdragons are neither so abundant nor so good as usual. There is an abundance of valley.

Schiller Going North.

Schiller the Florist, Inc., has made an arrangement with Emil Buettner to take the lease on the property at 4509-41 Evanston avenue, formerly operated by Koropp, Inc., now in the hands of an assignee. It is expected that the papers will be signed within a day or two. Charles Christmann, assignee for Koropp, has made arrangements to move the business February 1, to 2817 Evanston avenue, near Diversey, where it will be continued with the prospect of shortly being able to turn it back to Mr. Koropp's corporation. The greenhouse will remain at Ravenswood Park and Wellington street, as now.

Various Notes.

C. W. McKellar is again having a serious time with the hand in which he has had blood poisoning at about this date each year for the last three years. In spite of the efforts of the physicians, his hand is badly swollen and extremely painful.

The construction of the new Field building, at Wabash avenue and Washington street, is proving unfortunate for Weiland's, in the basement of the Venetian building. Sidewalk traffic is shut off from the west for a time.

Winterson's Seed Store is busy taking inventory.

E. E. Pieser says that this has been the best January for ten years with Kennicott Bros. Co.

Mrs. W. H. Hilton and daughter are at West Baden.

August Poehlmann is vice-president of the new Morton Grove Trust and Savings Bank and the other Poehlmann brothers are stockholders.

Robert Miller, president of the Miller Floral Co., Farmington, Utah, who spent several days here last week on his way home from a trip through the east, said January 22 that of all the novelties seen on his travels he was specially pleased with Carnation The Herald. He made a trip to Joliet to see it growing and said it looked to him like a good money-making proposition for his shipping trade in cut flowers. He is shipping over a wide radius in the intermountain territory, where there is a good market for red carnations, and he left a good-sized order for cuttings of The Herald for delivery March 1.

N. J. Wietor, who went south for two weeks, has notified his store staff that he will need a few days' extension of his time.

"With the exception of the last week, the new year has been ahead of 1912 in the sale of carnations," is the report given out by President John F. Kidwell, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

A Grower's Advantage

In the use of mechanical refrigeration lies more in the improved condition in which his stock reaches the market than it does in the saving in cost—though it has been found that Brunswick refrigerating plants can be operated at a saving of fully one-third as compared to the cost of ice. The grower of cut flowers who operates his cooling and storage space with a has an absolutely even temperature at all times, with just the degree of humidity he wants. His stock reaches the market in condition to command the best prices. The gain is especially great in hot summer weather, but is important at all seasons.

The grower who has a Brunswick equipment can store his valley pips, lily bulbs, etc., on his own place. Among the well-known growers who have found Brunswick apparatus simple, safe, durable, economical and efficient are: Henry Hentz, Madison, N. J.; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Gibsonia, Pa.; Briarcliff Greenhouses, Scarborough, N. Y.

Retail florists will find Brunswick equipment infinitely better than ice. Pennock Bros., Philadelphia, have for more than five years used our one-ton machine to cool a cut-flower display refrigerator 16½x9x3½. Formerly it cost $5 0 per year for ice. Electric power to drive our machine averages $300 per year and there has been practically no expense for repairs.

Charles Thorley, 562 Fifth Avenue, New York City, is another big retailer using a Brunswick plant.

Fred Klingel, of Erne & Klingel, believes the way advance orders for St. Valentine's day are coming in is an indication that out-of-town retailers are making ready to do some advertising and boosting.

Evans, Richmond, Ind.; C. B. Knickman, representing McHutchison & Co., New York; Floyd Brallier, Nashville, Tenn.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The tone of the cut flower market for the week ending with McKinley day has been fair, with the exception of a few weaklings. Carnations have shown gratifying strength, the colored varieties leading. Some say that the improvement in carnations is due to more moderate prices, others to a better market, while still others believe that the birthday of the martyred president quickened the out-of-town demand. The feature of the rose market is the shortage in shorts. Many more of the lower grades could be used, particularly in pink. Whites are moving off in better shape, while Richmond and the novelties are difficult to obtain. Beauties have advanced; many are going out of town, but this expression is in the comparative sense, as the cut of good Beauties is light.

Sweet peas are blooming more freely on the sunny days. There is a good demand. Choice valley sells readily, but just now there is an unusual proportion of inferior stock. Tulips in all colors are coming into town. Daffodils are good and cheap. There is a fair quantity of fine freesia. Paper Whites continue to lag. It is odd how many are grown, for they nearly always lag; it seems as though they must be profitable, even if sold at low figures. Daisies, pansies and mignonette find a ready market. Callas are freely used. Asparagus is dull.

The weaklings of the cut flower list, violets, orchids and gardenias, are having a hard time indeed; extremely low prices rule for all three on quantity orders that do not demand selection, which explains why good stock will not average even the low listed quotations.

is reported to have been paid for it. Many growers who saw it at the greenhouses of Thomas F. Browne, at Greenfield, Mich., thought it superior to anything on the market, it being of a beautiful soft pink color, unlike anything known, with good, strong stems and general form and appearance such as no other can boast. Other points particularly liked were its free blooming qualities, the fact that it is not a cropper, and its exceptionally strong calyx. It should be of especial interest in this city, as it has been named Philadelphia. It will be exhibited at all the shows next fall, and disseminated in the season of 1914."

The Retail Situation.

There has been a great deal said and written about the enterprise of our wholesalers and growers and the lack of enterprise of our retailers. The retailers, with a few exceptions, are charged with being behind the times; they are compared unfavorably with the retailers in other lines of business: their method or want of method has been ridiculed. It seems to me that this is unjust. The florists' business in this city is still in its infancy. There are men among us who were in business when the first retail stores were opened in the center of the city. These stores paid the growers better prices for a product at wholesale than they could obtain on their own places at retail. As the business grew, the wholesale commission house appeared and soon became a necessity. To the magnificent enterprise of the wholesalers is due the splendid shipping business that has been developed, a business that has encouraged the erection of greenhouse after greenhouse, until today over one-half, probably two-thirds, of the glass around Philadelphia produces for the out-of-town market. In times of overproduction this means that an extraordinary quantity of stock is available for our retailers, stock that is not available generally. Under these unusual conditions the retailers have made a beginning in educating the public to use flowers when they are cheap. The new association just formed is aimed toward making further strides in this direction. Properly managed, it will enable the retailers to point to what they have accomplished for floriculture with as much pride as can the wholesalers and growers.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Shrubs and trees are budding, pansies are in bloom. No such winter as this has ever been known in New York and vicinity. The week in the wholesale cut flower market was far from satisfactory. Apart from the scarcity of American Beauties, and the consequent high price asked for them, there was little to vary the monotony of the market. Radiance, Shawyer, Russell and Sunburst followed Beauties in increased values, but the supply of these was light and

ing. Tulips are mostly short-stemmed and of poor quality.

The shipments of sweet peas are increasing daily. Violets are down and out again, with larger shipments and no street outlet. The top quotation Saturday, for the best of them, was 30 cents. The department stores were disposing of the accumulations at 10 cents a bunch and some stores were giving them away.

The orchid merchants, from grower to wholesaler, were justifiably discouraged last week at the low prices that prevailed. I saw one accumulation of cattleyas go begging at $10 per hundred, and they were quite good enough for a funeral. The fresh ones, selected, brought no more than 35 cents. There is no end this year, evidently, to the ocidiums. They are popular for dinner and window decorations. Cypripediums are down, and so are gardenias.

Weddings and banquets are many and a few of the leading retailers have been busy, but with the majority trade has been extremely dull and there is much complaining. In another week Lent begins. The intervening days will be one round of gayety in society circles. Some of the retailers have as high as half a dozen notable dinner decorations in an evening.

The decorations by Alex. McConnell for the Gould-Shepard wedding last week are the talk of the town. Mr. McConnell had his force of artists at Tarrytown several days. American Beauties, Chatenay and Killarney roses, cattleyas and valley were used unstintedly. The effect was said to be exquisite, and the popular bride certainly deserved the best work of her family florist, Mr. McConnell having handled all the floral and landscape work of the Gould family for a generation.

WHY FAILURES RESULT.

The following is an abstract from a communication received:

"I would like you to advise me how much Aphine to use. . . . The reason I make this inquiry of you direct is: I used Aphine in my house (for green aphids) in a mixture of one teaspoonful* to each quart of water without success. . . . This is the way Aphine was used by party giving me information. . . ."

(*Directions—six teaspoonfuls)

Had the inquirer followed directions, instead of accepting advice of the friend, his results would have been different.

In this instance Aphine was not condemned, but information sought of the manufacturer and advice given in reply—carefully follow directions—then your results will be satisfactory.

How many, failing to get satisfactory results from a product after using according to someone's suggestions and not following directions, have condemned that product; whereas, investigation may have turned failure into success for you?

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

MR. FLORIST: How about Natural Prepared Palms, Sagos, Arecas, etc., for decorative purposes at weddings, church affairs, balls, receptions, entertainments? You can get good returns on your investment, as my line of these goods is exceptionally low-priced, quality and durability considered. You save yourself the trouble connected with the handling and maintaining of the natural ones and can give more time to your general business. Have you ever tried the sale of Funeral Designs composed of waxed paper flowers and leaves, which are so low-priced as to insure a handsome profit in handling them; or the Metal Wreaths and Designs, which are more in demand than ever before with the country trade? They are absolutely true to nature in makeup and absolutely durable.

I have just completed my special General Catalogue, devoted exclusively to this line, and will be pleased to send you copy. Ask for No. U. F.

Flower Show being the topic of widest interest. January 28 the scene changed to Oyster Bay, when the big society there celebrated its birth with its first annual dinner. January 30, at Yonkers, there is bowling all the afternoon and the annual dinner at the Pinetree Inn in the evening. Charles H. Totty will be toastmaster.

L. B. Coddington, Robert Voight, E. D. Badgley and Nason & Son are the quartette of rose growers who have made Murray Hill, N. J., famous.

Wednesday was McKinley day and various methods of publicity were tried, including advertising in the large city dailies and unique carnation displays in the retail windows.

Every Monday the National Flower Show committee meets at the office of Traendly & Schenck.

George Bradshaw, with Wm. Kessler, has recovered from a severe illness.

President Siebrecht, of the New York Florists' Club, may be found almost every morning at his office in the wholesale store of Siebrecht & Siebrecht.

John I. Raynor and Alex Burns were visiting the scenes and companions of other days in the wholesale section January 24. J. Austin Shaw.

Sydney B. Wertheimer, of Wertheimer Bros., who has just returned from Bermuda, says he found the islands most interesting. Although it is rather early for the Easter lily crop, he noticed several fields in bloom. The oleanders are just beginning to bloom and these beautiful flowers, with their sweet odor, are about the most attractive feature in the Bermudas. Practically every road is lined with a solid mass of bushes, giving the effect of a continuous garden. Mr. Wertheimer agreed with S. A. Anderson, a well known florist of Buffalo, who was also visiting Bermuda, with his family, at the same time, that the transformation from the wintry blasts of New York to the summery climate of Bermuda, considering the comparatively short distance, was most remarkable and pleasurable.

Mrs. Mary Kimball, wife of Willard C. Kimball, died last week at her home, 215 Audubon avenue, from heart disease. Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons and two daughters.

New Orleans, La.—Harry Papworth, president of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., recently secured the contract for some important landscape work on the grounds of the state capitol.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade keeps up well, with plenty of stock on the market. Roses have been quite plentiful, except white, which at times is hard to get. Killarney is much more plentiful. Ward is badly off crop; few have been cut since the holidays. Richmond is rather scarce, as there are not many grown in this locality. Beauties have been moving fairly well, with supply limited. Carnations are more plentiful than at any time this season and the price has fallen. As a result, the retail price generally last Saturday was 35 to 50 cents per dozen. The indications are that the crops will be heavy for quite a while. Enchantress and white stand first in quantity and the quality is extra good. Sweet peas have been rather scarce for the last few days. Narcissi and jonquils have been moving nicely and there has been no surplus to speak of at any time. Violets also have been moving well, both single and double. Valley has been rather hard to get for a limited demand.

Potted plants are moving quite well, with cyclamens, azaleas and primulas in the lead. There still is quite a demand for dish ferns.

Various Notes.

G. H. Woodrow is still improving and everyone in the craft hopes he will soon be well enough to be out and around.

James McKellar has his sister and brother-in-law, Theo. Miller, for a visit this week. Mr. Miller was in business in Greenfield, O., but sold out about December 15 and is a gentleman of leisure for a while. J. M.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

Business during the last week has been as good as could be expected. There has been quite a number of society events, calling for the supply of room and table decorations, and funeral work has been plentiful. From the grower's standpoint, however, the week has been unsatisfactory. The days have been mild and cloudy, causing the stock to soften considerably. In Beauties the demand is much heavier than the supply and there is also a shortage of other roses, with the one exception of white. The colored roses are out of crop in the main, and what are coming in are eagerly sought after. This condition has caused a rise in the price of Beauties from $5 and $6 for the best to $7.50 and $9. The other roses are moving at from $4 to $10, although as high as $15 per hundred is being asked for choice stock.

As a result of this shortage, stock has been cleaned up well. Even carnations are sold before they are cut and they are fairly plentiful. Valley also is moving nicely. Some fine Golden Spur daffodils have been seen on the market during the last few days. Potted tulips are being offered and the southern violets have started to come in. It is reported that sales of these have been made at as low as $1 per thousand, with the result that the florists are using single violets exclusively.

Various Notes.

An automobile parade is to be held early in February, which should bring some little business into the stores. This parade will be a showing of the 1913 cars of the different makes and will be conducted by the manufacturers and their agents.

William F. Gude, chairman, has succeeded in getting an appropriation of $7,000 from the inaugural committee for expenditure by the sub-committee on illuminations. With this money Mr. Gude expects to burn up considerable electricity between the White House and the Capitol during the inaugural festivities. In this will be included the lighting of the Botanical Gardens, and the illumination of the large fountain there, in colors.

February 4 is the date set for the next meeting of the Florists' Club and this will also be the occasion of the annual submission of nominations for the officers of the society. There is bound to be something in the way of contest, as there are several in line for the top honors. Plans will also be made for the excursion to the New York show, as it is expected that the committee in charge will have something to report.

SCRANTON, PA.

The Scranton Florists' Club met recently at the home of T. B. McClintock, at the corner of Electric street and Jefferson avenue. There was the usual good attendance. Ray MacDonald, the new president, was in the chair. Mr. MacDonald is one of the youngest members of the club and this was his first experience as an officer, but he acquitted himself splendidly.

By the way, there is only one florist that is older in the trade in this part of the state than those who were at the meeting, and only two florists have died in this locality since the florists' trade began. One of the two was H. R. Noll, who passed away some years ago and was the pioneer florist in northeastern Pennsylvania; the other was Miss Emily Schultheis. This speaks well for the good health and preservation of the trade. By the indications at the meeting, there are a good lot of jolly and bright young people to fill the ranks as the older ones drop out.

At the business session there was some discussion in regard to carnation growing. E. McConnell, carnation grower at Ira G. Marvin's plant at Kingston, was in attendance and gave a talk on the carnation and its growth. He contends that the growth of the carnation in these valleys and, in fact, in all cities where the grower depends on the city water supply for watering in the greenhouses, is materially impaired by the chloride of lime that is constantly being put in the water to precipitate the vegetable life or growth that necessarily collects in the water supply. He claims that the typhoid bacilli live upon this growth, and as the vegetable growth precipitates the bacilli follow it to the bottom of the reservoirs and streams, instead of getting into the city supply, but the chloride of lime continues to flow through the city pipes and is extremely injurious to the carnation, first turning the foliage yellow and then brown. There may be something in this. However, I am informed by Charles Goudy that the carnations at Mr. Marvin's greenhouses are fine, as are also the roses, which are grown under the direction of Mr. Hoover. Mr. Goudy, the representative of the H. F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, was in attendance at the meeting and gave a talk on the general lines of trade and the new things that are being introduced.

It is reported that the roses and carnations at E. T. Moyer's plant at Fortyfort are exceedingly fine and the lilies for Easter at Mr. Marvin's are coming on in good shape. The Formosas seem to be the best, while the giganteums and multiflorums are coming on well. Azaleas, lilies and other Easter plants are looking fine at William MacDonald's.

The bulb situation, apparently, will be well handled. The indications are that bulbs outside, as well as inside, will come along finely. The practice of putting bulbs outside and entirely covering them with earth or ashes seems to be unwise, as they become drawn by the warm weather, but bulbs in frames covered with boards, leaving an air space, while the boards are covered lightly with manure or soil, are found

Mr. Goudy said Mr. McConnell and Mr. Marvin had a discussion as to which is the best of the carnations.
Mr. McConnell seemed much in favor of Pink Delight, while Mr. Marvin thought no carnation would beat the three varieties of Enchantress and Mrs.
C. W. Ward. Mr. MacDonald seems to have been hit worse with last summer's drought than any other grower.
His plants did not make the growth which would give promise of a large production during the winter.

After the adjournment of the business session a most enjoyable social hour was appreciated by all. Dan Evans, who is a fine pianist, played some choice selections. The young people sang not only the rag-time songs, but some of the finest songs of the day. Scranton has carried off the laurels in several singing contests. Card playing was indulged in by the older members. At a seasonable hour Mrs. McClintock announced that the presence of all was required in the dining room. Here, in the refreshments served and the manner of serving, Mrs. McClintock certainly maintained her reputation as a hostess.

An illustration was given of how the concerted action of a club can do effectual work. The Commercial Association of Scranton held a banquet January 15, when something was told of doing away with a number of obnoxious inconsistencies that were taking away the profits of trade. The columns of the newspapers were being used to the detriment of business interests, and the commercial men put a stop to this as well as to the custom among fakers of coming into town just before holiday time and taking the cream of the trade without any of the expense trade here is put to, in the way of rents, etc. This is one of the most progressive movements ever made in this section of our state, and will materially help the florists' trade as well as others. Reference was made to the practice of the department stores in handling dormant roses, etc. They handle them only for a short time in the spring, when the florists and nurserymen are supposed to make their greatest profits; they spurt up and advertise heavily and sell without much if any profit. This is inconsistent on the part of the merchants, and it is just as proper for us to rebuke them for stealing our profits as it is for them to go after others for stealing their profits.

Among recent trade visitors to our city were: Valen E. Milloy, representing Wm. B. Lake, the ribbon man, of Philadelphia; Isaac Bayersdorfer, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia;
Alvah R. Jones, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia.

The Scranton Florist Supply Co. is putting out an illustrated catalogue which is quite elaborate and compares favorably with most of those published in the country. This firm has forged ahead rapidly in the last few years in the development of business.

G. R. Clark.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The market took a sudden change last week and stock was not nearly so plentiful as the week previous. The weather was dark and cold the first part of the week, but it soon warmed up and cleared. The retail business was reported first-class. Society is crowding in all the socials it can before the Lenten season begins. The reports of the wholesale men say that they experienced a splendid week of business and, only for the shortage of roses, could have done considerably more. This caused the prices to go up a few cents on all grades of roses. All of our growers seem off crop. There were quite a few long Beauties to be had, but the smaller roses cleaned up early each day.
Carnations, too, slacked up, but only a little, and there were at all times a few more than the demand could use. The prices went up to 2 and 3 cents on fancy stock, with common and splits at 1½ cents. Quality has been good all the season and demand better than on any of the other stock. Violets are down in price, ranging from 20 to 50 cents per hundred, according to quality. The bulk of the stock, though, is of good quality. These will have a big demand for St. Valentine's day and the growers promise a big crop on that occasion. Sweet peas cleaned up much better during the week and few were left over after morning sales. All seasonable bulbous stock is plentiful, but it sold somewhat better last week, with a little advance in price. Freesias and Von Sions have made their appearance and clean up daily. The greens market, as usual, can supply anything wanted.

Various Notes.

Dr. A. S. Halstead, president of the St. Clair Floral Co., Belleville, was out for the nomination for mayor of Belleville, but withdrew, owing to the ill health of Mrs. Halstead.

With the advent of warm weather, preparations will be made for considerable building among our suburban florists. Some of them will grow more roses and chrysanthemums, as others have been quite successful in this line this season. The majority of shippers to this market are located in St. Louis county and have much vacant land, that could be improved with more houses.

E. W. Guy, of Belleville, spent a day here last week, visiting the greenhouse men in the southern part of the city.

F. W. Bruenig is cutting some fine carnations of the Fisher and Enchantress variety from his Columbia, Ill., greenhouses. This stock is handled by the Windler Wholesale Floral Co.

F. H. Weber had the decorations for the McKinley high school midwinter graduating class. This, with other school graduating classes, used up considerable stock last week.

Alex Siegel reports that he furnished several hundred long, fancy Beauties last week for openings of new business places on Washington avenue.

Grimm & Gorly, who are now located at 702 Washington avenue, will have to vacate these quarters by March 1. They have leased the store at 708 on the same street and will move just as

Geo. Angermueller handled a good many fancy orchids last week. He also reports a good run on chiffons and other supplies, both local and shipping.

Chas. Beyer, C. Bergstermann, R. J. Windler and Mrs. M. Eggeling, on South Grand avenue, say they have had a good run of trade this month. As Lent sets in early this year, it will put a stop to a lot of social work.

A committee consisting of C. C. Young, Jules Bourdet and Alex Geranios was appointed by the Retail Florists' Association to confer on publicity, with the members of the Florists' Club. This will be the topic at the Florists' Club's meeting, Thursday, February 13, at 2 o'clock.

W. C. Smith, of the Smith Wholesale Floral Co., says his concern already has taken a number of orders for violets for St. Valentine's day.

Arthur Waldman, at Delmar and Hamilton avenues, is making fine window displays of cut flowers and blooming plants. He says he had a big run on carnations and Beauties last week and is looking forward to a great plant season this spring.

Dwight Davis, park commissioner, is in Boston this week and with J. Were will play for the national double racquet championship.

The Retail Florists' Association held an interesting meeting January 19, at the Washington hotel. There were fourteen members present. President Sanders occupied the chair. Theo. Miller talked on "Ideal Locations for Retail Flower Stores," which brought out a big discussion. The election of officers resulted in the reelection of all the old officers, as follows: President, C. C. Sanders; vice-president, Theo. Miller; treasurer, F. H. Weber; secretary, Alex Geranios; sergeant-at-arms, Max Herzog.

Hailing, hailing, turning from sleet to rain,
We'll shovel many a ton of snow
Ere summer comes again.

Seed Trade News.AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE Market Seed Co., Los Angeles, Cal., has been incorporated, with $10,000 capital. The directors are J. S. Cannon, J. J. Gallagher, E. E. Sidebottom, R. W. Allen and G. H. Brooks.

THE clerk of the ways and means committee of Congress, which is hearing tariff matters, when asked January 25, said that nothing had come to his attention relating to the paragraph on seeds, neither briefs, letters nor telegrams.

THE agricultural appropriation bill now pending in Congress provides $26,000 to carry on the work of "testing commercial seeds, including grasses, clover or alfalfa, in the open market to determine if there are adulterations."

ONE of the unfavorable features of successive short crop years is the tendency to distribute stocks without pedigree. Sometimes these stocks of unknown antecedents turn out all right, but the opposite usually is the case and no seedsman would sell them, much less plant them, except under the press of necessity.

THE Holland bulb salesmen who have been some time on their rounds of the trade in the United States report that there is again a pronounced increase in the interest in Darwin tulips. Business on hyacinths and on the popular bedding tulips is being booked without difficulty, because of the way the trade cleaned up in 1912.

THE Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., Yankton, S. D., has bought the peony, gladiolus and iris collection of the late H. C. Warner, of Mitchell, probably the oldest horticulturist in the state of South Dakota in point of years of residence. The collection consisted of 362 named varieties of gladioli, 347 named varieties of peonies, and 136 named varieties of irises. These will be moved to Yankton in the spring.

MODERATE priced mixtures of gladiolus bulbs are scarce; most growers are not able to furnish them, and holders are asking advances over customary prices.

Kelway's New Yellow Mangold "BEST OF ALL"

A wonderful improvement on all existing stocks of Yellow Mangolds, being the heaviest cropper and easiest pulled, besides being of the very finest possible quality. Shape between intermediate and tankard; beautiful pale yellow skin with fine top. Selected by Kelway & Son, the introducers and growers, for very many years before being now offered. The largest and best of all Yellow Mangolds. Always the most admired in our trials. Distinct from all advertised kinds (electro gratis, see illustration).

In sealed raiser's cardboard boxes, 1 lb. and 2 lb.

that the public has thought more generally than usual of gardening and orders have come in abundantly.

THE Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb., is branching out, having just bought the Russell Nursery in that city and built a greenhouse.

In the list of the membership of the Association of National Advertising Managers there is only one seed house: Peter Henderson & Co., F. H. Cole, advertising manager.

THE agricultural appropriation bill, as now before Congress, provides $257,000 for the free seed distribution of 1914, with an additional special fund of $39,000 for drought-resistant seeds.

J. W. JUNG, of the J. W. Jung Seed Co., Randolph, Wis., says he believes they have the distinction of having the only seed catalogue in America that is printed on the seed farm where the greater part of the seeds offered therein are grown.

SPEAKING of business, M. J. Yopp, head of the seed company at Paducah, Ky., that bears his name, says—that "business in 1912 was fifty per cent better than the preceding year, and we hope to do equally as well for 1913. We are so located here that we have little to offer to the outside seed trade, as nothing of importance is grown around Paducah in the way of seeds, except cow peas. We usually have a few cars of these to offer, but this year they are extremely scarce in this section; not more than enough for local demands."

NATAL GRASS.

H. D. McMichael, manager of Crenshaw Bros. Seed Co., Tampa, Fla., comments on the increasing call for Natal grass in Florida and other southeastern states, and on the difficulty of procuring the seed. Many seedsmen do not know Natal grass. The botanical name is Tricholena rosea. It has had considerable publicity in southern papers and the U. S. Department of Agriculture has referred to it in several of its bulletins. In one just issued, entitled "Forage Crops for the Cotton Region," it speaks of Natal grass as follows:

"Natal grass, from South Africa, is much like crab-grass in habit of growth, but where the soil is very sandy it makes a heavier yield of better hay. It has become thoroughly established in parts of Florida and is gradually spreading over the sandy coast lands to the westward. The roots are killed by heavy frosts, but from central Florida southward it becomes perennial and is used occasionally for permanent meadows. Farther north it is an annual, making a volunteer growth in fields from which early crops have been gathered and often producing a heavy growth in cornfields after cultivation ceases."

STRAIN TESTS OF CABBAGE.

The Pennsylvania State College Agricultural Experiment Station, of State College, Pa., has just issued a bulletin, No. 119, entitled "Strain Tests of Cabbage," which will be of much interest to seedsmen. It names names. Through three years a study has been made at the station, from which it has been demonstrated that "important variations exist within varieties of cabbage. The average variation in yield for the test as a whole is somewhat more than seven tons per acre. The differences shown are not the result of environment, but are due to inherent properties of the seed. An interesting as well as a significant fact shown is that no one seedsman's strain excelled in every variety. A few had some varieties the strains of which were especially good and other varieties the strains of which were equally inferior. Other seedsman had varieties all of which were quite uniformly good, while the varieties of a few seedsman were generally inferior. This irregularity of results has doubtless come about through lack of proper vigilance on the part of the seedsman and seed growers."

The bulletin contains seven tables, covering as many different varieties, of which the following is an example. It gives the "general average of the test of Jersey Wakefield cabbage for the years 1909, 1910 and 1911":

Too few plants to estimate yield.

The bulletin comments on the above as follows: "A study of the table will show interesting variation with respect to each of the characters under consideration. It will be seen that the average weight of head varied from 0.95 to 1.72 pounds. In most instances, heads weighing less than one and one-fourth pounds are not desirable unless they mature very early. It is probable that the yield per acre at the first cutting may be considered as one of the most important factors. As a general practice the most profitable part of the crop is that which matures early. This feature is also desirable in that it permits of the ground being utilized for other purposes. A reference to the above table will show that the yield per acre at the first cutting for the thirty-one strains varied from 0.22 to 3.84 tons. Likewise, the corrected yield per acre varied from 6.93 to 10.76 tons per acre. Thus there was a difference of 3.83 tons per acre in favor of the better strain."

TARIFF ON GLADIOLUS BULBS.

Boddington's Quality Cannas

Are true to name, have two to three good eyes, are well cured, sound and dormant, and give absolute satisfaction. Our sales last year were nearly 700,000, and not an overgrown kick. The Canna crop this year, however, is very short, and we advise placing orders early to secure stock. Delivery can be made at purchaser's option. Remember, you may deduct 5% if cash accompanies the order.

in diameter and under should be admitted free of duty, and the bulbs or corms measuring above five-eighths of an inch in diameter should have a duty of twenty-five per cent ad valorem. Mr. Cowee further said:

"Prior to the tariff act of 1909 foreign-grown gladiolus bulbs bore a duty of twenty-five per cent ad valorem, but the revision of 1909 reduced this duty to 50 cents per thousand specific. This revision had hardly gone into effect before American growers were besieged with applications from Holland and German growers for small planting stock. These foreign growers heretofore were glad to secure our regular blooming-size bulbs and were to all appearances content with the growing of hardy bulbs, such as tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, etc., for which their soils are more suitable for growing. You can readily appreciate that, with the cheap labor which these foreign growers employ, it was not a hard task for them to make serious inroads upon our American growers, returning our own standard varieties at prices below the reach of the average grower but at handsome profits to themselves.

"I have several samples of what we call the heart bulblets, or heart corms, which have to be grown from one to three years before they produce blooming bulbs. Some corms, however, will produce blooming bulbs in two years, but rarely in one year. The different-sized bulbs, too, as they are grown from the bulblets, command different prices. For instance, the large bulbs, which you see there, are called by the foreign people 'top size,' and bring a higher price than those which are smaller.

"Why this change in the tariff or by whom requested, I am unable to state; suffice it to say that American growers of gladiolus bulbs were not responsible, for if they had been, provision would have been made for the different sizes of bulbs, and stages of development would have been taken into consideration and your speaker would have escaped a dilemma which confronted him some three years ago when importing some twenty-three barrels of small bulblets, hard and soft, upon which the collector of customs demanded a duty of 50 cents per thousand, which duty was prohibitive, compelling the return of the stock. Later your speaker had the opportunity of presenting this matter for a different ruling than that made by the port collector and a consistent ruling was made so far as the small bulblets, hard and soft, were concerned.

First, we contend that the gladiolus industry has become sufficiently important, so that our product, instead of being classified as 'other bulbs,' they should take their place with the tulip, narcissus, begonia and lily bulbs and be classified as 'gladiolus bulbs.' Second, that all gladiolus bulbs or bulbets, hard or soft, measuring five-eighths of an inch in diameter and under, should be admitted duty free. Third, that all gladiolus bulbs or corms measuring above five-eighths of an inch in diameter should be subject to a duty of twenty-five per cent ad valorem."

The following dialogue then ensued:

Mr. Harrison. You advocate transferring them from the basket clause in bulbs into that part of paragraph 263 which classifies the lily of the valley, tulips and gloxinia bulbs?

Mr. Cowee. Yes, sir.

Mr. Harrison. The result would be to raise the ad valorem equivalent 5.23 to 15.26, or practically tripling the duty.

Mr. Cowee. The duty as it is now is 50 cents per thousand. The gladiolus bulbs are classified as "all other bulbs that are grown for their flowers, 50 cents per thousand." What we hold is that they should be classified as "gladiolus bulbs," and carry a duty of twenty-five per cent ad valorem as heretofore.

Mr. Harrison. But at the present time the ad valorem equivalent, the duties they do pay, is only 5.23 per cent, because they only import the big ones?

Mr. Cowee. That depends altogether upon the prices of the bulbs. You take a bulb which you can purchase on the other side, say at $2 a thousand; the net price here would be $2.50 per thousand.

Mr. Harrison. We have all those figures worked out by the Treasury Department, and they give us an average. The average ad valorem equivalent to that rate, if your products are to be left in this basket clause, would be to only give them a five per cent duty.

Mr. Cowee. What we ask for is twenty-five per cent on blooming size bulbs, and to allow all bulbs below the blooming size to come in duty free the same as seed. One of the principal points I wish to impress upon your minds is that the extensive growing of gladioli was and is today a truly American industry. The rate of wages paid by us is from $9 to $15 per week for ten hours per day, while foreign growers are able to secure equally skilled labor for from $4.50 to $7.50 per week for twelve hours per day. Now, in order to conserve American labor and encourage the further development of this industry by Americans, the majority of the growers of the United States, whose signatures I have, believe we are entitled to and petition for a protective duty of twenty-five per cent ad valorem upon regular merchantable size bulbs.

Mr. Cowee filed the following petition, signed, he said, by owners of ninety per cent of the gladiolus acreage in America:

Honorable Sirs: We, the undersigned growers of gladiolus bulbs in the United States, realizing the roads made in our business by foreign growers, on account of the change in custom duty from twenty-five per cent ad valorem to 60 cents per thousand bulbs specific duty, and realizing that many of our standard varieties originating with us are taken abroad, grown by cheap labor and returned to the United States at unprofitable prices for American growers, would respectfully petition Congress to revise the tariff upon gladiolus bulbs so that blooming bulbs of any variety or mixture above five-eighths inch in diameter shall demand a custom duty of twenty-five per cent ad valorem and that bulblets, hard or soft, five-eighths inch in diameter and less shall be admitted duty free.

I Am On My Way

This is a big country to cover, and there are so many nice Florists to deal with, talk with, and occasionally scrap with, that I can not reach them all on this trip. Walking is good, if my money runs out. I'll get there some day.

Will soon have the following set to music:

"Oh, I sell everything you fellows grow; Tuberoses, Caladiums, all sizes and prices, high and low; Gladioli, America, Augusta, Brenchleyensis, mixed, and Francis King—For summer use they make good and are just the thing; Rubrum, Auratum, Album, with the wise grower always have a place, And never fail to make good returns for the coveted space. Don't say a geranium pays better to pot—A century ago you were right; today you are not. Count on your space, expense, labor and time; Then you will plant the Giganteum, the brand I call MINE."

I can not give you anything better than the best, it is not produced. I can not give a better grade for less money than the other fellows. But I CAN supply quality second to none. May I quote YOU? Paper Whites, one bulb to a million.

Do Not Take Any Fake Green Thread. Use the Genuine Silkline and Get More Thread and Less Wood

The MEYER Green

SILKALINE

Used by Retail Florists for mossing funeral designs, tying bunches, etc., is

THE ONLY ARTICLE THAT SHOULD BE USED by Growers for stringing Smilax and Asparagus, as it will not fade or rot in the greenhouse. The Meyer Silkline was the first green thread to be introduced among Florists and Growers. It is handled by the best houses everywhere, but it should be ordered by name—Meyer's Silkline—to be sure of getting the genuine article. Do not accept substitutes.

If your jobber cannot supply you, order direct of the manufacturers. Price for any size or color, $1.25 per lb. Sizes "F" fine, "FF" medium, and "FFF" coarse

JOHN C. MEYER & CO., Lowell Thread Mills, 1495 Middlesex St., LOWELL, MASS.

Silkline also is made in all leading colors, as Violet, for bunching violets, and also for tying fancy boxes.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business remains good and stock scarce, though some relief is found in the arrival of spring flowers. Sweet peas are coming along nicely and meet with a ready sale, especially as corsage flowers. Never in the history of Detroit have corsages been so popular and all the stores are getting their share of this business. Nothing special remains to be said of the market, except that the florists do not fear the approach of Lent as in past years. If it is not flowers for dinners, then it is funeral work, and there is always something doing.

Various Notes.

W. T. Barthel, who until recently was in the employ of Theo. Michel, will about February 1 open a retail store at 996 Mount Elliot avenue, at the corner of Gratiot avenue.

A baby girl arrived at the home of Albert Stahelin, in Redford, Mich., January 16. Both baby and mother are doing well and have the best wishes of Mr. Stahelin's numerous friends in the trade.

Some blooms of a deep pink sport of Rose-pink Enchantress, grown by Chas. A. Benson, of Denver, Colo., were recently received by the Detroit Cut Flower Supply House. These flowers proved to be unusually fine keepers and had fine, wiry stems and a good calyx. Many favorable comments were heard.

Prof. Filbert Burt, dean of the forestry department of the University of Michigan, delivered an address on "Michigan and Its Needs" at a luncheon given by the conservation committee of the Twentieth Century Club at noon, January 23. Among the guests of the society were Robert Flowerday, E. A. Fettes, Frank Danzer and Hugo Schroeter.

Otto Blatt, foreman at Gus. H. Taepke's McClellan avenue houses, celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary, January 21—not his wedding anniversary, but twenty-five years of continuous service in Mr. Taepke's employ, the last ten years in the capacity of foreman. Mr. Blatt is well known to the trade and, even though carnations have been scarce, he has had a good cut all along on his plants.

Sadness again reigns in the home of J. F. McHugh, where but a short time ago the eldest son died. Now the mother has also been taken to that Great Beyond from which there is no recall. Mrs. McHugh suffered a stroke of paralysis at the time of the death of her son and gradually became weaker until death ended her suffering on Sunday, January 19.

Peter Papes, formerly with the Alpha Floral Co., of Chicago, and Peter Duris, also of Chicago, opened a retail flower store in the new Broadway theater building, January 27. While their store is not a large one, it is finely equipped and in a good location. H. S.

Detroit, Mich.—The Evergreen cemetery contemplates erecting its first greenhouse during this year, and operating it in connection with the cemetery, to furnish the lot owners with plants and cut flowers. The superintendent, W. K. Nible, has been instructed to procure a suitable plan for the house, which will be ornamental as well as useful.

IT IS A STRANGE FACT that a day-old colt can run as fast as its mother. This has been brought about through evolution, since the day when horses ran wild and their means of escape from their enemies was flight. If a colt could not run fast enough it was left behind and eaten, so only the swiftest lived. Finally the breed improved by elimination of inferior stock, and the colts were born fleet of foot. It is the old story of the survival of the fittest. In the lily bulb business a similar process took place not long ago. Formerly fields "played out" and bulbs deteriorated after a time; but by careful attention and considerable expense a better grade of seed bulbs was secured, from only the healthiest plants, for new crops, so that to-day the Horseshoe Brand Giganteum fields in Japan are by far the finest lily fields anywhere in the World. The seed bulbs from these fields are of superior quality to anything ever produced, which is the best kind of assurance to our customers that our future crops will always be of the highest standard. You need such lily bulbs in your business, and we need your orders, which means your co-operation in the proper maintenance of this high standard of quality. Prices reasonable—sent on request.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

There is still practically nothing coming into the market from outdoors, and those wholesalers who depend entirely on this class of stock for their trade are nearly at a standstill. Violets are the only flowers that arrive in any quantity and these lack fragrance and size. Some of the doorway and curbstone florists have started in business again, but the carnations they are showing are poor caricatures of flowers. One wonders where the better class of retailers find stock enough to keep going on their funeral work, which has been quite brisk of late. Magnolia leaves and other colored foliage have sold better than for many years, as well as cypas and similar prepared stock.

Roses are coming in good shape from indoors; the Killarneys are better than for a long time. Beauties are also good now, though Prima Donna cuts in on the Beauty trade quite a little. This grand rose is making great headway among florists everywhere it has been tried. Carnations from inside are fine in color, large and of good substance, but there are not enough to go around. A steady demand for plants of all kinds has kept up since cut flowers have been so scarce.

Various Notes.

Howard & Smith have taken out the temporary fittings used in their new store at Ninth and Olive streets and are now rushing the indoor work to completion. This will surely be a grand store. The size, over all, of the store room is 50 x 75 feet, with large plate glass windows extending the entire length of the east and south fronts. One of the large windows will be used for the flower department, another for seeds and the others for plants and general supplies, as needed. As showing the value that Howard & Smith place on the fine old bamboos and palms which stand on this, the old Howard homestead, I should like to mention that they have set their building back many feet on an almost priceless building site in the center of the city and have made a recess or set-off at the rear, in order to avoid cutting or in any way injuring them. Alive to all the possibilities of the business, they spend a fortune on their new premises; yet their sense of the value of these beautiful old specimens has led them to give up this valuable land so they shall not be injured. In the future the far-seeing policy of Fred Howard and his brothers and Geo. W. Smith will be more and more apparent, for their store will not only be beautiful in itself, but will be in a setting that probably no other store in the world possesses. Above the store, on a mezzanine floor, are the offices, up-to-date in every respect, with separate rooms for each of the department heads, the general office staff and the outdoor men, so that each one can carry on his work without interfering with others or distracting their attention. A large conservatory, 35 x 75 feet, is to be built in the rear.

Geo. M. Garland, of Des Plaines, Ill., has been in the city for some few days, on business connected with greenhouse construction here. He is also working on a scheme for frost-protection, the details of which are not public property yet. Mr. Garland's health has something to do with his stay in California.

Among the recent funeral orders at O. C. Saakes' store was a magnificent casket cover of Beauty roses, a costly and effective piece.

Fine bulbous stock is now arriving at the store of the H. N. Gage Co. from the Montebello ranch. Morris is sure "some carpenter."

Andrew Druce, one of the errand boys in the employ of the Ingleside Floral Co., was run down by an automobile when riding his bicycle, and seriously injured, January 20.

The Los Angeles Flower Market has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $10,000. Manager Charles Morton holds ninety-eight per cent of the stock. Mr. Morton has also ordered a new Buick, so business is evidently "going strong."

Armacost & Co., of Ocean Park, continue to ship fine Liliun Harrisii to the market and they sell well during the scarcity of other flowers.

H. Reeve Darling has put up an elegant window. It represents a flower garden and walk leading to a house. A neatly dressed maid is coming out of the front door to meet a delivery boy from the Hayward flower store, who is carrying a box of flowers. This continues the idea of impressing on the public the fact that "we deliver," which has been a feature of Mr. Darling's advertising.

The Roserie reports good business at the new address, on Third street.

Fritz Bahr, of Highland Park, Ill., was a visitor last week. He is a relative of Mrs. F. Borden, and Mr. Borden has been showing him around. It is said Mr. Bahr has invested in real estate near Sacramento.

J. W. Wolters has been extremely busy, especially with decorations for parties and receptions. The receipts are far ahead of those of last year and for a better class of goods.

Local seedsmen all report trade as picking up since the rain. The catalogues are all out and stimulating business.

H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business has been holding up well, yet there is no rush. We usually expect things to be quiet during January. While there is no quantity or variety of stock, there seems to be plenty to take care of the demand. The bad weather of several weeks has shortened the crop of roses, yet the colors have held out well. Carnations have been about equal to the demand. The source of supply is broadening all the time. Shipping trade has been brisk. While there is no wholesale house here, florists generally do a wholesale business to a certain degree. Violets are quite scarce. California violets are almost out of the market; the cold weather practically put them out of commission. The street peddlers are suffering for lack of stock. Lilies are entirely off crop. Valley and orchids are equal to daily demand. Green goods have been scarce; there is an increasing demand all the time. Hyacinths, freesias and daffodils fill a much felt want, either in pans or as cut flowers.

Various Notes.

Trade in this section of the country has been brisk nearly all fall and winter, and January opened with an unexpected flood of orders for stock produced by the local growers.

Herbert & Fleishauer report an unusual demand for aster seed. Even at this early date many of the florists are placing orders for seed to be planted in March and April.

It seems to the writer that the winter has been rather dark, but in looking over the record, beginning with October, actual count shows four clear days, twelve days slightly cloudy or dark and fifteen days in which rain fell in that month. Then November brought sixteen days with rain, fourteen days of either clouds or fog and one most appreciated clear day. December brought three clear days, ten days of clouds and fog and eighteen days in which rain came, making a total of forty-nine days with rain, thirty-six days of clouds and fog and seven clear days in three months of ninety-two days. Some people would find fault with such weather, but few of the residents here, even newcomers, seem to object to it in the least. Up to the present time the thermometer has not registered lower than 16 degrees above zero and only a slight coating of snow has been seen.

You people who think you live in the land of sunshine may think your advantages over us are great, but if you could see the crop of lettuce now being harvested from the aster plant houses of Herbert & Fleishauer, and the carnations and other seasonable stock brought to the market by S. H. Maris and the other local growers, you would wish you lived in the land of plenty, where severe storms are never known. F.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The rainy weather of the last two weeks has given place to warm, sun-shiny days and frosty nights. The temperature has not gone so low as it did three weeks ago, however, and it appears that both the rain and the frost are about over. Outside violets and bulbous stock show the results of the weeks of cold weather they have passed through. They are more plentiful than they have been, but are far from being at their best.

Carnations and roses and, in fact, all sorts of inside stock are a shade cheaper and considerably more plentiful. Carnations, which were sold during the last four weeks at $4 per hundred, can now be had for twenty-five per cent less. Roses are in about the same fix, but are not quite so plentiful. Valley, Romans and a few early tulips and freesias are moving rapidly and at good figures. Quite a lot of Lilium longiflorum are seen and they are first-class stock. Orchids are a shade more in evidence than they have been and are in good demand. Green stock of all kinds, while not overabundant, is plentiful enough to fill all demands. Azaleas and cyclamens are being used in large quantities all over town to give color to the window displays. Red berries are over for the season, and a few straggling poinsettias are seen. Business, while not especially brisk, has a good, healthy tone and bids fair to keep up until Lent at least.

Various Notes.

W. H. Mann, for over fifteen years head gardener on the grounds of the Hercules Powder Co., at Giant, Cal., and well known to all the gardening fraternity of the bay cities, committed suicide by cutting his throat January 17. He was 60 years of age and had been in poor health for some time.

The California State Floral Society has sent out announcements of the spring exhibition, to be held in the Fairmount hotel early in March.

The California Retail Florists' Association held a meeting at the store of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. on the evening of January 20. It was quite largely attended.

been no apparent shortage, stock has been well cleaned up. California stock is not now so much in evidence as usual. SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Business continues dull in most of the flower stores. Some few are occasionally busy with funeral work and a decoration sometimes gives a little stimulus, but trade on the whole is quiet. Roses are coming in from California and the east in good shape and the demand is mostly met by them. Carnations are plentiful, but the stock, as a rule, is none too good. Tulips and narcissi are fairly abundant and some high grade orchids are now offered. The supply of California violets has fallen off, also the demand, people preferring more expensive flowers for corsage bouquets. Cinerarias are plentiful, as are primulas and cyclamens. Green is about the only commodity that is at all scarce; even the hardy ferns are hardly procurable, owing to the snow in the woods.

Various Notes.

The East Seattle Floral Co. has a fine stock of Primula obconica, part of which is being carried over for Easter. At this place the bedding plants and other potted stock are looking fine and first-class carnations are being cut. Victory is the principal red grown and it compares favorably with more recent introductions.

Carl Melby, who last week had an operation for appendicitis, is doing well, according to last reports.

The lawsuit brought by the Bryn Mawr Greenhouse Co. against E. Matraia, the Paris Florist, over a dispute in the price of Easter lilies, was decided in favor of the defendant. The plaintiff contended that the lilies were sold at 12½ cents and the defendant stated

ONIONS UNDER GLASS.

Will you kindly inform me which is the better way to force onions, in flats or benches, and what are the methods of culture?
J. A. & S.

It is not stated in your letter whether you want to grow the onions under glass until marketed or merely to get them of a suitable size to plant outdoors. If intended for transplanting outdoors in spring, sow in flats of light soil; one containing a fair proportion of well rotted and pulverized manure, with loam, is suitable. Let the onions germinate in a house kept at 50 to 55 degrees at night. Do not sow too thickly, or the plants will become drawn and weak. This sowing can be done now. Later prick out the seedlings moderately closely in either flats or benches, and plant outdoors in heavily manured ground as soon as the weather is settled. I should prefer flats to benches, as you could then stand the flats in coldframes and harden the plants off better. In planting out, set the onions four inches apart in the rows, allowing eighteen inches between the rows. This will give large bulbs and is what is termed the "new onion culture," a plan adopted, however, many years ago.

If you want to grow your onions under glass altogether, sow as suggested, in flats, and later transplant to benches containing compost heavily manured. If the onions are to be pulled green and sold in bunches, they can go quite close together. If, on the other hand, they are to be left to produce bulbs, they must have more growing space. They want a rich soil, abundant water supply and feeding with liquid manure. Their greatest enemy is thrips. Keep a fairly moist atmosphere and this pest will not trouble you. In transplanting the seedling onions, cut back the tops half their length and they will start much better. Good varieties are Prize-taker, which makes large bulbs, Yellow Danvers and Red Globe. For a small white, early onion, Queen is the best.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

THE Russell Nurseries, Lincoln, Neb., have been acquired by the Griswold Seed Co., which also has added a greenhouse for propagating and will hereafter handle a full line of nursery stock.

It is reported that Herbert Chase, the nurseryman of Huntsville, Ala., has sold all of the land formerly used by the Alabama Nursery Co., two miles northwest of Huntsville. The price, it is said, was $28,000. The purchasers are Bradley & Conner, real estate agents, who expect to divide the land into small tracts and sell it to truck farmers and dairymen. Mr. Chase, who is manager of the Chase Nursery Co., also became sole owner of the interests of the Alabama Nursery Co. early in 1912.

OHIO NURSERYMEN MEET.

The sixth annual convention of the Ohio Nurserymen's Association was held at Zanesville January 22. The following officers were elected:

President—W. N. Scarff, of New Carlisle.

Secretary—W. B. Cole, of Painesville.

Treasurer—A. R. Pickett, of Clyde.

Executive committee—Robert George, Painesville; A. R. Dinsmorth, Troy; T. B. West, Perry county; W. F. Bohlender, Tippecanoe City, and J. W. Gaines, Xenia.

The next meeting will be held in the city that secures the next Ohio state apple show. A resolution was adopted asking that the annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen in 1914 be held in Cleveland. It is to be held this year in Portland, Ore. It was in Boston, Mass., last year and the central states ought to get it the

COMMODORE

THE BEST RED CARNATION

So pronounced by the leading carnation growers. A fine grower, does not split; a brilliant red, much deeper in color than Beacon and a variety destined to become the leader in its color. Its keeping qualities are as good as Pink Delight, which is considered the best keeper among Carnations. All growers should try Commodore.

NEW CARNATIONS

Wm. Eccles The First Prize winner at Detroit last year in the Red or Scarlet class, and the Silver Medal winner of the New York Horticultural Society for the best undisseminated seedling. The Scarlet everyone was waiting for. Has a strong, rigid stem, a perfectly formed $3\frac{1}{2}$ -inch flower, non-bursting calyx, highly perfumed, a grand keeper and as free as any Scarlet to date.

Lady Northcliffe (Engelmann). A beautiful Salmon-pink in color, much resembling Pink Delight. Has a well built up flower and just enough in it not to burst the calyx. While the flower is not the largest (about 3 inches), it is fully as free as May Day and will surely make a grand bread-and-butter sort.

British Triumph (Engelmann). One of the finest things ever raised in England. The color is a striking shade of Crimson. The flower is $3\frac{1}{2}$ -inch in size and well built up. It has the sweetest perfume of any Carnation ever raised, and its keeping qualities are the best. Has a fine stem, good constitution and is free.

PRICES: $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

Also Mrs. C. W. Ward and Enchantress. Fine rooted cuttings, ready to ship.

Prices: $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000

Color, cerise-pink. This variety has been thoroughly tried out for the past five years and we offer it today with every confidence that it will ultimately take first place as the premier dark pink. The color is similar to Mrs. C. W. Ward, without the objectionable streakiness and tendency to burst the calyx of the latter variety during the dark weather.

The growth is wonderfully free and continuous, and Northport will produce more flowers per plant than any other variety of its type. The calyx is practically non-bursting, and a look at its record on the show table will indicate its value from an exhibition point of view.

alissimo of arrangements, and myself have been in frequent communication for the last few weeks," he says, "and matters are shaping nicely. In all probability the new Hotel Oregon will be decided on as headquarters. It possesses a palatial auditorium for meetings and ample space for exhibits. Hotel rates will be reasonable, varying from $1.50 to $6. The Transcontinental Passenger Association has published its schedule of rates and will issue summer tourist tickets from Chicago to Portland, returning by same or any other direct route, for $75. It will be possible to buy a ticket in New York city to Portland and return for $111.30. The rate from Rochester will be $96.30. President Meehan has appointed Marsden G. Fox, of Rochester, to rally the eastern members on the subject of special cars, and that gentleman at once inaugurated a vigorous canvass, the results of which are quite gratifying. He is hoping that members in the middle, southern and southeastern states will arrange to connect at Chicago, so that all can cross the continent together."

MONEY FOR THE QUARANTINE.

In the agricultural appropriation bill now pending in Congress the sum of $40,000 is provided for the purposes of the federal plant quarantine, or $10,000 less than the estimates. In reporting the bill the committee said:

"This appropriation is necessary to carry out the purposes of the act. Foreign quarantine at ports of entry should be under the control of the federal government. It has been necessary during the past year to conduct this quarantine at ports through state quarantine officers and with the aid of experts delegated from different bureaus of the department to meet emergencies. This is a very unsatisfactory system, giving no federal control over the permanence or personnel of the force, and does not give the efficiency which the proper enforcement of the act calls for. The cost of port quarantine may be indicated by the fact that the state salary roll for the port guardians of the state of California amounts to some $18,000. This is, however, the principal item of expense in quarantine work, as much of the quarantine is in relation to the exclusion of fruit flies and other similar pests from Pacific coast ports. There is, however, additional expense connected with Pacific coast ports of other states, and some legitimate items of expense at eastern and other ports."

ENCHANTRESS SUPREME

THE best Sport of Enchantress up to date, possessing all the vigor and freedom that distinguish its parent. Color a light salmon pink—a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching. A good all-round Carnation that retains its color at all seasons. Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter. Has shown no inclination to be a burster. The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years' duration convinces us of its great value.

The Market.

Business is as good as can be expected, with no great change in the market conditions. Funeral orders are steady and everybody seems to have his share of the work along that line. Carnations are still plentiful and are selling at a normal price. The red ones seem to be rather scarce compared with the white and pink shades. Roman hyacinths and Paper Whites are plentiful. Snapdragons and freesias are also abundant and seem to be in demand. Roses are scarce in all colors, especially the Richmonds. The Killarneys are bringing a good price, though the stock is only fair. Sweet peas are selling at a fair price. Tulips, hyacinths and jonquils have commenced to come in rather heavily, and this will mean a decline in the price of all stock. Pot plants seem to continue in favor with the public.

Various Notes.

E. D. Ellsworth has a fine lot of tulips and daffodils in bloom. He sells a great many pans of daffodils. He also has a choice lot of crabapple and rhododendrons, which he imported from Holland.

Henry Kusik & Co. are receiving a fine lot of carnations. They also have some nice roses coming in each day, but not enough to meet the demand.

The George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. has had lots of funeral work this week. The firm finds roses extremely scarce at present.

Mr. Carter, of the Rock Flower Co., is back at work again and says that the firm had a splendid run of business last week.

The Peterson Floral Co. reports business as being excellent since the holidays. Mr. Kane was on jury service last week.

S. Murray has a fine lot of lilac. He is flowering some at present which look especially good.

A. Newell always has a good display in his windows and it takes a lot of stock to keep them filled, for the space is large.

W. J. Barnes put in the decorations at Convention hall for the lumbermen's convention. W. J. B.

Irondequoit, N. Y.—Mrs. J. M. Pendleton has gone out of business, the farm having been sold for division into building lots. Mrs. Pendleton had made more than a local reputation as a grower of asters for the cut flower markets. She now is living in Rochester.

THE HERALD

Besides, this is a money proposition: The Herald will produce at least one-third more blooms than any other scarlet: early, free and continuous bloomer; stem long and always stiff; flowers large, full and of a clear, even shade of scarlet; calyx absolutely non-bursting, making it the highest type of a commercial carnation and one of greatest value to you. CARNATIONS

We have the following varieties ready for delivery. Fine strong cuttings, well rooted and in perfect health.

In making up your list of varieties to grow next season, do not fail to include our two leaders. St. Nicholas is proving itself the best all-season scarlet. It will cover the whole season. Pocahontas is the only crimson that will grade up with the best standard sorts. If you grow any crimson, grow Pocahontas.

The Market.

With two warm spells last week, receipts in most lines were increased considerably, but the average business done was equal to the occasion and nothing went to waste. The supply of sweet peas has increased wonderfully and the quality also has improved; some of the stock seen is as fine as ever came to this market.

Various Notes.

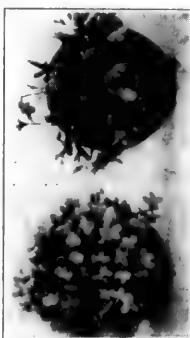

Charles Burmeister, of Tippecanoe, is cutting large quantities of extra fine sweet peas in three shades. They are quickly disposed of at the local wholesale houses.

Nic Zweifel has several benches of Gloriosa carnations from which he is propagating only. He thinks it is a good thing and, judging from the orders he receives for it, others seem to think likewise.

Manke Bros.' carnation range at North Milwaukee will soon be one mass of blooms. They regret not having had them about four weeks sooner.

Preparations for the carnation exhibition to be held in connection with the regular monthly meeting, February 6, are well under way and the show will undoubtedly be of unusual interest. Several out-of-town carnation specialists have consented to display seedlings and some of the newer varieties, but we should like to hear from a few more. If you have nothing new, a vase of twenty-five of any of the commercial varieties will be welcome. This exhibition is open to all. The committee in charge consists of A. F. Kellner, C. C. Pollworth and Gustav Pohl. All exhibits from out of town should be addressed to the Milwaukee Florists' Club, care of C. C. Pollworth Co., City Hall Square, Milwaukee, Wis. E. O.

Conrad, Ind.—L. N. T. Whittin and K. A. Whittin, who did business here as the Mansion House Gardens, are removing to Roselawn, Ind., where they will have much better facilities, especially for the growing of asters, which they intend to make a leader.

NEW LOBELIA

MRS. AUG. SWANSON

It is a sport from Bedding Queen, which we found among our plants in 1911. It is a wonderful improvement on the old variety, having two-thirds more white in center than any other Lobelia we have ever seen. The large white eye is a beautiful contrast to the deep blue of the balance of the flower. A plant in full bloom is simply irresistible to any lover of flowers. It is the best selling plant any florist could handle the coming spring, as it is the showiest plant for the Garden, Park, Cemetery or Flower Box and Vases. It will be a money-maker and customer-bringer par excellence for the florists. Price of large October soil rooted cuttings, very bushy, 75c per dozen; $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000. Delivered free of charge.

PREPARE FOR MEMORIAL DAY

AND BEDDING-OUT TIME

MY

is the peer of all Snapdragons. It is not the coarse and long-headed kind, but a soft, delicate pink that comes most perfect in full sunshine, both indoors and out. It is unexcelled for the field or border. Use seeds for bedding stock and plants for Memorial. I have a block of plants that will be ready about Feb. 20, when they must go, as we need the space March 1.

Plants will be stocky and branched, same as shown here, and the price is $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000, by express. Order today, as my stock is limited to 8,000 plants.

Price of pure seed, $1.00 per pkt. of over 500 seeds; 3 pkts., $2.50, delivered anywhere in the world. Cash must accompany all orders.

Use seedlings for a full crop at Memorial day. Plants from cuttings are good, but will have an extended flowering season. When this is desired the same can be had of seedlings, regulated by pinching, but you cannot have every shoot ready for market at practically the same time except by the use of seedlings, where every shoot is a "live wire," of the same age. The plants we offer have been pinched and handled for a MEMORIAL CROP, when you will want BLOSSOMS, and all you can get. Plants will have three to five branches. Make room for a lot and order at once. If you need proof, read the following letters:

Now write your order to the original SILVER PINK man—

Biddeford, Me., Jan. 15, 1913.

Mr. G. S. Ramsburg.
Dear Sir:—Your bed of Silver Pink Snapdragon seedlings at Memorial last year were a pleasing sight, being in full, even crop.
Very respectfully,
Charles S. Strout.

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 12, 1912.

G. S. Ramsburg, Esq., Somersworth, N. H.
My Dear Mr. Ramsburg:—I have been thinking over the matter of your Silver Pink Snapdragon for a good while, and have been waiting for them to come into bloom nicely before I would form a definite opinion of them. I personally think they are the finest I ever saw, both for size and color, and we are preparing for a big season with them the coming year.
Yours truly,
G. R. Noble.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business has been a little slow for several days, but this week opened with somewhat better prospects. The rain, which has been almost continuous, has ceased and the weather is cooler. The unusually warm winter has lessened firing considerably and so caused light coal bills. Flowers and plants are abundant, so if business keeps up, profits should be good. The Ohio river at this point was higher last week than it has been since 1884. Some of the lower parts of the city were flooded, but not so badly as some of the reports sent out indicated. The river is falling rapidly now.

Various Notes.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are having heavy cuts of roses and carnations. Thousands of carnations can be cut and hardly missed. Killarney and White Killarney are doing finely, giving good flowers on long stems. The violets are doing well.

The William Blackman Floral Co. is having good cuts of roses and carnations, of excellent quality. The store window is kept well filled with various plants and cut flowers, which attract considerable attention.

J. C. Elsperrmann is having a nice trade right along. His carnations keep doing well.

Louis Fritsch is cutting some fine carnations on long, stiff stems.

Ben Kramer has been using a good many roses, carnations and sweet peas.

C. L. Niednagel has been shipping Killarney to St. Louis and receiving excellent returns. His My Maryland have been dried off and started up again and are breaking well, giving promise of large cuts this spring and summer.
E. L. F.

Dillon, Mont.—The Dillon Greenhouse Co., capitalized at $30,000, has been incorporated.

The New Forcing Rose Mrs. Charles Russell

New American Beauty Geranium

We take great pleasure in introducing to our many customers for 1913 the New American Beauty Geranium. For the first time, after working on this wonderful new Geranium for nearly three years, we are offering it for sale. It originated from a novelty collection and has stood the test now nearly three years.

Our Claim for American Beauty Geranium is that it surpasses all other Geraniums in its real American Beauty color—

1. In brilliancy of color.
2. In size of its large blooms.
3. In earliness of bloom.
4. In constancy of bloom.
5. In vigor, strength and stocky plants.
6. In propagating quality.
7. In number of large clusters of blooms.
8. In selling quality.
9. In a wonderful ability to retain its color in cool or the hottest weather.
10. In a Geranium that has come to stay as a money maker.

AMERICAN BEAUTY is semi-double, of the purest American Beauty color. It is so distinct that no difference can be detected in the color of an American Beauty Rose. The only Geranium of its color ever introduced. It flowers freely the entire season. It grows compact, medium dwarf, of stately shape with lustrous green foliage, slightly corrugated, with a brownish circle. It produces gigantic flower heads very freely the entire season. We claim it to have larger flower heads than any other variety of its kind. The individual blooms measure 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches across and have as many as eight fully opened, gigantic flower spikes and several half open and more in bud, in eight-inch pots.

If you wish them shipped by Parcel Post, enclose stamps.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

The weather has been unusually warm for midwinter, and though the days have been cloudy, there has been an abundance of flowers. Roses and carnations are plentiful. Violets, however, are scarce. Sweet peas are more plentiful now. Paper Whites, daffodils, daisies and freesias are arriving in great quantities. Harrisii lilies are scarce, but valley is abundant. Cat-tleas and cypripediums are not in great demand at this season. Azaleas, Primula obconica, cyclamens and camelias are good and are much in demand as flowering plants.

Various Notes.

H. F. Palmer, of West Hartford, is growing excellent pink and white sweet peas, which are finding a ready sale in this city.

Meacham & Hassell have put in a new counter with a Vitrolite top, which is most serviceable and neat in appearance.

R. Engelmann, of Pittsfield, Mass., is disposing of some of his carnations in this market.

The annual meeting of the Springfield Amateur Horticultural Society took place early in January, and the following officers were elected: President, J. Alden Davis; first vice-president, A. J. Griffin; second vice-president, Charles Candrian; treasurer, Joseph Aumer; secretary, Mrs. Grace P. Johnson. The election of the board of managers was postponed until next meeting.

The last week has been a busy one at N. F. Higgins' State street store, with funeral and miscellaneous work.

Connie Hassell did an artistic table decoration at Hotel Kimball January 23. E. C. A.

Morgantown, W. Va.—The South Park Greenhouse Co. has 12,000 square feet of glass and makes the best possible use of all the space, under the skillful management of J. W. McKay. Though the principal output is flowers, vegetables are grown to advantage as a midwinter crop. The greenhouses are located at 5 Franklin street, South Park.

THE NEW PINK CARNATION.

NORTHPORT.

Color, cerise pink. This variety has been thoroughly tried out for the past five years and we offer it today with every confidence that it will ultimately take first place as the premier dark pink. The color is similar to Mrs. C. W. Ward without the objectionable streakiness and tendency to burst the calyx of the latter variety during the dark weather. The growth is wonderfully free and continuous and Northport will produce more flowers per plant than any other variety of its type. The calyx is practically non-bursting. Rooted cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

We have for immediate delivery Al rooted cuttings of Enchantress, White Enchantress and Beacon at $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. Jas. D. Cockcroft, Northport, L. I., N. Y.

GARDENERS' ASSOCIATION.

The National Association of Gardeners has selected the Murray Hill hotel, Forty-first street and Park avenue, New York city, as its headquarters during the International Flower Show week.

The hotel is conveniently situated with reference to the Grand Central Palace, being only five short blocks from the hall and the same distance from Broadway, so that it is also easy of access to the city's amusement center.

The management has set a rate of $2 per day for single person, and $3 for two persons in a room, including privilege of bath. The men's dining hall will be set aside as the rendezvous for members to congregate morning, noon and night. Breakfast, lunch and dinner will be served in this hall, at a reasonable price. The hotel management promises to provide every facility to make the hotel a hospitable hostelry for the gardeners during their stay.

Members can communicate direct with the hotel for reservations of rooms. Those who intend to attend the International Show will do well to reserve their rooms at an early date, as a big crowd is looked for; as the national association's headquarters will be a popular place, those that apply late may find that they cannot be accommodated. Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each boiler advertised in The Review is a good boiler, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

IN INDIANA.

I am planning on building a house 20x50 or perhaps 20x80, running east and west and connecting a house on the end running north and south, and would appreciate information as to how to bench and pipe with hot water. The crops will be carnations, lettuce, geraniums, smilax, alyssum, lilies and such things as I can grow in 50 to 52 degrees in Indiana climate. B. A. A.

The sketch that accompanied this inquiry showed one house 12½x40 feet, with another 20x50 feet across the end, forming a T. The boiler is between the houses and has a rating of 1,250 feet. It has a 3-inch outlet and a 4-inch intake.

To heat the narrow house run a 2½-inch flow pipe under the ridge and six 2-inch returns on the walls, using three pipes for each coil. At least one pipe on each wall should have a gate valve located at some convenient point, as four returns will heat the house in all but the coldest weather.

The other house has a door at each end and one between the two houses, which complicates matters to some extent. If the house is fifty feet long it will require 300 square feet of radiation to warm it to 52 degrees in zero weather. Carry a 3-inch pipe from the boiler up to a point a foot under the ridge and run a 2½-inch flow

Which Result will YOU Show Next Easter?

Use Our GIBLIN "STANDARD" GREENHOUSE BOILER

WILL IT COST YOU $260 OR $1200?

Study our illustration—see how a certain greenhouse man paid $260.00 for his boiler and fuel during the winter—while his neighbor tried to save money by buying a "cheap" (?) boiler and sank $1200.00.

The man who spent $260.00 used our GIBLIN "Standard" Greenhouse Boiler.

It is the biggest saver you can put into your greenhouse.

Phillip Warner, Newtonville, N. Y., in August, 1911, bought one No. 408 Giblin Standard Greenhouse Boiler. January 7, 1912, the thermometer was 12 degrees below zero outside, with a strong gale blowing. He fixed his fire at 8 p. m., and every part of the greenhouse registered 52 degrees, the temperature desired. Because of the wildness of the night, he arose at 2 a. m. and found every part of the greenhouse 52 degrees and the fire in good condition. Because he was up, he placed a very small quantity of fuel on the fire and went to bed until 6 a. m. He then found the fire in splendid condition, the thermometer registering 52 degrees in all parts of the greenhouse, with conditions unchanged outdoors. The boiler that will heat a greenhouse ten hours without attention, when the thermometer is 12 degrees below zero and a gale blowing, is the boiler every florist wants in his greenhouse.

Can you afford to disregard the importance of this showing?

You save money every year you use our GIBLIN "Standard" Greenhouse Boiler, by reducing your fuel consumption, repairs and labor cost to the minimum.

Not a "cheap" outfit

Although we offer an extra discount of 25%, in addition to our liberal regular discount, for the purpose of introducing our boiler in your neighborhood, this is not a "cheap" outfit. The price is right for the grade and quality of workmanship we put into it—the very best.

You want a boiler that requires very little attention and leaves you free to devote your valuable time to more important things. Neither you nor your men relish getting up at midnight, 3 a. m. and sunrise to feed a hungry heater.

The GIBLIN "Standard" requires attention only once in twelve hours in ordinary weather.

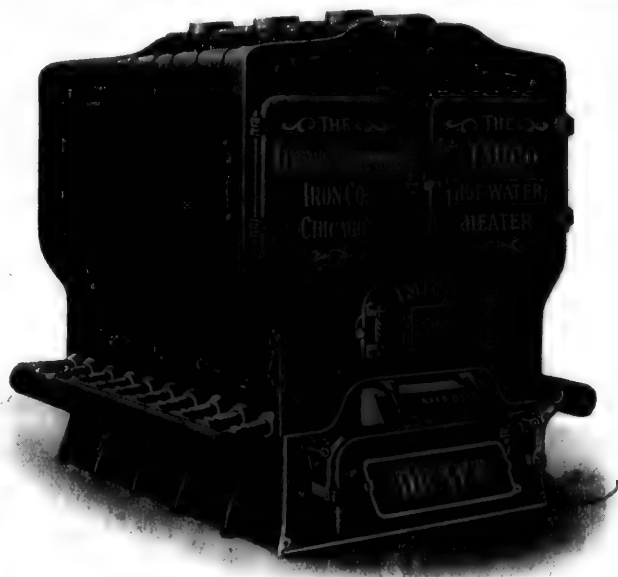

It economizes on repairs because of its unusually sturdy construction. All of the castings are tested at pressure of 65 lbs. to the square inch—far more than they will ever undergo in actual use. Our boiler will last a lifetime, and once you've bought it your heating worries are off your mind for once and all. Can you say the same about your present boiler?

Wouldn't it pay you to "scrap" the outfit you now have and start saving by using a GIBLIN "Standard"?

of five 2-inch pipes, which should be carried along the walls until they reach a doorway, where they should be connected with 2½-inch return pipes, which should be carried under the doors and back to the boiler.

This provides radiation for all parts of the house except in the corner near the boiler. For this arrange a coil of five 2-inch pipes running between the doorways and feed it from the 2-inch flow which was extended to the west end of the house, and connect with the boiler by means of a 2-inch return. This plan supposes that there is no glass in the side walls and that the top of the boiler is below the floor.

IN PENNSYLVANIA.

I am building a greenhouse 16x100 feet, side walls five feet high, with eighteen inches of glass. The house will be thirteen feet from the floor to the ridge. What would be the best way to heat this house by steam? The temperature required will be 60 degrees when the thermometer shows zero weather outdoors. I do not care about using extra large pipe if it can be avoided. Does elevation make any difference with steam? S. S. S.

To heat the house described to 60 degrees, using steam, will require about 350 square feet of radiating surface, and to keep up steam using the least possible care and with greatest economy of fuel will require a ten horsepower boiler.

For the feed pipe a 2-inch pipe can be run to the farther end of the house at a slight fall, a foot or so under the

The Morehead Steam Trap as a Dividend Payer

AMONG boiler-room appliances there is none that possesses, to an equal degree, the time, fuel, water and labor-saving qualities of the

Morehead Return Steam Trap and Boiler Feed

The Value of this Temperature Difference.

There are only a few degrees difference in temperature between the steam going into your system and the water of condensation coming out.

A Morehead Boiler Feed Trap will deliver this water direct to the boilers from the steam lines at a still higher temperature (20 degrees and above) and on 90% less steam than is consumed by the pump for returning the same quantity of water of condensation.

It is very foolish, therefore, to cool this condensation down to a low temperature (212 degrees or less) simply to accommodate your steam pump in putting the water back into your boilers.

- Don't spend money to heat water when you can use over and over the water you have already heated.
- Condensation from any steam heating or power apparatus must be removed to get efficiency. The Morehead Steam Trap does it quicker, easier and makes better use of it than any other means or appliance.
- The Morehead is a silent but generous contributor to the Dividend Fund. Just ask the user of a Morehead Trap in your neighborhood. The purchaser is our best salesman.

ridge, and this can be used to feed a coil of four 1¼-inch pipes on each side wall. If preferred, a part of the pipes can be under the benches.

Another way would be to run two coils of six 1¼-inch pipes downhill, away from the boiler. Connect each coil with the boiler, or with the main feed pipe, by means of a 2-inch pipe and run a 1¼-inch drip pipe from the farther end of each coil back to the boiler.

Elevation makes little difference with steam, provided the coils are two feet above the water level of the boiler in short houses and three or four feet in long houses, when the water is returned to the boiler by gravity.

adjoining building, the top of the boiler being just above the surface of the ground. On the south side of the house is a hotbed 6x50 feet. A rose temperature must be maintained, in the climate of northern New York. E. V.

To maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in the greenhouse described above, when it is 30 degrees below zero outside, will require about 600 square feet of radiation. Run four 2½-inch flow pipes downhill through the house, placing one on each plate, and one on each purlin post eighteen inches below the glass. Sixteen 2-inch return pipes will be required. These can be arranged in four coils under the benches, placing one coil under each side bench and two under the middle bench.

For the hotbed use two 2-inch pipes for 50 degrees, and three if 60 degrees is desired. Place one on the wall next to the greenhouse and one or two on the outer wall. Connect these returns with the coil on the south plate of the greenhouse.

THREE NEW JERSEY HOUSES.

I am about to purchase a thirty-five horse-power, brick-set, horizontal boiler, 4x12 feet, containing thirty tubes. I should like to know whether it can be used successfully to heat my greenhouses with hot water. I have three houses, which are parallel but separated by passageways. Two of the houses are each 16x100. The other house, which is on the outside, is 25x100. A shed, sixty-seven feet long, extends across the ends of the houses. The boiler is in one end of this shed, near the 25-foot house. The boiler has a 4-inch opening on top. What I want to know is, whether I can heat pipes of that length satisfactorily, as I have been told that 100 feet is about the limit for hot water heat. The distance from the boiler to the farthest house would be at least fifty-five or sixty feet, and added to that would be the length of the house, 100 feet.

W. J. H.

The temperatures at which the houses are to be kept are not stated, but the boiler can be made to keep the houses as warm as can possibly be desired, provided everything else is properly installed. There would be no difficulty about heating with hot water, even if the houses were several hundred feet long. To get the best results there should be a 3-inch flange on the boiler,

Kroeschell versus Cast Iron

The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 sq. ft. of glass; I think it can take care of 18,000 ft. I do not have any trouble to keep up temperature of 50° in the coldest weather. I fire only once after 12 o'clock midnight. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers—like the Kroeschell best of all. If anyone wishes to inquire about your boiler, let them write me, for I think your boilers are good ones.

CHARLES SCHULTZ,
Menominee, Mich.

Cast Iron Boilers Crack

Our large cast iron sectional boiler cracked one section and the header last Sunday. It seemed to turn cold about the same time that the break occurred. By Monday night it was 14° below zero. However, by putting up coal stoves, oil stoves, lamps and pushing up the small furnace we have managed to keep most of our stock in pretty good shape, and our total loss, furnace and all, will be between $500 and $600. Just luck that it was not all gone.

New Kroeschell boiler ordered by telegraph on Sunday, shipped Monday, reached here on Friday; hauled to greenhouse on Saturday and started a fire Sunday; just seven days and ten hours after the accident. When dealing with people who will deliver a boiler as quick as that you cannot give up.

Yours very truly,
MICHLER BROS. CO.,

CAST IRON BOILERS CRACK

I want to thank you for your promptness in shipping the boiler I ordered of you on January 13th. I had a breakdown, one of a battery of two cast iron boilers cracked so it was impossible to use same, so I got you on the telephone at 8:30 a. m., January 13th, and ordered one of your hot water boilers. Same was put in my boiler room in the afternoon of January 15th, after which we built foundation and connected up. Since that time the boiler has taken care of same glass as the two cast iron boilers had done easier and better in every way.

Kroeschell Better Than Cast Iron

The Kroeschell boiler is indeed a dandy and beats any cast iron boiler we have had any experience with.

Respectfully,
A. BECKRINK,
Jamestown, N. Y.

Kroeschell vs. Return Tubular Boiler

Kroeschell Saved $\frac{1}{4}$ the Coal

The No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler purchased of you in 1909 has given the very best satisfaction—would wish no better. Have taken out return tubular boiler this fall which used one-half more coal than your present boiler. Your boiler is so easy to regulate that in a few minutes I can run up the temperature very quickly. The return and flow connection with Generator, all work the very best according to your plans.

FRANK A. WAGNER,
Tiffin, Ohio.

CAST IRON BOILERS WASTE FUEL

I bought a No. 3 boiler in 1901. We had a corrugated cast iron fire box boiler and sectional cast iron boiler before we bought yours in 1901. The cost of heating with this boiler is one-half less than it was with my cast iron boilers. Your No. 8 boiler, which we bought recently of you, is not being run to its full capacity.

LANCASTER, PA.

On Thursday afternoon, January 16, twenty-seven members of the Lancaster County Florists' Association visited the greenhouses of Amos Rohrer and Charles B. Herr, of Strasburg, and of Enos Kohr, on the Lititz turnpike.

In the evening a meeting was held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, where the following officers were elected: President, A. M. Herr; vice-president, Elmer Weaver; secretary, Lemon Landis; treasurer, H. K. Rohrer.

E. P. Hostetter, of Manheim, Pa., had on exhibition twelve vases of fine sweet peas, with stems twelve inches long.

For the purpose of arranging a program for the next meeting, on the third Thursday evening in February, M. J. Brinton, of Christiana; H. K. Rohrer, of this city, and Frank Kohr, of Diller-ville, were appointed. The subject for discussion will probably be "Carnation Day." This meeting will afford a good opportunity for introducers to display a few of their blooms to carnation buyers. Flowers can be sent to reach here by Thursday noon, care of H. A. Schroyer, Lancaster, Pa.

The association held a banquet later in the evening at Hotel Wheatland, thirty-two persons being in attendance. Francis Bachler, of this city, acted as toastmaster and a number of responses were made. The retail florists of the city furnished the table decorations.

Hudson Falls, N. Y.—Samuel C. Hagen is a beginner in the business. He has a house 17 x 62 and plans to start at once on another, 15 x 65.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

The general report of last week's trade assures us that it did not come up to that of the week previous. The weather was bad, and people could not get out to buy flowers, although the demands for funeral work keep up fairly well. Carnations were plentiful, but roses seemed to be scarce with everybody. Giganteums are commencing to put in their appearance again, after a prolonged shortage. Freesias, narcissi and other seasonable bulbous stock are abundant. The weather through the last few weeks has been hard on the blooming, growing and keeping qualities of stock. Pot plants seem to be daily increasing in popularity.

Various Notes.

The Dayton Floral Co. introduced something a little new last week, in the form of azaleas of miniature size. They took well with their customers.

M. Anderson says it is quite gratifying to note the increase in business at his stand in the Elder-Johnston store.

Excitement was created at the plant of the Miami Floral Co. last week, when a telephone man lost his balance and fell from his ladder, going through sash-bars and glass, and landing in the sand of the propagating bench.

W. W. Horlacher had several fine decorations last week, for luncheons and parties.

L. S. Bibler and George S. Thompson, of the Columbus Floral Co., Columbus, O., visited some of their Dayton customers last week. From here they went on to Springfield. They gave encouraging reports on business and expect to extend their plant in the spring, to grow a more extensive variety of stock.

Jos. I. Schaefer had a special run on Primula obconica last week.

Jos. Furst, who has been in poor health during the summer, is steadily regaining his strength and is able to give more attention to his business.

Walter G. Matthews, who was ill with the grip last week, is able to resume his duties at the store.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Mittman are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a baby boy, born January 22.

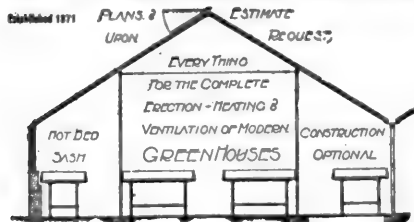

The new greenhouses of the National Cash Register Co. are completed and filled with an exceptionally fine lot of stock.

P. J. Agnew was wearing an exceptionally large smile last week; he tells us that he is grandpa.

Visitors: Edward McCowan, Richmond, Ind.; A. F. Longren, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; Fred Lembke, of W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, and Jos. Hill, of E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.

I have used the Imperial Plant Food, both in Powder and Biscuit form, and have always found it safe and reliable, as well as very marked in its effects on all classes of plants on which it has been used. For the commercial florist or private gardener who needs a really high-grade and quick acting fertilizer, there is nothing superior to the Imperial Plant Food. Many skilled growers have been using it for years, and I have yet to meet one who does not commend it.

Trade was quite good last week. The weather continues mild, but business holds up remarkably well. Roses are considerably off crop and there is hardly enough to go around. Carnations are cleaned up daily. The recent cloudy weather nearly shut off the sweet pea supply and these cannot be bought at a premium. Paper Whites, hyacinths and valley are plentiful. Tulips and jonquils are finding ready sale. Easter lilies are scarce.

Various Notes.

Richard Kootz, formerly of Indianapolis, but now with the Fleischman Floral Co., Chicago, spent a few days in the city last week.

The February meeting of the State Florists' Association is to be held with the Dorners, of Lafayette, Tuesday, February 4. The Indianapolis florists will leave on the interurban limited at 8 a. m. Quite a number have announced their intention of going.

Harry Balsley, of Detroit; S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, and Frank Farney, also from Philadelphia, called on the trade last week.

Alfred Brandt expects to occupy his new store room, at 5 East Ohio street, about February 1.

There is an opening for another good rose grower in Indianapolis, for the local cut of first-class roses is inadequate for the demand.

George Wiegand expects to return about February 1, from a month's stay in Florida and Cuba. When George returns, Homer Wiegand expects to leave for about a month's visit in Florida.

Everett, Mass.—C. H. Lothrop has removed to Lexington, Mass., where he has a larger acreage and a chance for expansion. Previously he has confined himself to bedding and potted plants, but nursery stock will now be grown.

Columbus, O.—Reginald Gobay, alias Harold Rhodes, said to be the man who, a month or two ago, victimized some of the florists of this city by the use of worthless money orders, has been arrested and placed in jail to await trial. He is charged with having stolen the money order blanks from the Detroit postoffice.

VENTILATING APPARATUS

WHEN planning your new greenhouses for 1913, you will no doubt plan for a modern and up-to-date house. Now, in any greenhouse you must have proper ventilating equipment to operate your sash, and in an up-to-date house you will want the best and most modern equipment on the market.

Advance Apparatus has been the standard for years and is in use in almost every modern greenhouse in America. These leading florists buy our goods because they have tried them, and found them to be the best and most serviceable manufactured.

Our Greenhouse fittings are manufactured of the best material, and are strong, simple and economical, the most popular on the market.

Send for our new catalogue illustrating and describing our line. It contains net prices and is a very useful reference.

...which the Park Commission is to erect for municipal purposes. At present only one wing, 36x50ft., and the propagating house, 12x18ft., will be built.

H. E. Bates

Rochester manager, Lord & Burnham Co.

The Lord & Burnham Co.'s Rochester Office

The development of the greenhouse business within ten years has been phenomenal. The necessity for permanency in construction which boomed the cement industry made the iron frame house the logical house to build whether for private or commercial purposes. In this connection it is generally conceded that the Lord & Burnham Co. has, through its advanced ideas and continuous and persistent educational methods, been largely instrumental in putting the iron frame house where it is today. The growth of this concern has been somewhat phenomenal. It was only a few years ago when its enlarged business necessitated the doubling of the capacity of its Irvington factory. The Western plant, at Des Plaines, Ill., has just been expanded, and the company is now completing plans for further extensive additions to the Irvington plant.

The concern's progressive policy is still further reflected in the opening last month of a branch office in the Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y., with H. E. Bates as manager. Mr. Bates' experience in the greenhouse business has been an unusually broad one. In spending several years in the employ of greenhouse concerns, he has acquired a fund of comparative construction information which must prove of great advisory value to prospective builders. The new office already has secured an order for an iron frame two column house, 75x450ft., and there are several other wideawake florists who have signified their intention to fall into line now that the holidays are over. The outlook for greenhouse building on private estates is also very promising.

Another progressive move

More Facts About Our Rochester Office

THIS reproduction of a news note clipped from a last week's florist paper doesn't say anything about the territory our new Rochester office includes.

If you should draw a line, starting from Rochester, through Buffalo, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Wheeling, W. Va., and then swing back to Cleveland and across to Utica, N. Y., and then take a home stretch to Rochester, you would have a rough fence-in of the territory.

Mr. Bates is now preparing to make a trip around this territory.

If you want to see him about building, better drop him a line at once, so he can arrange to stop off and see you.

A postal will bring him.

Two Trussed Iron Frame Houses, Each 34 ft. Wide by 100 ft. Long, Erected for County of Wayne, Detroit, Mich.

GARLAND HOUSES are designed and built on correct, scientific and practical principles. It is not our aim to meet our competitors' prices, for that would be inconsistent with good materials. To the grower who does not thoroughly investigate and compare, our proposition does not appeal.

SOME ITEMS FOR COMPARISON

Does your estimate include Cast Iron Foot Pieces to protect the posts from corrosion? What kind of Posts are figured? What size Rafter is specified? Are the proper Bracings specified? Does your estimate as a whole appeal to you as a Square Deal?

A STATEMENT OF FACTS

A few of our friends intending to build greenhouses have brought up certain questions which we believe ought to be settled once for all. You will be interested in these things whether you have a greenhouse or expect to build one. Here are some of the questions and the answers:

Q. Is Cypress the best lumber to use?

A. Yes. There should be no doubt on this, for Cypress has always been known as "the wood eternal." Cypress woodwork that is free of sap or defects costs more money than Cedar, Redwood or Pine. The manufacturer offering anything but sap-free Cypress, guaranteed, is looking for a larger profit or trying to quote a lower price to get your business. Don't be fooled on this question. Investigate carefully before you buy. Cypress outlasts every other wood known to man.

Q. Is your Cypress air-dried?

A. Yes. Cypress used in our greenhouses is piled on sticks until perfectly dry. In our yard we have a stock of considerably more than 1,000,000 feet of Cypress and we always have plenty of stock that is perfectly dry. Lumber dried in a dry kiln is unfit for greenhouse work, for the dry kiln destroys the life of the wood. Practically all the Cedar and Redwood shipped into Chicago has been kiln-dried to save on the freight. You can notice this by comparing the weight of a sash or a roof bar. Greenhouse lumber to last, must be air-dried.

Q. Do you furnish woodwork painted?

A. No. Our woodwork is all free of sap or defects and we want you to see that this is a fact. Paint covers all sap and a multitude of other defects. It costs more for freight on painted material and it's better to do your own painting, for you are sure of the paint material being used. It is unwise and unsafe to buy painted woodwork of any kind.

This is one of the most desirable of the broad leaf varieties, a strong vigorous grower, with bold, dark green foliage which becomes beautifully suffused and variegated.

7-inch and 8-inch pots.....$2, $2.50, $3 and $3.50 each

DRAACAENA BRONZE BEAUTY.

This variety was offered three years ago with Dracaena Mandalana by the introducer, Wm. A. Manda, and in the strongest growing Dracaena we have. Although not as highly colored as Dracaena Desmetiana, we have found it wonderfully durable as a house plant. We offer splendid specimens.

8-inch, 9-inch and 10-inch pots.....$3, $3.50, $5 and $6 each

PHOENIX ROEBELENI.

This is unquestionably one of the great palms of the future, combining the grace of a Cocos Weddelliana with the hardness of a Kentia. It will prove an invaluable plant for the house. Our stock in the following sizes is unusually fine.

6-inch pots.....$1.25 and $1.50 each
10-inch and 12-inch tubs, specimen plants.....$5, $6, $7.50, $10, $12.50, $15 and $20 each

Perfect plants with rich, dark green foliage. Our stock is in splendid condition.

6-inch pots, 8 plants, 24 inches to 28 inches tall.....$9 and $12 per doz.
8-inch pots, 8 plants, 36 inches to 42 inches tall.....$24 and $30 per doz.

FICUS PANDURATA.

The plant of the century. Positively the best house and porch plant to date. Our stock of this wonderful plant this year is finer than we have heretofore offered, and we can surely give you satisfaction.

6-inch pots, 2 feet tall.....$1.50 each
6-inch pots, 2½ feet tall.....$2 each
7-inch pots, 3 feet tall.....$2.50 each
8-inch pots, 4 feet tall.....$3 each
10-inch and 11-inch tubs, 5 feet to 10 feet tall.....$4, $5, $6 and $7.50 each

FICUS CHAUVIERI.

This is an old variety, taken up again by us. We believe we have the only stock of this variety in the country. It is in a class with the old Elaeagnus, being very hardy and doing equally well for both inside and outside decoration. This plant has already given great satisfaction.

6-inch pots, 18 inches high.....$12 per doz.

Large plants.....$1.50, $2 and $2.50 each

KENTIAS.

Strong stock for growing on.

THE ART OF FLOWER ARRANGEMENT

By FRED C. W. BROWN

ART AS APPLIED TO BASKETS.

How to Fill Them.

We shall pass now from the arrangement of funeral designs and just make a few suggestions on the arrangement of baskets and bouquets. The same principles are apparent here as in all our work, and simplicity, always simplicity, is the keynote of our efforts.

We are not limited by the confines of the conventional designs, but we are in basket arrangements restricted by the receptacle we have chosen to fill. The most common errors in arranging flowers in baskets are: First, a failure to appreciate proportion; second, a failure to select the right style of basket. Frequently a basket totally unsuitable to the material is used and then the attempt to conform the material to the receptacle takes away the natural beauty of the flowers, leaving us an arrangement that is incapable of being understood.

Let us, first of all, try to find out what our object is, what it is that we are attempting to do. And let us be reasonable, as we should be in all our work—as we must be, in fact, if we would be artistic. Let us use our powers of reason, so that our efforts may produce results that will be pleasing because they are artistic.

We have a dual subject, basket and flowers. The basket is our foundation, and on our foundation depends greatly the success of the finished article. See to it, therefore, that you do not use a wood foundation to build a stone house on. See that your basket is suitable; your supply house can make anything you require and will thank you for suggestions.

Next in order is the material for filling; let it be suitable; or, if for any reason you are limited in your choice of flowers, then use care in the selection of your basket.

In the filling of a basket, remember that if you are limited in the quantity of flowers you should choose a basket that is not too large, for there is nothing else quite so ridiculous as a big basket with a handful of blooms that seem to say, "We are doing our best to make a presentable showing, but the gatherer became tired before his work was done."

If your flowers are fine and small, use

Mr. Brown will be pleased to answer, as this series of articles progresses, any criticisms or questions that may occur to his readers. The first article of the series was printed in the issue of October 10. The next installment will appear in an early issue.

a fine, dainty basket; if the flowers are coarse and large, use a basket of generous lines and proportions.

You need not confine yourself to one, two, or three different sorts of blooms, but if you do use a variety of flowers, group them. Do not arrange them without object. Reason a minute and you will readily see that, if you used natural ways, which are artistic ways, you would gather your distinct varieties of flowers tor, but never wander so far from the confines of your basket that your blooms overbalance your basket foundation.

In arranging plants in a basket we should be careful that our basket has the appearance of sufficient stability or strength to hold the plants. As much depends on the appropriateness of the basket as on what is in it.

Three examples of baskets are illustrated in connection with this article and we would particularly draw your attention to the receptacles themselves.

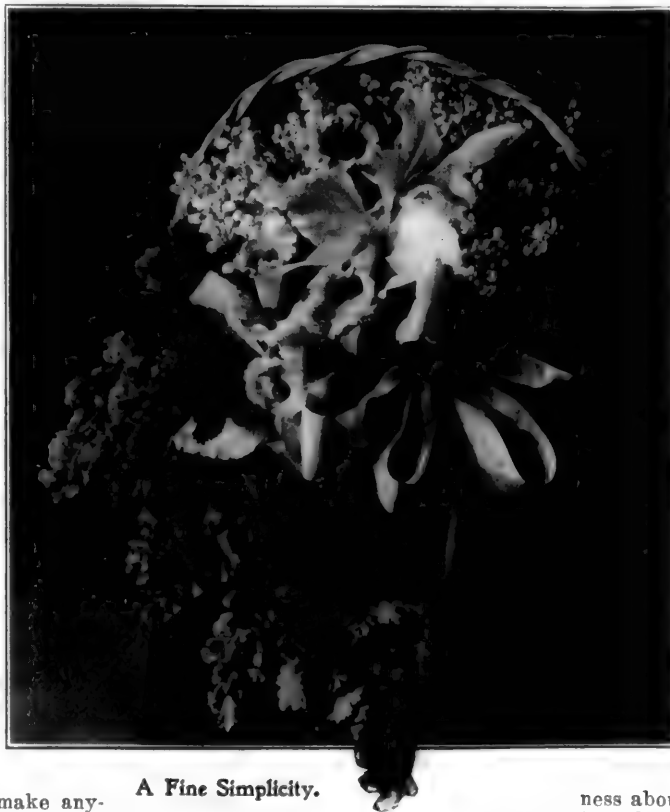

The basket shown in the illustration at the top of page 11 has a mixed arrangement, but the kinds are grouped and are not of too great variety. The erect-growing rose plant is softened by the spirea. We particularly want you to note the substantial look of the basket; it has the appearance of strength to sustain what is contained in it. True, there may be the appearance of crowding, but that is a natural consequence.

The basket shown on page 10 contains a gentiana. Care has been taken both in the selection of the plant and the selection of the basket, and there is what may be termed a sympathetic harmony between the two. The generous, circular form of the plant, just sufficiently broken to avoid the appearance of artificial training, is encompassed within the lines of the basket, which has sufficient base to support without trouble the weight of the plant.

In the basket of cut flowers, shown in the illustration on this page, we have a basket with fine lines for our fine material, orchids and lily of the valley. There is a graceful carelessness about the Farleyense fern, suggesting abandon and plenty.

In our work with baskets, ribbon is almost an essential and has reason on its side against any argument that might be raised in objection to its use, for what is more natural than that a tie of some kind should be used to secure our material within the confines of our basket? However, just a little word of warning: Don't overdecorate with ribbon; you are dealing in flowers.

The arranging of a basket of flowers leaves the florist almost fancy-free to create new and dainty ideas, and the artist will show his ability to far greater advantage than where he is confined to the wire frame of some con-

in separate groups, for under natural conditions—artistic conditions—flowers grow in groups, not in meaningless mixtures, though you may find an individual variety poking its head from some unexpected place. Therefore, in your basket arrangements group your material, and while you must not overbalance your basket, always convey the idea of plenty. To break the monotony of equal or balanced quantities of material, choose carefully your point of greatest opposition and enrich it by your choicest material, placed in an opposite direction, so that it may act as your high light or character-giving fac-

McKinley Day

WEAR A CARNATION

In Honor of His Memory

"Lead, Kindly Light"

Lead, kindly Light, amid the evening glow,
Lead! Thou me lead!
Lead! Thou me lead, and I am far from home,
Lead! Thou me lead!
Keep Thou my soul! I do not ask to see Thy dearest sever, nor thy strength for me

I was not poor then, nor feared that Thou Shouldst lead me on;
I loved to choose and see my path, but now
Lead! Thou me lead!

I loved the garish day, and, spite of hours,
Pain ruled my steps; remember, not past years,
So long Thy power has kept me from my goal!

Will lead me on
O'er moor and bog, o'er ring and turret-tops
Thy meads to green
And with the meads there angels feed sweet,
Which I have never longed and lost and sold —One humble heart in the late President's devotion

McKinley's Legacy of McKinley.

Clinton's Legacy of McKinley.

Clinton, New York, Jan. 29, 1901. The people of the United States in a noble and generous way have decided to observe the anniversary of the death of the late President McKinley by wearing a carnation flower on the anniversary of his death. The people of Clinton are proud to participate in this noble and generous act. The people of Clinton are proud to participate in this noble and generous act. The people of Clinton are proud to participate in this noble and generous act.

This announcement is intended to bring "McKINLEY DAY" to the attention of the public, and to increase the popularity of the beautiful idea of WEARING A CARNATION in memory of the Martyred McKinley.

LEADING WASHINGTON FLORISTS

Combination Advertising by Washington Retail Florists.

ventional form, such as constitutes our average funeral design.

Fred C. W. Brown.

CO-OPERATIVE PUBLICITY.

Five of the leading retailers of Washington, D. C., put their funds together to obtain the publication of a half-page newspaper advertisement reminding the public of the anniversary of McKinley's birth and its appropriate observance by wearing a carnation. The advertisement is shown in this issue, much reduced in size.

One of the most interesting features is that here are several keen competitors who are on such friendly footing that they can cooperate in advertising. Surely there are fewer trade jealousies among florists than among dealers in other lines, or such a thing would not be possible.

That the Washington florists have found this form of advertising profitable is shown by the fact that they have employed it on other occasions. It appears to be the most simple and practical solution of the publicity problem with which the trade now is grappling.

A UNIQUE ADVERTISEMENT.

Probably the largest and most expensive, but certainly the most unique, advertisement ever published by a Cleveland retail florist appeared in the Plain Dealer on a recent Sunday. It occupied a full page in the woman's section and was printed in five colors. It was not a display advertisement, but was got up to resemble one of the feature pages of the paper, with a picture border illustrating the principal items of stock and the text in solid brevier like the text of the paper. The matter was like the write-up matter that the average advertiser asks to have published in the editor's space and which almost invariably is nine times stronger advertising than the copy the advertiser uses in his own space. In the Knoble advertisement the text told fully why the Knoble establishment is well qualified to serve the Cleveland public, just what need not fear to go into details; the reader is reading for information and will continue to the end, providing the facts stated are worth pursuing.

THE OLD-FASHIONED BOUQUET.

Perhaps some directions for making the old-fashioned bouquets may help the florist to fashion them, if wanted for Valentine's day. The illustration in The Review for January 30 was interesting to me, having made hundreds in the long ago, but the nosegay itself, so far as I can judge, must have been rather heavy and stiff for lack of adiantum to break the surface of the bunch.

Wire all flowers first. For the center we used to use either a camellia or fairly well opened rose. Start by wiring the center flower onto a stick about seven inches long; hyacinth sticks would do well. Then pack under the flower moist moss, bringing the moss about four inches down, cone-shaped. The use of the moss is to give support to the wires of the other flowers, or they will wobble around. On the moss lay sprays of adiantum with the long ends projecting beyond the center flower. Then arrange a row of the wired flowers around the center, and below the cone of moss wire firmly together. Place more moss on the wires and repeat.

The old bouquet seldom had more than two rows of flowers, as it had to fit into the paper cone. After the flowers are arranged, adiantum is placed all around the edge, and then the prepared holder with lace edge is put on, as shown in the illustration.

An artistic florist can evolve a multi-

GOOD RETURNS.

An advertiser who used the Classified department of The Review to move his surplus stock gives the following account of the result of his January advertising:

In remitting for my January advertising, while thanking you for your service, perhaps you will be interested in the record:

Cash orders	$151.50
Orders to ship C. O. D.	25.75
Total	$177.25

This was at an expense of $4.70 for advertising and does not take into account a number of inquiries I received from which business probably will come later. The Review certainly does the business for me.—C. W. Harrold, Decatur, Ill., February 3, 1913.

THE COST OF SPACE.

The publicity committee of the National Flower Show says:

"Some of the commercial firms think the price of 75 cents, $1 and $1.50 per foot, according to location, for space in the trade exhibition section is too high, but it must be remembered that conditions in New York are very different from those found in small towns. The building in which the show will be held rents for $2,000 per day; the lighting and other essentials are additional items; and while the S. A. F. has an agreement with the International Exposition Co. which relieves the society of much direct responsibility, still it will have to be provided for. The cost of space, however, if any business man will sit down and conscientiously figure it out, is really little considering the fact that automobile shows in the same building rented their space for from $3 to $5 per foot; and also considering the fact that an exhibitor is putting his goods before the greatest buying public in the world."

VIOLETS FLOWERING POORLY.

Last fall, in a solid bed in a violet house 18 x 100 feet, I put one inch of stable manure, 100 pounds of sheep manure and 100 pounds of bone flour. I spaded this thoroughly and put the plants in. The plants are free from insects of any kind and look healthy; yet they have but few flowers, though they are nice ones. What would you suggest to make them bloom more freely? I maintain a night temperature of 42 to 45 degrees. The variety is Princess of Wales. E. A.

You do not state when you housed your single violets. A rather common mistake is to plant too early. They should be left out until they have had one or two freezings—not severe frosts, but an exposure to a minimum of 25 to 30 degrees checks their exuberant leaf growth and tends to make them flower more freely. Your night temperature, 42 to 45 degrees, is a little too high for Princess of Wales; 40 degrees is better. The higher figures are all right for the doubles, but they cause too much leaf growth on the singles, at the expense of flowers.

Your compost was well prepared, although I should have preferred to leave out the bone. In order to help in making them bloom more freely the rest of the season, I would suggest giving the plants a light freezing, say 29 or 30 degrees, for a few hours. This will not harm them at all, and it invariably much improves the flower crop. The present season has, in the main, been abnormally warm for violets, and many growers complain of the plants flowering less freely than usual.

HYDRANGEAS.

Will someone through the columns of The Review tell something of how to force hydrangeas for Decoration day, what variety, when to start them, what kind of soil, the temperature and any other information that will help those who have not had any experience with forcing hydrangeas? J. N. S.

Hydrangea otaksa is the variety mostly grown. There are blue and pink forms of this. The color depends to some extent on the character of the soil in which they are grown. With iron in the soil, or by adding alum to the water, some growers claim to be

GOOD RETURNS.

An advertiser who used the Classified department of The Review to move his surplus stock gives the following account of the result of his January advertising:

In remitting for my January advertising, while thanking you for your service, perhaps you will be interested in the record:

Cash orders	$151.50
Orders to ship C. O. D.	25.75

Total.....$177.25

This was at an expense of $4.70 for advertising and does not take into account a number of inquiries I received from which business probably will come later. The Review certainly does the business for me.—C. W. Harrold, Decatur, Ill., February 3, 1913.

THE COST OF SPACE.

The publicity committee of the National Flower Show says:

"Some of the commercial firms think the price of 75 cents, $1 and $1.50 per foot, according to location, for space in the trade exhibition section is too high, but it must be remembered that conditions in New York are very different from those found in small towns. The building in which the show will be held rents for $2,000 per day; the lighting and other essentials are additional items; and while the S. A. F. has an agreement with the International Exposition Co. which relieves the society of much direct responsibility, still it will have to be provided for. The cost of space, however, if any business man will sit down and conscientiously figure it out, is really little considering the fact that automobile shows in the same building rented their space for from $3 to $5 per foot; and also considering the fact that an exhibitor is putting his goods before the greatest buying public in the world."

VIOLETS FLOWERING POORLY.

Last fall, in a solid bed in a violet house 18 x 100 feet, I put one inch of stable manure, 100 pounds of sheep manure and 100 pounds of bone flour. I spaded this thoroughly and put the plants in. The plants are free from insects of any kind and look healthy; yet they have but few flowers, though they are nice ones. What would you suggest to make them bloom more freely? I maintain a night temperature of 42 to 45 degrees. The variety is Princess of Wales. E. A.

able to produce blue flowers, whereas in soil without these ingredients the color would be pink. There is also a new and desirable race of French hybrid hydrangeas now being offered containing several colors.

Plants to be in flower for Memorial day should go into a cool greenhouse toward the end of February. After Easter, with more bench space at disposal, spread them out and give a little more warmth; 50 to 55 degrees is as much as they need. A stronger heat draws them up too much. Use a rich compost for them, containing well rotted manure and bone meal. As soon as the flowerheads show, feed once in four days with liquid manure. A sprinkle of fine bone as a surface dressing is also good. Hydrangeas want a lot of water and must never be allowed to reach a dry stage. Keep aphids in check by fumigation or spraying with a soap or nicotine solution. If plants seem backward, give more heat. It is easy holding back in a cool, shaded house any which may be early.

a tendency to make the blooms come unusually double and short in the calyx. If the weather has been dark, it would also contribute to the trouble. I would suggest that you raise the temperature to 52 degrees and maintain it as uniformly as possible. That will likely cause the calyxes to grow longer and the blooms less double. Give all the ventilation you can afford, to help keep the stems strong.

COVERED WITH RED SPIDER.

I should like to get some information about the disease which the enclosed carnation shoot is suffering from. I used Bordeaux mixture and lemon oil, and a tobacco smudge every ten days, but this treatment does not seem to help any. As the disease is in one corner of a solid bed, I am afraid it will spread over the whole house; therefore I shall greatly appreciate your advice as to how to overcome it. I grow Washington, Enchantress and White Perfection; the Washington is the one that is diseased.

D. W.

Your carnations are not troubled with a disease, but with a pest. The specimens were covered with red spider. Spray them with the hose, using all the force at your command, and if possible give it to them from all sides. Do this every bright day until you get the plants clean. If the weather is cloudy, which would forbid much spraying, you can use the following remedy, which I have found first-class: Take five pounds of granulated sugar and add to it one pound of arsenic, mixing it dry. Then add enough water to make a thick syrup. When using to spray with, use one ounce of the mixture to each gallon of water.

BUDS EATEN HOLLOW.

I am sending you some samples of my Enchantress buds. Many of the buds look as if they were eaten hollow. Can you tell me the cause? F. H.

The buds were too immature to give any indications. They showed no trace of anything wrong. You are probably troubled with the cutworms which eat the buds. They act just about as you suggest. Make a poison bait for these as follows: Take some bran and mix with molasses until fairly well moistened. Then mix with it some Paris green, enough to make it deadly. Drop a little of this here and there, where they can get it.

WEAK STEMS.

Will you kindly tell me what makes my carnation stems so weak? The plants have beautiful, large flowers, but the stems will not stand erect and support them; the flowers droop over far too much. The plants have air, are run moderately cool and are not forced too much. It seems as if the soil needed some element to help make the stems stronger. What can I do for this? A. L. S.

A. L. S.

Your soil apparently lacks lime. One or two applications, a month apart, will probably correct the trouble. Give a small handful to each row, halfway across a 5-foot bench. Water it in well, and a few days afterward scratch the soil slightly to break up the crust which may have formed from it. Your culture seems correct otherwise.

RUST ON VICTORY CARNATIONS.

I am sending you some leaves and cuttings of Victory carnations. Kindly tell me the trouble and mention a remedy, and a preventive. F. H.

F. H.

Your Victory carnations are affected with the common carnation rust. This variety is prone to take this disease in the cutting bench. Just about the time one thinks he has a fine batch ready to take out, they begin to rust and before it can be checked it spreads all over the batch. This has caused many rooted cutting specialists to drop the variety altogether, in spite of the fact that it was still in fairly good demand. The atmosphere maintained while the cuttings are rooting is primarily the cause of the development of the trouble, and if you will give them all the sunlight they will stand while the roots are forming it will help matters somewhat.

POORLY FORMED CALYXES.

I am mailing you under separate cover a White Enchantress bud. About one-third of my plants bud in this way, and then split. Some are more round than the sample. Can you tell me what to do to stop it? I have good, rich soil, containing about one-third cow manure and two-thirds loam. I also give good ventilation and keep the temperature about 48 to 50 degrees at night. I am a beginner and shall be glad to receive any information you can offer.

D. E. F.

A combination of conditions is probably at the bottom of your troubles. One-third cow manure is more than I consider ideal for carnations; one-fourth to one-fifth would be better. This rich soil, along with the low temperature you are carrying, would have of which was equal to anything ever seen in Fort Smith. The varieties were Richmond, Killarney, White Killarney, Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Taft, Melody, Rhea Reid and American Beauty. The keeping quality was excellent, all the stock holding up for three days in the warm exhibition room.

The Chicago Carnation Co., Chicago, sent an exhibit of its new red carnation, The Herald, also White Wonder, Pink Delight, White Enchantress and other varieties.

The plant display also was excellent, and effectively arranged. C. J. Brockman Flower Shop received first premium, the Electric Park Greenhouses, of which George T. Duey is lessee and manager, being second. The Brockman display was especially strong on cinerarias, cyclamens and azaleas.

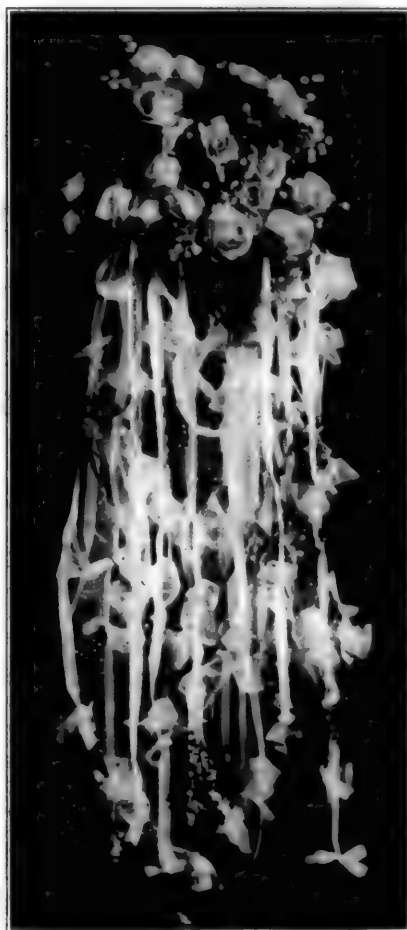

A CAR OF CANNAS.

There was an entire carload of cannas on the sidewalk in front of Winterson's Seed Store, Chicago, when the photograph was made for the accompanying illustration. It serves to show the popularity the canna has achieved in recent years. The Winterson establishment is western sales agent for cannas for Arthur T. Boddington, New York. The stock came through from the east in a refrigerator car, to avoid danger of freezing, and it was a mild day when the car was unloaded, so that the entire carload was stacked on the sidewalk before trucking into the storeroom began.

THE OPENER.

Long before people began to inquire about the age of Ann, they used to ask "What's the matter with Kansas?" Whatever may have been the matter with Kansas in those times, there is nothing now the trouble there. Kansas is progressing. The accompanying illustration is of interest as showing the first shower bouquet ever made in Marysville, Kan. It is the work of H. R. Fisher, who had been in business there three years before he received an order for a bride's bouquet with a shower. This was only the other day. That the prospects are good is evident from Mr. Fisher's comment that "I shower bouquet, Mr. Fisher used twenty-nine roses and fifty valley, with forty-five yards of baby ribbon.

OHIO GLADIOLUS GROWERS.

At a meeting of gladiolus growers at Cleveland, February 1, in response to a call, the Gladiolus Society of Ohio was organized, a constitution adopted and officers elected, as follows: President, C. Betscher, of Canal Dover; vice-president, Mrs. A. H. Austin, of Wayland; secretary and treasurer, Wilbur A. Christy, of Warren. An executive committee was also ordered, consisting of Messrs. Alford, Crawford and Huntington. Other committees were also named, and the society is ready for business. The membership is not to be confined exclusively to Ohio, as the name might seem to indicate, and the society hopes to cooperate in a friendly way with other organizations of similar purpose, in testing and exhibiting varieties of its specialty.

BANANA IN A GREENHOUSE.

What is the best variety of banana to fruit in a conservatory, and the culture? E. H.

The best variety for your purpose is Musa Cavendishii, this being of dwarf habit and hardier than other sorts. Bananas all need a fairly high temperature and you should not attempt their culture if your minimum falls below 50 degrees in winter, although they will withstand an even lower reading. Procure some suckers from established plants. Grow these on in pots, later transferring them to tubs of good size, or planting them out in a prepared bed. Use soil well enriched with cow manure and bone. If heating pipes run below the beds, to furnish bottom heat, all the better. Remove the suckers from the plants as they grow, and once the fruit has set feed freely with liquid manure. A warm, moist heat is what bananas like, but as the fruits ripen, keep a drier atmosphere.

BEAUTIES NOT FLOWERING.

We have Beauties that have grown tall, but do not bloom. They bloomed well until Christmas. Some are now eight feet high, but do not show buds. The other roses in the same house are fine. We planted the Beauties June 15 and the stock was dormant till April. We have them on a solid bed. They have been kept at a temperature of 58 to 60 degrees at night, have had plenty of ventilation and were fed well till Christmas with liquid cow manure. What can I do to get them to bloom? Any information will be appreciated.

A. L. T.

Your treatment seems to have been all right, but nothing you can do will make the long shoots in question flower. It is a mistake for small growers to grow American Beauties. It is better to leave their culture to the big specialists, who can give up roomy houses to them. If you want a fancy rose to take the place of Beauty, try some of Mrs. Geo. Shawyer or Mrs. Charles Russell, being introduced this season. Each of these will give several times as many flowers as Beauty and will net you far more money than that rather erratic variety.

C. W.

SWELLING ON BEAUTY STEMS.

I am sending under separate cover some buds of American Beauties which I wish you would kindly examine. I shall be thankful for any information you can give me as to cause and remedy, if any. The roses are growing finely and did so all the fall. They are running off crop now, but are breaking nicely. I have kept the house clean of all insects that I could see. The trouble seems to bother the short and medium-length stems only. A night temperature of 58 degrees is maintained and a day temperature, according to the weather, of 66 to 72 degrees.

C. L. N.

The buds of American Beauties received had a small swelling about one to two inches below the bud, which, on being cut open, was found to be hollow and had the appearance of having been used by some insect to lay its eggs in. When growing Beauties I have found this same swelling at times on short stems that came out from the bottom and grew one or two feet high. They were always strong and sappy shoots, which, after the bud was taken off, would make a long stem. As we never had much trouble from this and lost only the first bud, we never paid much attention to it, thinking this swelling was caused through too fast a growth, but if there are a large number of shoots that show a tendency to go, it may be advisable to send some shoots to the experiment station and have them examined to see whether the trouble might be caused by insects.

The temperature kept is all right, except that on dark days it might be kept a little cooler, say about 62 to 64 degrees.

W. J. Keimel.

ROSES FOR OUTDOOR PLANTING.

We have Killarney, White Killarney and Rhea Reid roses, planted last June. We expect to plant new stock next June. How shall we treat our bench plants after removing them from the bench, so we can sell them for outdoor blooming the same season, in this Ohio climate? We want those who buy them to get good results from them and want to handle them accordingly.

C. B.

While it will cut the crop of blooms considerably short, if the roses are to be sold for planting out and so handled as to give good results, it will merely be necessary to prepare them for transplanting in such a way that they will not wilt when planted out, as would be the case if they were taken directly from the benches.

They should be taken up about a month before the season for outdoor planting, or soon after the middle of March, in the northern states. Cut them back to a length of twelve to twenty-four inches, according to the size of the plants, and pot them off. Wet down thoroughly and keep in partial shade at 60 degrees until they have become established, taking care not to over-water until growth starts. Before they are sold the plants should be slightly hardened, so that they will not be checked in growth when planted out.

T.

VALLEY FOR EASTER.

From this time on the new season's valley pips will be better to use than old stock. It is too early yet to start pips for Easter. There is always an excellent demand for well flowered 6-inch and 7-inch pots of valley at that time and a good batch of these should be potted up in readiness for starting. Five weeks should suffice to flower these, but if they are wanted with more foliage, allow them a few days longer and allow them to develop their flowers in a night temperature of 50 degrees. This will ensure nice, dark, foliage, without which no pots of valley are salable.

THE FLORIST

AND

HIS MARKET

IN taking a subject for my talk to you this evening that is as broad as this, I have a reason for so doing, and that reason I wish to express in just as plain English as the law allows. We are all in the same boat—retailer, wholesaler, large grower, small grower and whoever is dependent upon the florists' business for a living. What I have to say tonight deals with not one market or another, as the term is commonly understood, but largely with the great market that is everywhere—the people. We may raise what we will, and buy and sell among ourselves, but that is not our market, nor our ultimate end. We must reach out and bring money into our business from outside, just as outside industries are dependent on us to support them. We have been considered a luxury in years past and we want to be considered a necessity, and when the flower business is once settled on that basis it will continue to grow in proportion to the population.

For some years past it has been growing out of proportion to the population and anticipated demand has caused a building boom that has added much to the glass area and very little to the organization of the flower industry. The public has caught some of the spirit and would catch more were we, as real business men, doing our part to teach them that our product has become to them a necessity rather than a luxury, and that as a necessity at almost all times in the year flowers are within reach of the average pocketbook.

Production Outstrips Distribution.

The statement that I have made and which will, in my opinion, bear repeating, although perhaps in different language, is that the selling end of the greenhouse game has not kept up with the building end, and this I firmly believe. Our energy has gone into production, leaving the product to take care of itself, or to be taken care of by those who have a customer in sight, but no selling organization has been perfected that aids in moving the output at all times to the best advantage.

We have a business no one can corner. Our goods are produced from the soil, our products are perishable. Our quality is a personal matter. Were all the glass built in the last ten years constructed by a florists' trust it would be no small concern. Do you believe for one minute that such an organization would sit idly by and allow the product to sell itself? I doubt it. Now, I'm not here knocking the wholesaler, for he does his best to sell it to advantage, and the retailer no doubt tries in his way to reach the people, but I am trying to impress on you the one fact that we are all in one boat, and that boat is drifting for lack of some power that is not gasoline.

The Fortunate Florists.

The retail florist without glass in any city is perhaps the most independent one of our fraternity. All he has to do is to stop buying and he is out of business. All his assets, usually the case when he fails, are an unexpired lease, some poor accounts and an ice-box. I wager that nine out of ten of these men are above realizing that they are with us in the boat, that our success is theirs, although we all know how much of their failures is ours. The retail florist so situated with relation to what he sells is not independent, for the source of supply rules, but he will continue to rule so long as the producers allow it, and no longer. The retailer who realizes that he is in the boat and that the welfare of the one is the welfare of all is usually the man with the busy store, who is trying to help move stock, and who by so doing has increased his business. These men are the salvation of the grower.

Then there is the retailer who grows his own product. I could almost defy you to name one who is not successful. I can name many who are, and some of them are among our best known men in the profession. And why are they successful? Because they grow the stock and must sell it. There is business instinct there. They cannot sign over the ice-box and leave the janitor to wash their name from the window. The spirit of self-preservation keeps them at the task, and I would be almost willing to state that they enjoy being business men in the modern sense of the word. You will find the advertisements of these men in the daily papers of their home towns, and people with moderate means in their stores buying flowers. Some of these men were growers first who took up the retail end because of the failure of existing flower stores to move their output at prices paying to them as producers; and others are growers to maintain a supply they must have, but however they got into it doesn't alter the fact that they have invested capital and brains and are keeping both working to get to the one market we all want to reach—the people.

The Small Grower's Troubles.

The small grower who places his product direct is fortunate. He is in a class by himself, and yet in this paper is considered one of the crowd in the boat, for his welfare is dependent on us all. Unless the retailers with whom he deals directly are above par, he is getting below par for his stock. That is the way I have found it. When the market drops, they drop him; but they stick to him hard and fast when it goes up. This grower ends by becoming one of the class who ship their product to the wholesale market to share the honor of shipping to the big city with a lot of others to get less than he got before for his product, and finally he stays out in the suburbs and advertises his carnations and roses "at the greenhouse." The next season he has a new show house in front and a delivery car, and so far as the market is concerned he becomes a buyer rather than a shipper, advertising in the local papers having brought business to him and made him independent to a large extent.

WALLACE R. PIERSON.

PUBLICITY" PIERSON is the name the trade has given to this energetic young man from Cromwell, Conn. For nearly a year he has been going up and down the country, preaching to florists the power of the press and the need for modern publicity methods to increase the number of flower buyers. Mr. Pierson is the son of A. N. Pierson and secretary and assistant treasurer of A. N. Pierson, Inc., whose range of glass at Cromwell is one of the most interesting places in New England. He puts his whole energy into anything he undertakes. What he has to say is said earnestly, and in language that never fails to impress his audience. It is because of Mr. Pierson's enthusiasm and the force with which he has pushed his idea that florists' clubs from coast to coast, as well as several of the national organizations, have taken up the present publicity movement.

The small florist out in the country is not so located that this is practical. How can he better himself? By being a specialist. Grow the one crop that you can do well—maybe roses, maybe snapdragons—only grow it well. Keep the supply and the business is yours, for the specialist gets to be known and his goods in demand. There is no place today in the big cities for job lots and this the small florist must realize or be the loser. The odds and ends of stock from a small grower, although perhaps of good quality, are in the same class with a few odd roses of unusual excellence. They do not bring what they are worth and the competition of the specialist and of the large concerns is too strenuous for a mixed lot from the country that takes in all of them, for the large grower specializes in more than one line, but each department is capable of holding its own as a rule, and the big places, by holding a steady supply, can maintain a sale for their goods and can, as a rule, produce better goods for the money than the small places that do not specialize. The wholesale house is between them all, a clearing house, a necessary evil, but a link in the chain that binds every man dependent on flowers for a livelihood with a common bond, and we must realize that this chain is no stronger than its weakest link.

The National Society.

That bond is the cause for which we should work. To strengthen it should be our mission; the assimilating of the idea of common fellowship in the trade will be the tie that binds. Some of that spirit has been in the air this season and that spirit, we may hope, will be the yeast that will leaven the whole, but the working is slow, though if successful it will not be in vain. One of the strong links in the chain is the S. A. F. and this must be the foundation upon which to build.

Let us consider briefly what the society means to the average florist. It means a picnic and a vacation in the summer, free lunches and a social time with a lot of kindred spirits, and other spirits, and a feeling when he gets home that the florists are after all a jolly bunch and a lot of pretty good spenders. But this is not all. There is creeping into that organization a feeling that, as a national society, there is a purpose to accomplish, and that purpose is the elevation of the florist profession from the huckster standard to the dignity of a business. The meetings should be to better business conditions and not to settle seedsmen's arguments with the ruling that votes are power. That feeling has brought about the National Flower Shows to teach the people of the world that we are alive to some of the opportunities of horticulture as a profession in America, to instill into our minds confidence in ourselves as a whole as American business men, and to teach us to respect our calling in life by showing us public opinion of horticultural achievements.

I look forward to the day when we shall be in reality not a society of florists, but an organization of florists with serious intent and business betterment the sole interest, and with such a spirit we will have the cooperation not of one florist out of ten, but of the entire profession. There are, of course, features in every exhibition that are wholly trade features, but they all have instructive value and are more instructive to the public than to the profession. Any flower show properly advertised educates the public to the flower industry and anyone who fails to support the next National Flower Show in the Grand Central Palace will be doing himself and his profession an injustice and deserves to lose his share of the benefits which must result to the business as a whole. It is up to the [New York] newspapers to make or break this show financially, but aside from the financial end they will be doing a great injustice to the people of the country as a whole if they do not give an educational exhibit of this character all the prominence it deserves. It is one of the many unexplainable things that newspapers crave to give the American people glowing accounts of insignificant celebrations and scandal and fail to give prominence to that which is not only interesting to many but instructive to all.

The Right Material.

This brings us to the question: Are we putting the material before them in such shape that it can be used? We certainly are not. What, then, is the solution? At the last convention in Chicago a motion was passed providing for a publicity committee of the Society of American Florists, and there is reason to believe that at the call of President Farquhar there will be a meeting in connection with the National Flower Show and that a resolution will be drawn up to present to the society in convention at Minneapolis to have the society appropriate annually for a term of years a sum large enough to insure a fitting start for this work. The balance of the necessary funds must come from the florists' clubs and private individuals. No man can head a publicity bureau who does not have his entire time devoted to it and be successful and accomplish the purpose. No man can be obtained to fill this position for a small salary. It takes money to make it go. Would not the S. A. F., with its $3 a year membership, be doing the right thing to make it a business organization if every florist in this country could become a member on the grounds that two-thirds of his yearly donation would be used to advance his profession and benefit his business? I believe so and that properly canvassed they could be induced to join. Then a publicity bureau could have a chance to become a power and a few of the good things it could do would be the dissemination to the papers of proper information relating to flowers and plants; it could teach the public what flowers are used for and how; bring to public notice special flower days and make them national; teach the florist how to properly conduct his local advertising; show political parties that a flower is an appropriate party emblem; bring pressure to bear on the government to teach home beautifying, to enhance value as well as to improve the farm land; assist magazines of national scope to obtain articles that relate to flowers; aid in advertising national flower shows; teach the people that the parks are their property and their gardens and instill in them local pride in their parks and the flowers; make our big days like Memorial day national in their scope and teach some sections of the country that flowers at Easter are a necessity, as they are in the east. Perhaps I am painting this too rosy, but it is worth the thought.

"Buy of the Producer."

We want coöperation rather than competition and unless we have it there will be more florists selling their own product direct to the real market, and that is the people. Consider the possibilities of the parcel post and the demand that has come from the people. "Buy from the producer," is the watchword of modern times and they are doing it more and more in every line of business. It is to be regretted that plants are not included under parcel post rates, as well as cut flowers. Consider the possibility of an organization of growers with a chain of stores spending the money they are now paying for commissions in proper publicity and advertising, catering to the people direct, bidding for parcel post shipments to be made direct from the greenhouses. This class of business would be a big feature. The people enjoy buying from the real source of supply and they like to buy direct from the greenhouse, as experience has proven. The parcel post has aided in making such an arrangement possible.

I tell you, gentlemen, we are all in the same boat. We do not want competition. We want coöperation, but unless there is coöperation of retailers, wholesalers and growers there will be competition and plenty of it. Some of us may then realize that we allowed the goose that lays the golden eggs to starve to death for lack of business sense.

A link in the chain that binds us all together is the local florists' club. It is to be hoped that the Florists' Club of Philadelphia has proven this to the local people, that the florists' business in Philadelphia is on the level, that it has educated them to the fact that you are producing for them the best products of American floriculture, that you have made Philadelphia and the state of Pennsylvania proud of its flowers. If not, your mission has not been accomplished, but you have the foundation to work with right here in the club. Every dollar that you spend collectively to boom your business, and put it before the public in its true light, will come back to you individually many times over. You have a new organization here in Philadelphia, the retail florists' organization. Let us hope that it will be conducted as an organization of business men, in sympathy with the grower and his problems, willing to meet with you, becoming a part of your organization, aiding in solving the problem of getting flowers to the real market—the people.

I am not under the impression that this talk to you tonight is going to be a heal-all; that everything will follow the course I have mapped out; but if it gives you the basis for thought and aids in strengthening the bond of fellowship and helps to impress on you the fact that our interests are mutual, I shall be satisfied.

MORGEN'S THREE ESSENTIALS.

Peter Morgen, of Huntingburg, Ind., says there are three cardinal points in the successful growing of American Beauties. According to Mr. Morgen, the first requisite is the proper heating system; without it there is no use to try to grow Beauties. The second point of importance is the watering, and the third is the feeding. There can be no set rules for Beauty culture, according to Mr. Morgen. The water and feeding must be given at the right time, which can only be told by the grower's eye. "No matter how long a man has been in the business, if his eye is not a good measure of the needs of his plants he is not worth 2 cents as a grower," he says. Mr. Morgen, whose firm is Morgen & Seubold, has four houses of Beauties. Each house is 25x300, so that the total number of plants is 16,000. The measure of his success in bringing the plants into bloom when wanted is the statement that December 21 to 24 he cut 8,000 flowers. The heating system he uses is high pressure steam controlled by a reducing valve, with the condensation returned by Morehead traps.

The only roses on the place besides the Beauties are 1,000 plants of Killarney, from which the average cut for the four days preceding Christmas was 287 flowers. One of the accompanying illustrations shows Mr. Morgen in one of his carnation houses, which are 23x115. He grows Enchantress varieties and Beacon and has as good success with these as with his roses. His fall crop of Chadwick mums made last season one of the best he has had.

ASTERS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

I should like to know when will be a good time to sow aster seed in trays in a greenhouse, so they can be potted off and I can get cut flowers from them by Decoration day. Which kinds will be the best to sow in white, pink and lavender, so I can get large flowers?

J. J. S.

The asters for Memorial day must be started in flats at once. This date is early for even the earliest asters, however. Early Wonder comes in ahead of Queen of the Earlies by some days and would be the best kind to grow. It can be had in white and pink shades, but I am not sure whether any lavender has yet been offered. The pink and white are the popular shades. I should prefer to transplant the seedlings into flats rather than pot them off. Asters lift with good balls, just the reverse of stocks.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Verbenas.

Those beautiful bedding annuals, the verbenas, are less in evidence than twenty years ago. They are one of the most satisfactory of annuals, as they are persistent flowering to a degree beyond nearly all others of like nature. Not for a number of years have we seen any disease on them and there is every reason why they should be more grown commercially. Plants are sometimes carried over to perpetuate good sorts, like Miss Wilmott, and where this has been done, plenty of cuttings should now be available. Root these in a cool house. In a strong heat they will become weak and drawn and soon fall a prey to mildew. For the average grower, seed sowing is the most satisfactory means of propagation. Germinate in a warm, moist house but gradually inure them to cooler quarters; 50 degrees at night should be their maximum. Verbenas in pots carrying one or two trusses of flower are always one of the most salable of bedding plants.

Bulbous Plants.

The present season has been one of remarkable mildness, in marked contrast to a year ago, when many growers had their stock hard frozen in spite of heavy protection in the way of boards and straw. This applies, of course, to bulbs stored outdoors. It is a trouble never experienced by those who adopt the better plan of storing their stock in cool cellars, where they can be readily reached regardless of climatic conditions. With such a high January temperature, all varieties are much farther ahead than usual, and but for Easter coming early, it would be difficult to retard plants sufficiently. It is much too early to house any of these for Easter. As a rule, three to four weeks suffices for hyacinths, tulips and narcissi.

Look over the stock carefully and be sure they have sufficient water at the root. The upper surface may seem moist and the soil below be quite dry. With good drainage you can hardly make any mistake in soaking the pans and flats well, especially the former, which dry out much the fastest. Far more bulbous plants are spoiled by an insufficient water supply than by all other causes combined.

After the present date there is no further need of placing tulips or hyacinths in the dark to draw them up. With the lengthening days, and the fact that bulbs are all now well sprouted, they can go on a light bench at once. Use care in watering the Dutch hyacinths not to pour it on the flower spikes, as they are liable to decay.

Pentstemons.

These beautiful plants, pentstemons, are not yet sufficiently known and appreciated. They are grand either in solid beds or planted in a mixed border among herbaceous perennials and annuals. They contain many attractive colors and once known and planted will be used again. Secure seed of a reliable strain, sow in flats, prick off into other flats and later pot off singly. A house with a night temperature of 50 degrees is sufficiently warm for pentstemons. When planting them out, remember that they thrive best in deep and well enriched ground. They can be planted out with safety by May 1. A few degrees of frost will not harm them.

Dracæna Australis.

There is always a big demand for this ever useful dracæna, both for beds of a sub-tropical nature and for vases, window and piazza boxes, etc. In order to work up an ample stock of serviceable plants, some seed should be sown in a brisk heat in midwinter each year. Of course, these plants are not salable the first year and may have to be grown an additional year or two to give the sizes needed, but D. Australis is a tough, easily cared for and accommodating plant which can be easily wintered where the temperature even falls a little below freezing.

Stevia.

The early part of February sees the last of the stevia in the market. Put in a good batch of cuttings now and you can then discard all the old stock plants. This is a cheap, but ever useful flower. In making up bouquets and boxes of flowers in midwinter we would miss it exceedingly if it were taken away. Anyone with a cold house, such as will grow single violets successfully, can easily have this little flower for three months by placing batches in a warmer house as needed.

Spiræas.

Spiræas for Easter flowering should be starting into growth now. Give them a temperature of 60 degrees at night, an ample water supply and be careful not to use any tobacco stems, gas or other strong fumigants where they are, as the leaves are delicate and easily scorched.

Deciduous Shrubs for Easter.

The majority of deciduous shrubs can be forced into flower within four or five weeks in strong heat, but if you want some of them and cannot give them 65 or 70 degrees at night, place now in a temperature of 50 degrees at night, and such varieties as lilacs, Azalea mollis, pyrus, prunus, deutzias and others will be on time. You can easily move them to a cooler house if they seem a little too early. Plants grown thus cool will have better foliage and more substance in their flowers than such as have been subjected to hard forcing.

Rhododendrons.

We are now within six weeks of Easter and that reminds us that rhododendrons and kalmias wanted in flower at that time must now go into a warm, moist house, be kept freely syringed and moved into cooler quarters as the flowers expand. The demand for white flowering plants for Easter at the expense of colored ones is now a thing of the past, and apart from Easter lilies, the call is now much more robust for colored than white plants. Undoubtedly, the finest of all rhododendrons for Easter is Pink Pearl. This is not yet by any means a cheap variety and the more inexpensive hybrids are more in evidence, although the size and beauty of flower of Pink Pearl justifies everyone trying a few.

ROCK PLANTS.

Kindly let me know through The Review what are the best plants to use in making a rock garden forty feet long and twenty feet wide. The climate is that of western Massachusetts. Also let me know the best time to prune apple trees. M. H.

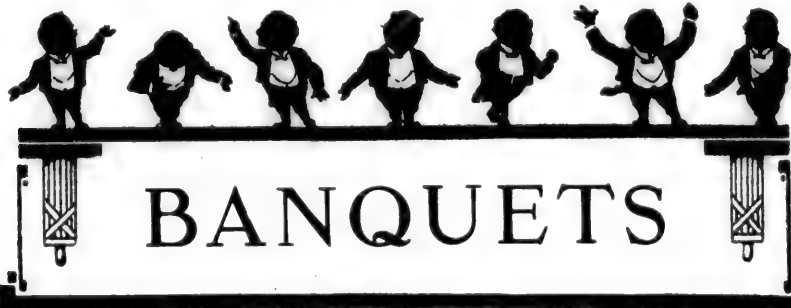

Some desirable rock plants for the section in which you are located are: Campanula Carpatica, Viola cornuta alba and purpurea, Aubrietia deltoidea, Alyssum saxatile compactum, Convallaria majalis, Gentiana prostrata, G. Parryi, G. simplex, etc.; Dryas octopetala, Achillea tomentosa, Phlox subulata, Arabis albidia, Primula Parryi, P. veris, P. Japonica and P. Sieboldi; Helleborus niger, Lychnis Viscaria, Veronica Teucrium, single violets in variety, Anemone Pennsylvanica and A. thalictroides, Cornus Canadensis, thymus in variety, Helianthemum vulgare, Linaria Cymbalaria, Papaver nudicaule, hepaticas, Iris cristata and I. pumila, saxifragas in many varieties, Aquilegia Canadensis, Geranium Robertianum, Asperula odorata, Iberis semperflorens, armerias, bellis, single and double; snowdrops, scillas, chionodoxas, winter aconites, Cypripedium acaule and C. pubescens, Lotus corniculatus, Daphne Cneorum, Campanula fragilis, Dicentra eximia, Primula farinosa, Ajuga reptans and Saponaria ocymoides. These plants are in some cases rather robust growers. The beautiful varieties thriving so well in Great Britain will not stand our long, hot, dry summers. In making your rockery, or rock garden, remember that we get a rather scant rainfall, that the summer sun is intensely hot, and plan, therefore, to give the rockery shade from nearby trees or buildings during the hottest part of the day. Also plan to have an adequate water supply convenient.

The list given is a partial one and there are hundreds of other varieties which can be added. Those named are, however, of comparatively easy culture. Some are, in fact, sorts which may need keeping within bounds.

Prune apple trees any time after leaves have fallen until the end of March. Select a time when the wood is not frozen. C. W.

Dansville, N. Y.—F. M. Smith has recently installed a No. 100 Giblin hot water boiler.

Zanesville, O.—J. D. Imlay was one of the committee in charge of the recent state apple show held here, and he made an excellent display of potted plants and cut flowers. M. M. Meisse, of Lancaster, and A. E. Powell, of Newark, showed greenhouse vegetables. There were a number of displays of nursery stock, and some 1,500 bushels of apples were staged.

YONKERS, N. Y.

The Yonkers Horticultural Society gave its third annual dinner Thursday evening, January 30, at the Pine Tree Inn, with its usual elaborate menu, its big attendance and much enthusiasm. Messrs. Waite, Milliott and Rennison made up a committee that is unbeatable.

Charles H. Totty was the toastmaster and proved he was "to the manor born," keeping the big crowd alert and happy throughout the evening. Mr. Drexel spoke for the Yonkers society, Mr. Duncan for the Elberon society and Mr. Ebel for the National Association of Gardeners. Mr. Totty pleaded for cooperation and told the gardeners of the $5,000 cash and thirty-five silver cups that have been set aside for their profession at the National Flower Show. J. Johnstone responded for the Glen Cove society, Mr. Lee for Tarrytown, Mr. Drews for Orange, E. McKenzie for the Westchester and Fairfield, and Messrs. Casper and Wilson for Dobbs Ferry. Mr. Ortez gave a splendid address on cooperation, and was ably seconded by President Waite. J. A. Shaw responded for the press, Mr. Maynard for the ladies, Mr. Milliott for the retail florists, Mr. Sperry for publicity, Mr. Muller for the drummer, Mr. Sperling for the seedsmen and Mr. Rennison for the nurserymen. Andrew Wilson sang and told stories and it was too late for trains for many when the festivities ended. J. A. S.

MORRISTOWN, N. J.

The seventeenth annual dinner of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society was held Tuesday evening, January 28, at Piper's hotel, and was declared the best ever held by this venerable organization. The menu was seductive, the floral decorations were elaborate and the oratory above normal. Walter Sheridan, of New York, was the affable, practical and eloquent toastmaster, and proved to be the right man in the right place. Arthur Herrington, who is known as the father of the society, made the address of welcome, claiming for Morris county the front rank in the list of horticultural societies in this country. Mr. Linderman, representing Mayor Todd, and president of the board of aldermen of Morristown, responded for the city and gave the visiting florists the freedom of the town. Mayor Downs, of Madison, N. J., said the society had put Madison on the map. He made a fine address on American manhood, the keynote of his oratory being "Give us men," to which Arthur T. Boddington later took exception, saying the battle cry should be "Give us women." The latter sentiment seemed to have a majority of the votes.

President Siebrecht, of the New York Florists' Club, gave a practical address, outlining the best methods to win success at the National Flower Show. James Christie, a local vocalist, interspersed popular songs and a competent orchestra also made melody.

W. H. Duckham, treasurer of the society, gave a splendid tribute to Secretary Reagan and made the presentation of a valuable silver tea service in token of his many years of faithful devotion, to which Mr. Reagan feelingly replied.

William Turner responded for the Monmouth County Horticultural Society, the headquarters of which will be in Red Bank hereafter. Mr. Turner prophesied that New Jersey will come out on top at the big flower show in April. Mr. Cleary, of the Madison Eagle, spoke for the press. Charles Weathered spoke for the New York Florists' Club and Mr. Boddington for the seedsmen. The theme of C. H. Totty's forensic eloquence was the National Flower Show. Mr. Maynard spoke on the high cost of living. Mr. Morris, of the Madison Trust Co., Mr. Ebel and Messrs. Sperry and Shaw "also ran." The aftermath, which began at midnight, was full of interest. It was a great night. J. A. S.

OYSTER BAY.

For a young society, Oyster Bay certainly carries off the palm. Not a year old until April, it has already an active membership of 120, and eleven life and honorary members additional.

Its first annual banquet was a grand success. It was held at East Norwich, L. I., at an inn famous for its dinners, and no more elaborate menu is seen at the Astor or Waldorf-Astoria. The decorations were tasteful and included a grand vase of William Eccles carnations from Scott Bros., of Elmsford. Alfred Lahodney, of the Havemeyer estate, exhibited a lily with twenty perfect flowers. Secretary Ingram furnished the plants for the tables.

In the absence of President Duthie, who was indisposed, Vice-president Joseph Robinson presided. J. Austin Shaw was toastmaster. Mr. Robertson, who won the gold medal for highest number of points on his exhibits of the year, was presented with the trophy in a neat speech by Alfred Walker. The program was an elaborate one, and it was after 1 a. m. before it was concluded.

The toast to the nurserymen was responded to by James Scott and P. H. Goodsell, Mr. Goodsell later donating a silver cup for the club's competition. For the seedsmen, Messrs. Sperling, of the Stump & Walter Co., Mr. Kennedy, of Kennedy & Hunter, and Mr. Johnson, of the MacNiff Horticultural Co., gave interesting addresses. George Powers and Julius Blum spoke for the associate members, G. Haywood, of Glen Cove, for the banking interests, Ernest Brand, Alex. McKenzie, John F. Johnston and John Everett for the Glen Cove society.

During the evening William Eccles read one of his famous Byronic poems and Charles Plumb and Andrew Wilson sang. A pianist kept the crowd musical with popular songs, in which the company of nearly 100 joined. William Robertson spoke for "Bonnie Scotland." William Plumb gave a fine address, replete with practical philosophy, to the toast of "Merrie England," and John O'Neil took the "Ould Sod" as his inspiration. N. H. Desbrow responded for the local press and Mr. Maynard for the ladies. A letter was read from Secretary Ebel, of the N. A. G., regretting his absence and announcing the engagement of the entire floor of Thumm's bowling alleys for the S. A. F. and N. A. G. tournament Wednesday, April 9. J. A. S.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that Richard Diener & Co., Mountain View, Cal., offer for registration the following new geraniums. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed names, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date. The flowers in the following descriptions are all single, except Dr. Lincoln Cotthran, which is semi-double, and Richard Diener, which is single or semi-double.

Public notice is hereby given that Mrs. William S. Kimball, Rochester, N. Y., offers for registration the following new orchid. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from date:

The plant is a sport from the well-known Cypripedium Harrisianum, differing from the original as follows: The habit of the growth is short and compact and the plant is very floriferous. The leaves are much narrower and have a bright, glossy surface. The flower scape is of greenish color, six to nine inches in height. The flower is of medium size, beautifully formed and of a light greenish color, slightly shaded, the staminode being perfectly green. The name which I wish to give to the above described orchid is Cypripedium Harrisianum Laura Mitchell Kimball.

John Young, Sec'y.

January 31, 1913.

Chillicothe, Mo.—R. L. Isherwood has purchased a new automobile for delivery purposes.

White Plains, N. Y.—James Davidson, formerly proprietor of the flower store at 11 Spring street, has discontinued his business here and removed to Suffern, N. Y.

OBITUARY.

Fred Schmeling.

After an illness which overtook him January 2, Fred Schmeling, of Milwaukee, Wis., died at the Sacred Heart Sanitarium January 31, where he was taken the day before. He was first taken down with the grip, which was followed by pneumonia. A German by birth, Mr. Schmeling had resided in Milwaukee for thirty-five years. He conducted a florists' business, both wholesale and retail, on the Blue Mound road, opposite the eastern side of the Calvary cemetery. Had he lived till May 22 he would have attained the age of 52 years. He leaves a wife and five children—three girls and two boys, the youngest boy being a helping hand in the business. The funeral took place from the Holy Cross church, February 3, at 9 a. m.

H. M. Walbridge.

Harley M. Walbridge, who for the last eighteen months had charge of the wholesale store of the J. M. Jasser Co., Cleveland, O., died after a short illness of pleuro-pneumonia, at his parents' residence, Hornell, N. Y., January 31.

Martin Grady.

Martin Grady, formerly well known in the nursery trade as a salesman for the Parsons Nurseries, Flushing, N. Y., died January 29 at his home, 15 Prospect street, Flushing, at the age of 71 years. He was born in Ireland and settled in Flushing when he was 21 years old. An expert nurseryman, he secured employment with Samuel Parsons, and for a time he traveled all through the United States in the interest of the nursery. He was with the concern until about ten years ago, when the firm gave up business. He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. Thomas J. Deegan, of Brooklyn, Misses Mary and Winifred Grady, and two sons, Thomas and James.

Daniel Twoomey.

Daniel Twoomey, a well-known nurseryman, at Geneva, N. Y., died January 29. For a number of years Mr. Twoomey was a clerk in the Geneva postoffice and for a time served as deputy postmaster. Since leaving the postoffice he had been engaged in the nursery business. His mother, two brothers and one sister survive.

Dr. Adolph Leue.

Dr. Adolph Leue, aged 68, one of the best-known botanists of Ohio, and superintendent of landscape gardening and forestry at the City Infirmary, at Cincinnati, died January 27, of asthma. He was born in Germany, studied forestry and botany there and came to Cincinnati about forty years ago. For his services in behalf of floriculture and horticulture in Ohio he was given the doctor's degree by the State University at Athens.

Thomas V. Munson.

Thomas Volney Munson, D.Sc., the well known nurseryman and grape hybridist, died in his seventieth year, January 22, at his home in Denison, Tex. He was born in Astoria, Ill., and graduated from Kentucky University in 1870. That institution employed him one year as instructor in the natural sciences, but failing health diverted his energies into the nursery business and he started a market garden and nursery near Lincoln, Neb. In 1876 he removed to Denison, Tex., where he founded nurseries which have been prosperous and are widely known.

G. T. Cordua.

Gustave Theodore Cordua, for nearly forty years a leading florist in Orange, N. J., died at his home, 46 Hillyer street, January 27, at the age of 83 years. He was born in Dutch Guiana, South America. His wife and one daughter survive him.

Waco, Tex.—The business of Wolfe the Florist has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $24,000. The incorporators are Tom J. Wolfe, Fred C. Wolfe and Fisher Lamb.

New Hampton, Ia.—The greenhouses owned by Judge Springer, and conducted under the name of the New Hampton Floral Co., have been leased for one year to F. R. Robinson. Mr. Robinson has had almost entire charge of the business for some time.

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

Indianapolis, Ind.—The board of park commissioners has published a notice asking for sealed proposals for the construction of a greenhouse on a strip of land adjoining Garfield Park, in this city.

Palmyra, N. J.—F. R. Matsinger states that a recent report, to the effect that he had rented the greenhouses of the John F. Erwin Co., at Delanco, N. J., was incorrect. The deal was not consummated and Mr. Matsinger now has another place under consideration.

Blair, Neb.—Wm. J. Rodgers has purchased a piece of property, including three large lots with a house and barn, at the east end of State street, and thus has secured what he long has wanted, a downtown site for his greenhouses. The grounds are large enough to permit the erection of all the greenhouses that he will need for some time.

New Rochelle, N. Y.—Siebrecht & Son are seriously considering the advisability of removing their extensive plant to some other place, where land can be secured for a permanent location. The value of the present property has advanced by leaps and bounds during the last few years and presents a charming site for residences of the highest class.

Fort Smith, Ark.—At the recent convention of the Arkansas State Horticultural Society, in this city, the four prize cups in the flower department were all won by two commercial florists, who ranked as follows: Cut flowers—George T. Duey, of the Electric Park Greenhouses, first; C. J. Brockman, second. Plants—C. J. Brockman, first; George T. Duey, second.

New Paltz, N. Y.—D. Clinton Burns, who came to this town eighteen years ago and engaged in business as a vegetable grower, has purchased some ground on Mannheim boulevard and has there erected a residence, a barn and two greenhouses. At this new location he is growing a general line of stock, both flowers and vegetables. He has had excellent success in the culture of chrysanthemums.

Kearney, Neb.—The greenhouses of the Green Seed & Plant Co. were damaged recently by fire, caused by an overheated boiler. One house of carnations was a total loss. The damage to the packing sheds, amounting to about $50, was covered by insurance. The contract has been let for the rebuilding of five 80-foot greenhouses, with concrete walls and concrete benches. H. C. Green, the proprietor, is an old-timer in the trade, having been engaged in the flower and seed business for over fifty years, including sixteen years in this city. He has met with two losses by fire, three by hail and two by water, but he says he is still here to stay.

Atchison, Kan.—W. M. C. Frazier has installed a gas engine and pump to supply water for his greenhouses and residence.

Lowell, Mass.—Probably the most striking of all the tributes at the funeral of Arthur B. Nichols was a large locomotive of flowers. This design was ordered by the Boston & Maine employees and was made by Richard A. Griffiths, the Bridge street florist.

Canon City, Colo.—A recent fire at the greenhouses of Calvert Bros., the vegetable growers in the Hot Springs addition, caused a loss of several hundred dollars. The damage seems to have been confined principally to the boiler room, though one end of a greenhouse was also wrecked by the flames.

FLORISTS' PUBLISHING CO.
530-60 Caxton Bldg. Chicago

Grand Rapids, Mich.—It was through error that The Review published the statement that C. A. Simonds, the Cleveland representative, had been general manager of the Simonds Heating & Specialty Co. C. Bradshaw was unanimously appointed general manager by the board of directors of this company July last. C. A. Simonds has been connected with the Simonds concern for six years.

Corsicana, Tex.—Mr. and Mrs. William Clowe, of the Corsicana Greenhouses, have been in business here for a quarter of a century and their trade in 1912 was the best in their experience. There is a prospect, also, of a prosperous spring season, as many orders have already been received for roses and other stock to plant out. There has been a sufficient rainfall and the soil is likely to be in good condition for planting.

Baraboo, Wis.—William Toole delivered an interesting address at the annual convention of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society, held recently at Madison. His subject was "Herbaceous Perennials Worth Growing."

St. Paul, Minn.—Hrainecker & Gunnarson are successors to the Wm. King Floral Co., and are conducting business under the name of the Capital City Floral Co. They have greenhouses on Pacific street and a store at 291 East Seventh street.

Grand Rapids, Wis.—The Johnson & Hill Co. has made arrangements with William Giebels, the florist and landscape gardener, whereby the firm will carry the full line of cut flowers and potted plants formerly carried by Mr. Giebels on the east side.

Sylvania, O.—It is understood that E. H. Cushman paid $30,000 for the orange grove of twenty-three acres he recently purchased at Redlands, Cal. He was there at the time of the freeze and made his purchase afterward, so he evidently was not frightened by the cold.

Brunswick, Me.—Thomas Pegler, well known in the trade on account of his former connection with the Boston wholesale market, is now in business at 15 Jordan avenue, in this town. He is greatly encouraged by the increase of his trade in the short time he has been here.

Mitchell, S. D.—W. T. March, manager of the well known corporation, The Newburys, attended the annual meeting of the South Dakota State Horticultural Society, in Redfield, and succeeded in securing the promise of the organization to meet in this city next January. This will be the first meeting of the state society here since 1889.

Quincy, Ill.—Gottfried Gross announces that he intends to sell his present greenhouse property, at the corner of Twentieth and Main streets. The sale, however, will not include his residence. He expects to purchase land outside the city and to erect there a range of houses containing 20,000 square feet of glass. He will have an office and show room on Twentieth street, near Jersey street.

Ottawa, Ill.—The Davis-Harrison Co. has recently been marketing the first crop of cucumbers from the big new greenhouses in this city and the quality of the output is said to be unusually fine. Six hives of bees are kept in the houses for purposes of pollenization. The firm also owns greenhouses at Aurora and Morrison, Ill. D. F. Harrison, general manager of the local branch of the business, says that it is the intention, eventually, to add five more large houses to the range here.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1913: President, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.; vice-president, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; secretary, John Young, 54 W. 25th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Keating, Buffalo.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE growers who bought Sunburst rose last season are using all the wood for propagating, so that few flowers are reaching the markets. It has acquitted itself so well in its first year that it will be planted extensively for next season.

THE final schedule of premiums for the Third National Flower Show, to be held by the S. A. F. and contributing societies, at New York, April 5 to 12, has been distributed. It is the most comprehensive premium list ever issued in America. Copies may be had by addressing John Young, secretary, 54 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city.

LENT opened this week, but it cuts less and less figure in the flower business as the years roll by.

PECKY cypress will cost the growers more this season than it ever has before. When this wood first came to be used for greenhouse benches, it had comparatively few other uses, but now it is employed wherever lasting qualities are more essential than good looks. Lumbermen explain that the present scarcity and higher prices are due to the quantities that have been used this season in Mississippi river levee work. It is stated that it will be several months before the supply becomes normal again.

FROM POUGHKEEPSIE.

One of the peculiar facts about advertising is that an advertiser is more impressed by the receipt of one order from a great distance than he is by a dozen similar orders from close at home. Like this:

Please stop my advertisement of Sprenger, as I am about sold out. To show you what a wide range Review advertisements have, I will say that I shipped Sprenger to the John Cannon Floral Co., of Hamilton, Ont., Can., and have an order on my desk now for the Texas Nursery & Floral Co., Alvin, Texas. The Review certainly is read everywhere and is a strong puller.—George A. Relyea, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., January 25, 1913.

CORRESPONDENTS.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Little if any change has taken place on this market since the last report, the demand and the supply holding about the same as they were a week ago. The change in the weather, however, has been more pronounced and the temperature has suffered several drops, to near the zero mark, which has not done anything to improve the local demand. The large supply of carnations is still in effect and, while bulbous stock is plentiful, the only oversupply is in carnations. In these there is considerable improvement in the quality of the stock being shipped. While weak stems seem to prevail in the shipments of many growers, there are more of the better ones to be found than heretofore. Enchantress is in larger supply than any other, but there is no shortage reported on any color, there being plenty of red, white and pink. Roses remain on the short side, especially in the shorter lengths. Of the longer ones there is a much better supply, but most wholesalers still find it difficult to fill all their orders, and it is hardly expected that any heavy crops will be cut for another two weeks at the earliest. Of those now being cut the Killarneys appear to be in larger supply than the White Killarneys, while Richmonds are scarcest.

Beauties of the longer grades are being cut in fair quantities, but the stems of many are weak and the blooms

VIOLETS

We Handle the Cream of the Crops

YOU will need large quantities of Violets for Valentine's Day. We can supply the best grade, either single or double, at such reasonable prices that you cannot afford to handle any others. We always have the cream of the Hudson River doubles and a large supply of fragrant, home-grown singles. Extra shipments arranged for Valentine's Day. Let us quote on your needs.

FANCY CATTLEYAS

You also will need an extra supply of Orchids for Valentine's Day. We have fine stock—large, perfect flowers of high color. The price is moderate, and especially so when the superior quality of the flowers is taken into consideration. How many can you use?

VALLEY! VALLEY!!

We Handle Bruns' Chicago Market Brand Cut Valley Exclusively.

There is none better. Can furnish ordinary quantities on telegraph order, and no limit to the supply if notice is given ahead—but why not place a standing order? Get a regular shipment. You need it every day.

CARNATIONS

There is an abundance of Carnations in this market, but there are not so very many that are strictly good. It is not what you pay but what you get that determines value—and the more you think about it the more certain you are to order your Carnations of Amling. As always, we have a large supply of strictly first-class stock.

LILIES

A large crop of good lilies now ready; can supply in any quantity.

BULB STOCK

Plenty of Jonquils, Tulips, Freesia, Romans, etc., first-class quality.

BEAUTIES

We are particularly strong just now on short to medium Beauties. This is stock that with you will sell at sight—it will please your trade. We also can supply long-stemmed Beauties that you will recognize as a distinctly superior grade. We always make it possible for you to get good Beauties in this market—but why not order direct?

FANCY ROSES

Rose crops as yet are only moderately large, but our cut comes from double the number of plants we were selling from at this date last year. The stock is of the high standard on which we have built our Rose business. An especially good supply of Mrs. Ward, yellow, in all lengths.

imperfect. Still, there are some good ones to be had, and of course they command a premium. Several growers are cutting short Beauties in some quantity.

Bulbous stock is in heavy supply and the quality on most of the shipments is first-rate. Local retailers are featuring baskets of these, and spring flowers of all kinds are being used in the window displays. Tulips and jonquils are being received in larger quantities, but the supply of Paper Whites is not so large as it has been in previous weeks.

Sweet peas are reported as having improved in demand, and some shippers report that the out-of-town orders have been so heavy that it was hard to fill all the calls. The supply, however, appears to be on the increase, and with brighter weather it is expected that little trouble will be experienced in filling the orders that come in for Valentine's day. Violets are in large supply, there being a larger number of locally grown singles on the market, and these have met with a slow sale during the last few days. Orchids show a tendency to advance in price, but as yet there is no great demand and the prices were only slightly higher during the last week than before. Valley is in good supply, and the quality is all that could be desired. There are plenty of Easter lilies. Stevia still is seen in one or two houses, but is about done.

McKinley day, January 29, did not create a ripple. One of the largest houses says that only one order could be traced to the occasion. This was Mardi Gras week at New Orleans. Formerly this event frequently caused a tightening in the Chicago market, but this year it was not noticed by many of the houses.

January Weather.

It was the warmest January since 1906, the mean temperature being 29 degrees, as against 12 degrees in 1912. There was forty-two per cent of the possible duration of sunshine, being one per cent less than normal for the month. The wind movement was only 11,191 miles, or considerably below normal. The snowfall was slightly more than six inches, but it did not stay more than a few hours. The growing conditions of the month were excellent, compared with other Januaries, and the drain on the fuel bins unprecedentedly light for the month.

Various Notes.

C. W. McKellar is congratulating himself over his quick recovery from this year's case of blood poisoning. He thinks it was entirely due to a rose thorn and that he will hereafter be free from the trouble.

The E. C. Amling Co. anticipates an extremely large business on violets for Valentine's day, prices this season being lower than usual and affording the retailers a strong incentive to push.

A. T. Pyfer, manager of the Chicago Carnation Co., announces that an arrangement has been made between his concern and A. Jablonsky, of Olivette, Mo., for the joint dissemination in 1915 of Mr. Jablonsky's variegated carnation heretofore known as No. 61, but which now has been named Thomas A. Edison. Mr. Jablonsky sent some of his flowers to Chicago last week and followed them in person a day or two later. The Edison is marked on the order of Patten. The flowers are large, of good form and possess excellent keeping qualities. The stem is of good length and strong. Mr. Jablonsky also sent blooms of excellent variegated Enchantress; White Enchantress penciled like Patten. C. Akehurst & Son, White Marsh, Md., also sent the Chicago Carnation Co. a fine lot of seedling blooms last week.

A decoration at the Woman's Athletic Club was one of the big jobs of the week for the Bohannon Floral Co. In the overhead work, artificial cherry blossoms were used, while orchids and spring flowers were featured in the table decorations.

N. J. Wietor spent February 3 and 4 calling on the trade and seeing the sights in New Orleans.

has not been really off crop at any time through January and now is giving a heavy cut.

John Poehlmann says one day's receipts of coal at Morton Grove last week totaled fifty cars, or nearly two solid train loads. The sidings at Morton Grove would not hold them all and some of the cars had to be carried on to the next station.

E. E. Pieser called the doctor three times February 2, but was at the store as usual the next day.

Jack Byers, of the Chicago Carnation Co., and Harry Manheim, of Hoerber Bros., spent Sunday afternoon, February 2, visiting their growers at Des Plaines. The Des Plaines Floral Co., owned by Messrs. Blewitt and Prickett, consign to the Chicago Carnation Co.

In adding to the number of its trunk lines the A. L. Randall Co. had either to use more than one number or change its call. Six lines now are in use and Central 7720 gets any of them, for on the board in the telephone company's exchange there is a ring around the six consecutive numbers.

Sidney Buchbinder, sales manager for Buchbinder Bros., says that retailers seem to realize that an old refrigerator can cost considerable in waste of ice, etc., and the last month has brought more than the ordinary number of orders for new boxes. One of the more distant orders placed last week was from H. J. Ball, West Derby, Vt.

W. J. Smyth left St. Luke's hospital January 31, after a sojourn of seven weeks. His hip, fractured by a fall as he was stepping from an automobile, has knitted perfectly and he will in time be as well as ever. He is able to be about the house on crutches, but it will be some time before he will venture to visit the store.

Peter Reinberg will replant more than half of his roses this season, a larger proportion than in any recent year. The propagators have been busy and the young stock is said to be in fine shape.

Messrs. Wienhoeber, Buettner and Earl visited the new plant of Bassett & Washburn one day last week, and say the sight is well worth the trip. The five new houses in carnations are under such high gutters that it looks like an unbroken field of flowers, 175x600, and work is being rushed on the range of thirteen additional houses, with preparations under way for more to follow.

Arthur F. Keenan, who recently opened an attractive new store at 1222 East Sixty-third street, says he intends to continue the old store at 1306, in the next block, at least until his lease expires, May 1. For the spring trade he expects to turn the old stand largely to seeds and plants.

J. H. McNeilly, confectioner and florist, at Lexington avenue and Sixty-third street, has become an enthusiast on the flower business, but does not neglect the candy factory, as witness his booking an order last week for 10,000 1-pound boxes of high grade chocolates, his first attempt at manufacturing for the wholesale trade.

The Western Dahlia and Gladiolus Association will hold its annual bulb show Friday and Saturday, February 7 and 8, at the store of the A. L. Randall Co. Business sessions with an attractive program will be held the same days.

The Raedlein Basket Co. reports the arrival of an importation of 100 cases of baskets from its factories in Germany. The bulk of this consignment is already sold, but another shipment is expected in the near future. On account of the heavy weather on the ocean, this shipment was greatly delayed.

Carl Strobusch, who was employed in the retail establishment of the Geo. Wittbold Co., on Buckingham place, died January 26 of dropsy. Otto Strobusch, a brother of the deceased, is connected with the same concern.

Erne & Klingel say that the shortage of sweet peas during last week helped to improve the market for violets, the singles selling unusually well.

Henry Wittbold handled one of the largest and most elaborate decorating jobs of recent years January 31, for Mrs. Harold McCormick, at the Congress hotel. Over 160 cases of wild smilax were used, with hundreds of blooming plants, ferns, palms, etc., preparing the Gold room for one of the more important social functions of the year. Manager H. H. Wilkerson states that the present rush has made it impossible to get the salesrooms open as was announced.

A. L. Vaughan finds a steady demand for the higher grade of bulbous stock and says that, with the shortage of roses, tulips, jonquils and others are unusually popular.

F. F. Benthley, with Kyle & Foerster, says the Sunburst rose has done so well at the Benthleys' Newcastle establishment that there will be an increase in the number of plants next season. He also reports a big crop of Killarney and Richmond near the cutting point.

C. L. Washburn was an interested visitor at the Chicago automobile show this week and made several trips looking over the new models of electric and gasoline cars with the idea of investing in one of each kind.

The announced change of location of several growers who have been selling their stock on the market did not materialize February 1, but Sol Garland, who, it is understood, formerly shipped to Percy Jones, is now selling his own stock, having rented space from Jones. Mary Garland is in charge of the stand.

The Chicago Florists' Club will hold its regular monthly meeting at the Union restaurant tonight, February 6.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business continues fair in spite of the unusual weather conditions prevailing. Roses continue scarce, practically all growers being off crop. American Beauties are in short supply and have advanced in price considerably. Taft, Sunburst and Ward are all popular. Killarney and Pink Killarney have been selling well, short stock being in particularly good demand. Long-stemmed flowers have also made better money. Carnations are weaker and a limited number only reach the highest quoted prices. All the Enchantress varieties, Beacon and Winsor are now bursting badly with the majority of growers. Gloriosa, White Wonder, Pink Delight and Be-nora are almost free from this defect. Violets are down and the quality is not good in many cases. The weather has been too warm for them.

Sweet peas as yet are mostly short-stemmed, but are improving. Bulbous stock is abundant, but moves pretty well. Some ornatus narcissi are now seen, in addition to the yellow sorts. Double Von Sions sell better than Golden Spurs. The market on valley is fairly good. Some splendid mignonne is arriving. Snapdragons are soon bought up, especially pink ones. Blue cornflowers sell well and calendulas are being used freely in many window decorations. There is quite a good call for yellow marguerites, but an uncertain call for miscellaneous flowers. There are still too many cattleyas, with a good supply of other orchids. Gardenias are rather weak. Trade in green stock is not robust.

McKinley day passed without recognition here, but the outlook is good for Valentine's day. The best class stores are showing Acacia pubescens and other varieties, cut, also lilacs in several colors, amaryllis, clivias and gerberas, among other flowers.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The pre-Lenten season has closed with a rush that has put the entire market into excellent shape. The buyers are on the alert for flowers, keeping the stock moving at good prices. Roses are the strongest blooms on the list, and Beauties the strongest roses. Their price is firm at $9 a dozen, with receipts larger than a week ago. This unusual condition for February is probably due to the fine weather at New Year's. Medium Beauties are still rare and the shorts are still imperfect for the most part. The short grades of pink and white roses have advanced in price. All grades are selling well. There are some nice Richmond about. They are popular. Carnations have not advanced in price, but the average price is again higher than it was a week ago. This is due partly to a brisk market and partly to fine quality. Daffodils, some say jonquils, are plentiful. Quantity lots can be purchased reasonably. Freesia is selling well, but tulips go rather slowly. Cattleyas show little strength. An improvement in gardenias is traced to lighter receipts. The balance of the list is in healthy condition, save only violets. Violets for some reason are not in favor. They are cheap and of good quality, but the market will not take them all at listed prices. It may be the competition of the sweet pea and of the gardenia, or even the orchid, or it may be the American love of a change that has given the lovely violet a setback just now.

mally some topics of the times this week. He believes in the Retail Flower Dealers' Association, properly conducted, and that the wholesale florists would do well to absolutely forbid retailing. Mr. Bayersdorfer carries the belief into practice by insisting on the business card of every customer, cash or credit, who buys in his place. It matters not whether the article is wrapped before the matter comes to his attention, or to that of Mr. Berkowitz. It goes back on the shelf in the absence of satisfactory proof. Mr. Bayersdorfer says this is good business and that it protects his customers. Speaking of the growth of the business in florists' supplies, Mr. Bayersdorfer said that his house is believed to be the largest recipient of case goods in the entire city of Philadelphia. The steamer Abyssinia, a month overdue, arrived February 3 with the long expected Porto Rican mats.

ison, N. J., in a good speech. Martin C. Ebel, also of Madison, spoke for publicity. Robert Craig was in his happiest vein. Then Adolph Farenwald urged Philadelphia to lead at the show, as she has done in the past. The debate closed with bright talk on matters of interest.

The exhibition was good. Samuel S. Pennock was responsible for much of it. His company showed Mrs. Charles Russell rose. Robert Scott & Son staged Irish Fire Flame, Killarney Brilliant and U. B. Ford. Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., exhibited Matchless, its new white carnation. J. D. Cockcroft set up a great vase of Carnation Northport. Scott Bros., of Elmsford, had some fine carnation novelties. Traendly & Schenck sent Salmon Queen. Dailedouze Bros., of Brooklyn, staged Enchantress Supreme. William Eccles was fine. On the whole it was an exhibition worthy of the meeting that Edward Reid had planned so well.

Little Mary.

Those whose business takes them to Ludlow street are familiar with a child of 10 or 11 years, often seen watching the unpacking and repacking. She seems to love flowers dearly and will stand gazing for a long time at the beautiful blossoms. Sometimes she is alone and sometimes she has a little group of friends with her. She is always quiet and never in the way. Often she goes over to the desk where Mr. Meehan stands, giving directions or receiving visitors, and watches him wistfully until a word or a nod tells her that she may have an odd or broken flower, a treasure that is highly prized. This is Little Mary. A friendship has grown up between the big business man and the child, a friendship of few words,

M. Rice Co. has an attractive Easter folder appropriately entitled "Parcel Post Helps." It contains many good suggestions for the Easter trade. The Easter baskets are arriving on almost every steamer. There are many new and pretty shapes among them and the sales are reported large.

The Universalist church of the Messiah proposes to erect a flower store and greenhouse on its grounds at Broad street and Montgomery avenue and asks proposals from any florist who will lease them.

Peter Fisher, of Ellis, Mass., and M. A. Patten, of Tewksbury, Mass., have been here to see the 5,000 plants of Carnation Gorgeous growing in the greenhouses of Harry M. Weiss & Sons, at Hatboro, Pa.

Other visitors include Walter R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Mrs. L. H. Dundore Moore, Lancaster, Pa., and H. War-endorff, of the Ansonia, New York city.

Sweet peas are the scarce seeds in the flower list.

George Burton will erect a greenhouse to hold 8,000 Beauties on his place at Wyndmoor, Pa.

Robert A. Craig is pleased with the giganteum lilies at Norwood. He thinks they are a credit to his company's new Lord & Burnham houses.

The energetic C. H. Twinn is here and reports good prospects for the King Construction Co. adding to its houses in this territory.

Beans and carrots are the least plentiful vegetable seeds this season.

Edward Reid reports many compliments on the fine quality of his carnations. Phil.

shipments of dumped stock arrived that were in a poor condition. Both Easter lilies and callas are proving good property. Valley also finds a fair market. Joseph Millang, of the New York Cut Flower Co., has gone to Europe for a pleasure trip.

School Commissioner Frank Millang, Jr., has been in office since January 1 and will shortly make a lecture tour through his constituency, which is going some for a 21-year-old wholesale florist.

Jonathan Nash, of Moore, Hentz & Nash, visited the big plant of the Bedford Hills Co. last week, and says improvements are progressing rapidly under the management of Superintendent Pritchard.

Guttman & Moltz is the latest announced wholesale combination and headquarters are in the Coogan building.

Abraham & Strauss last week had the 200 bouquets of red carnations for the graduation exercises of the Girls' High School, Brooklyn.

About 100 boxes of violets now reach the New York market daily.

The first acacia sprays of the year were received last week by Siebrecht & Siebrecht, from the new plant of W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., at Chappaqua, N. Y.

The Kervan Co. reports business better in January than December. Sales of wild smilax averaged sixty-five cases daily.

advertising that seem to catch the public. His latest, involving weekly gifts of plants and flowers to the different hospitals, proves to be "bread cast upon the waters."

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

Notwithstanding the fact that it was warmer last week than ever before experienced in the national capital at this time of the year, roses have been exceptionally scarce and the demand good in proportion. They cleaned up well each day at good prices. Beauties have been much in demand, but no one was disappointed who used judgment in taking retail orders, though they could not be supplied in large quantities. Carnations were plentiful in the first part of the week, but on Saturday and Sunday the supply diminished considerably. Bulbous stock is to be had in large quantities, but the prices are not good. Outdoor blossoms are also being offered and are in fair demand. There are plenty of potted plants. Primroses, lilacs, begonias, cyclamens and rhododendrons are to be had in fine form.

Various Notes.

It is reported that C. H. Merryman, formerly with J. H. Small & Sons, has been awarded the contract for the supply of a large quantity of 30-foot cedar trees, which are to be shaped and used to line the courts of honor on either side of the President's reviewing stand during the inaugural parade.

Washington florists are particularly put out because President-elect Wilson has declared against the inaugural ball and other like festivities. George H. Cooke states that this will materially hurt business, as many of those who planned to give private affairs will refrain from doing so.

H. L. Lauscher, who was formerly with Z. D. Blackstone but now operates a store in Lynchburg, Va., was a visitor here last week. Mr. Lauscher reports business in Lynchburg to be exceptionally good.

The La Follette bill now pending in Congress, which looks to limiting the hours of female labor in the District of Columbia, in all lines of work except that of domestics, to eight hours per day, six days per week, is being looked upon unfavorably by those florists of Washington who employ women in their stores. The law reads that women must not be employed more than eight hours on any one day under any circumstances, and provides a good fine for all violations and three inspectors to look after possible violators. This would be felt most seriously during the Christmas holidays and at Easter.

The bowling team of the Florists' Club, consisting of Messrs. Ernest, captain; Schaffer, Simmons, McLennan, Cooke, Dalglish, Eiker and Neideman-ski, expects to go in a body to the big show soon to be held in New York, and hopes, while there, to obtain an opportunity of pitting its skill against florists' teams from other cities. This is something in the way of a challenge.

Following an illness of twelve weeks, Bernard F. Diedrich, of Alexandria, Va., passed away at his home in that city, 709 Wythe street, February 1. He was a native of Hanover, Germany, where he was born sixty-eight years ago. When about 20 years of age he came to this country and made his home in this city for about ten years, then removing to Alexandria. He is survived by nine children, six sons and three daughters. C. L. L.

Decatur, Ill.—C. W. Harrold has been confined to his bed by illness for the last two weeks and business has been held up in consequence.

NARCISSI NOT FLOWERING.

We would like to know something in regard to our narcissi not blooming. We planted two cases of 1,350 each and they started well in flats and 4-inch pots, mostly in pots. About one-fourth of them have thrown blooms and the rest have fine growths but no sign of bloom or bud. We located them as we always have when we had good results. The bulbs cost us $11 per case from a reliable Chicago seed firm. Please let us know what you think about them, as the room they are taking is valuable to us for bedding plants. L. B.

You do not state whether the narcissi are Paper Whites or one of the trumpet varieties. I assume that they are the former. If the flats were kept too cool and damp in the early stages of growth, many of the bulbs would fail to flower, the flower spikes decaying just as they pushed from the bulbs. The leaf growth would not be affected at all. If this is not the cause, imperfect ripening of the bulbs when dug in France may be responsible. The growing season there was an unfavorable one last year, and of course bulbs lifted before proper maturation will flower poorly, if at all. C. W.

Chester, W. Va.—John E. Colton, who some months ago rented C. A. Smith's greenhouses, has now secured a lease, also, on the greenhouses of John T. Neville, in the rear of Mr. Neville's property on Carolina avenue. Mr. Neville, who has been in the business here for many years, will remove in the near future to Pittsburgh, where he and Mrs. Neville have accepted positions with a florist.

Eight Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Southwestern Market.

The market last week stayed in much the same condition as was reported the week previous. We are today, February 3, having our first real snow storm. According to the daily press, the groundhog saw his shadow and winter weather is just beginning. As to cut flowers, the market was not overcrowded at any time during the week. Roses continue scarce, especially Killarneys. Richmonds and Beauties are more plentiful than any of the other varieties. Prices are up on roses of every kind, although extra long Beauties can be bought at $4 per dozen. Carnations also went up a little, as not nearly so many are coming in. All stock in this line appears to be of extra good quality, with top prices at $4 per hundred.

Violets are more plentiful and seem to sell well. There has been no advance in price except on Mazzuras, which hold a steady price at all times, as the demand for this variety is large with first-class establishments. Sweet peas shortened up considerably last week and the wholesalers were unable to supply the demand. Jonquils, Von Sions, Paper Whites, Romans, valley and freesias were fairly good sellers all the week, and the market affords enough to supply the demand at any time. Tulips are now coming, but not many as yet. Easter lilies and callas, eleventh week at the hospital. Mr. Armstrong is the oldest florist in the city, and the members of the Florists' Club are looking forward to the day he can again attend the meetings, as he is the only charter member left and was the club's first secretary twenty-seven years ago.

J. F. Ammann and H. Blixen, of the J. F. Ammann Co., Edwardsville, in company with Andrew Washburn, of Bloomington, Ill., and Charles Loveridge, of Peoria, were in the city January 29, and visited the growers in St. Louis county.

Last week society was quite active and the west end florists had a busy time, with weddings, balls, receptions and dinners. Miss Newman, F. C. Weber, the Ellison Floral Co., Kalisch, F. H. Weber and Sanders all had their share. Lent, which set in this week, will shorten up this kind of work for the time being.

George H. Angermueller says the call for orchids in this market is increasing rapidly.

Al Gumz, Fred Alves and "Billy" Smith are talking of an entertainment and dance to be given by the Florists' Club shortly after Easter. Only florists are to take part in the Easter entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vennemann, living at Kirkwood, were surprised by a burglar early Wednesday morning, January 29, in their room. The burglar shot Mrs. Vennemann and she is at St. Luke's hospital, in a serious condition. Mr. Vennemann is well known in local trade circles.

August Schuerman, head of the Schuerman Floral & Decorating Co., on North Grand avenue, died January 29, of apoplexy. He was well known as a decorator with artificial plants and hunting. He was 61 years old and leaves a wife and daughter. The funeral took place Saturday, February 1, many in the trade attending.

In the show houses of George Waldbart and Mrs. M. M. Ayres, on Grand avenue, I noticed some beautiful blooming plants and a large supply of fancy cut stock of almost anything in season.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

The last week was a fairly active one, as there were a number of small social gatherings that called for decorations and cut flowers. Several weddings added to the demand, while the funeral work continued to be brisk.
Roses are a trifle short, but carnations are arriving in larger quantities and the price dropped a cent apiece on these during the week. Bulbous stock is putting in its appearance in great abundance. All the growers are optimistic regarding Easter, notwithstanding it comes so early in the year.

Various Notes.

Samuel Kinder, of Bristol, is serving as a juror in the superior court for Providence and Bristol counties.

Charles Hunt will start a new house,
35x85, in a few weeks.

Willis S. Pino has secured the contract to supply the seed for the Dexter Asylum this season. He was a visitor at Boston last week.

The new house that Joseph Kopelman is erecting at his range in Oaklawn is now in the hands of the glaziers.

Horace B. Edgecomb, tree warden of Pawtucket, is confined to his home trouble to see one's shadow. Now for six more weeks of winter!

Flowers have been scarce all the week, the shortage of roses being the worst, except for Beauties, which are not considered at all. Even bulbous stock, which had been coming strong, seemed to shorten up. The only thing in excess seemed to be violets. One thing noticeable during the week was the unusually large number of split carnations, coming from every source, particularly Enchantress and White Enchantress.

It is hard to understand why the retailer, although he may read in his trade paper that stock is scarce, will get angry when his wholesaler is compelled to tell him that only part of his order can be filled and, if the order is late, frequently finds that some items cannot be filled at all. Occasionally one will get so angry that he will quit one firm and go to another, where no doubt he will find the same trouble. How much wiser one would be if he would stop long enough to think! The wholesalers are doing their best to please all.

The retail shops have been getting some nice orders lately, but have had some trouble in filling these on account of the shortage of stock.

Various Notes.

The A. M. Downey Co. has opened a new flower shop in Wilkesburg, Pa. The McCallum Co. is running strong on gardenias and lilac.

Ben Elliott says he got out of bed at 2 a. m. February 1 to see where his greenhouses would light, as he thought the way the wind was blowing it might lift them off the top of Troy Hill.

Word has been received from our old friend, John Bader. He thinks so well of his new home that he does not know when he will visit us.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE canners' seedsmen are now priming themselves for the Louisville convention.

INFORMATION as to the whereabouts of a surplus of some of the varieties of seed beans seems also to be desired.

ANY surplus of seed peas that have accumulated can undoubtedly be disposed of if properly advertised.

WHOLESALE lists of peas now coming to hand have, in place of prices, on many varieties the words "short crop," "sold out," or "no crop."

THE California growers who have circled the course report the going fine except for a mud hole or two at the eastern end of the first half.

COMPLAINT is made that some of the California seed growers are getting the habit of the Holland bulb men. That is, they first sell to the large dealers and then go after trade that is legitimately the trade of such dealers.

IN view of the list of bidders for the contracts, the argument of the government that its purchases of seed for free distribution is of benefit to the seed trade, seems as convincing as some of the arguments that have been made the other way.

THE National Canners' Association and allied organizations will hold their annual conventions at Louisville, Ky., February 10 to 13. The affair is expected to be the largest in the history of the trade and will be attended by many seedsmen catering to canners' needs.

IT is not the market gardener, nowadays, who consumes the bulk of the peas, but the canner. At the prices of recent years, the market gardener does not plant so many peas as he once did, but the canner is using steadily increasing quantities. It doesn't take a big canner to use a car of peas; the big ones need thousands of bushels.

THE 1913 catalogues of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, are unique. Separate books are issued for the wholesale trade, for market gardeners and for retail trade. All three contain identical pages of illustrated description of varieties, without prices. The prices are listed without description in a 32-page section bound in the front of the books.

ONION sets are passing through their annual period of hesitating market. About all the good sets are supposed to have passed into strong hands and are being held at firm prices, but there are sets on offer decidedly cheaper, with not much new business doing on either. Good whites are especially strong. Business is expected to open up again shortly and offers to become more uniform.

LESTER L. MORSE, in the British Sweet Pea Annual, says of the production of sweet pea seed in California: "The total acreage with all the growers is no less than 1,700 acres, and the seeds required amount to no less than 1,000,000 pounds weight annually. Probably 250,000 pounds, or twenty-five per cent of the total, is required for mixtures. About JUDGING from the long list of successful bidders, the free distribution of seeds is likely to be a permanent rather than a vanishing institution.

TOO WET IN WASHINGTON.

The following is from a local newspaper published at Bellingham, Wash.: "Because of heavy rains of last year, which ruined hundreds of tons of seed, the Morse Seed Co., San Francisco, has decided not to let seed contracts in this vicinity this year. This announcement is made by Vander Yacht, of Lynden, whose brother acted as agent for the company here last year. Mr. Yacht has the following to say:

"While it is true that last season was the first in many years when rains during harvest have done any harm, the seed company doesn't seem to take that into account. I understand that it proposes to grow seed this year in Idaho.

"The D. M. Ferry people also contracted for a lot of seed peas in the neighborhood of Lynden last year. I haven't heard if they will contract again this year or not. The growing of seed peas is profitable work in good years, such as we usually have. From $50 to $75 an acre is not an unusually high profit for the farmer to make on them. It will be too bad if the industry is abandoned here just on account of the one bad season."

ONION SETS.

Reports show onion sets in brisk demand. Reds seem to be shorter than yellows, and whites of a good quality are scarce. The growing season of 1912 was both good and bad; good in the sense that the crop generally was large; bad in the sense that the late spring kept a part of the crop backward, causing a late harvest for that part. A late harvest is always bad for an onion set crop. Besides this, many of the operators, through ignorance of methods, perhaps, compel their growers to hold back deliveries to the warehouses; consequently, sets already spoiled somewhat by late harvesting were held in the fields until the damp nights of the fall added to the infection and the general poor condition of all such sets resulted in a heavy shrink from softness and rot. SEED IMPORTATION RULES.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued in circular form the rules and regulations for the administration of the Act of August 24, 1912, to regulate foreign commerce by prohibiting the admission into the United States of certain adulterated grain and seeds unfit for seeding purposes. The Act itself is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after six months after the passage of this Act the importation into the United States of seeds of alfalfa, barley, Canadian blue grass, Kentucky blue grass, awnless brome grass, buckwheat, clover, field corn, Kafir corn, meadow fescue, flax, millet, oats, orchard grass, rape, redtop, rye, sorghum, timothy, and wheat, or mixtures of seeds containing any of such seeds as one of the principal component parts, which are adulterated or unfit for seeding purposes under the terms of this Act, is hereby prohibited; and the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Agriculture shall, jointly or severally, make such rules and regulations as will prevent the importation of such seeds into the United States: Provided, however, That such seed may be delivered to the owner or consignee thereof under bond, to be reclaimed in accordance with and subject to such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, and when cleaned to the standard of purity specified in this Act for admission into the United States such seed may be released to the owner or consignee thereof after the screenings and other refuse removed from such seed shall have been disposed of in a manner prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture: Provided further, That this Act shall not apply to the importation of barley, buckwheat, field corn, Kafir corn, sorghum, flax, oats, rye, or wheat

THE GENUINE CREGO ASTER

DIRECT FROM THE ORIGINATOR

With its enormous blossoms, long stems and vigorous, healthy plants, this Aster is becoming more valuable to the florist from year to year, and its remarkable success is due to the fact that it has had the benefit of twelve years of the most rigid and painstaking selection, every effort having been directed toward developing its commercial qualities—toward making it a money-maker for every florist who handles it. Growing no other seed of any kind, I am able to give this the closest possible attention.

One of the largest growers at Irondequoit, the great aster center of New York state, says: "Our best Crego blooms usually sell at about $1.00 per dozen, retail, about twice as much as can be got here for any other variety." (See 'Asters at Irondequoit' in Florists' Review, April 25, 1912.) Both wholesale and retail, when properly handled, the Crego Aster has always maintained its position at the top of the market.

BUY YOUR SEED DIRECT FROM THE ORIGINATOR.

This Aster has proved itself to be exactly what every florist needs: an aster which finds instant favor with his customers, for which they are willing to pay the highest price, and which gives him the highest return for his time and labor. It costs the grower no more to produce flowers of that grade than to grow the common run of asters which sell for but little more than enough to pay express charges.

If you are interested in getting the highest possible returns from your aster crop next summer, I shall be pleased to hear from you at an early date.

I am offering the Crego Aster in four colors: white, shell pink, rose pink and violet, all fully up to Crego grade, with immense fluffy blooms 4 to 6 inches in diameter and of splendid color.

NOTE THE PRICES:— $\frac{1}{4}$ -ounce.....50c; $\frac{1}{2}$ -ounce.....\$1.00; ounce.....\$2.00. Send cash with your order.

not intended for seeding purposes, when shipped in bond through the United States or imported for the purpose of manufacture, but such shipment shall be subject to provisions of the Act of August fifth, nineteen hundred and nine.

Sec. 2. That seed shall be considered adulterated within the meaning of this Act—

First. When seed of red clover contains more than three per centum by weight of seed of yellow trefoil, or any other seed of similar appearance to and of lower market value than seed of red clover.

Second. When seed of alfalfa contains more than three per centum by weight of seed of yellow trefoil, burr clover and sweet clover, singly or combined.

Third. When any kind or variety of the seeds, or any mixture described in section one of this Act, contains more than five per centum by weight of seed of another kind or variety of lower market value and of similar appearance: Provided, That the mixture of the seed of white and alsike clover, red and alsike clover, or alsike clover and timothy, shall not be deemed an adulteration under this section.

Sec. 3. That seed shall be considered unfit for seeding purposes within the meaning of this Act—

First. When any kind or variety of clover or alfalfa seed contains more than one seed of dodder to five grams of clover or alfalfa seed, respectively.

Second. When any kind or variety of the seeds or any mixture described in section one of this Act contains more than three per centum by weight of seeds of weeds.

Sec. 4. That any person or persons who shall knowingly violate the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall pay a fine of not exceeding five hundred dollars and not less than two hundred dollars: Provided, That any person or persons who shall knowingly sell for seeding purposes seeds or grain which were imported under the provisions of this Act for the purpose of manufacture shall be deemed guilty of a violation of this Act.

The committee in charge, E. Brown and W. P. Jones, has drafted the following rules and regulations for putting the Act into effect February 24, 1913:

REGULATION 1.—SHORT TITLE.

The act "To regulate foreign commerce by prohibiting the admission into the United States of certain adulterated grain and seeds unfit for seeding purposes," approved August 24, 1912, shall be known and referred to as "The seed-importation act of August 24, 1912."

REGULATION 2.—DEFINITIONS.¹

- (a) Clover.—The term "clover" shall include: Trifolium hybridum alsike clover. Trifolium incarnatum crimson clover. Trifolium pratense red clover. Trifolium repens white clover.
- (b) Dodder.—The term "dodder" shall include all species of Cuscuta.

- (c) Millet.—The term "millet" shall include: Chaetochloa italica (Setaria italica).... Hungarian or German millet. Panicum miliaceum.... broom-corn millet.

- (d) Rape.—The term "rape" shall include the forms of Brassica napus, winter rape, commonly

CANNAS

Selected, Large, Plump, Long Island Grown

Long Island Grown Cannas are conceded by Bulbmen to be of superior quality; the eyes are more numerous and full of life, and the roots are plump, clean and extremely healthy.

WYOMING. Giant flowering, bronze-purplish foliage. This is one of the most majestic Cannas. Blossoms, orange colored, true Orchid shaped, with large rounded petals that flap and flutter in the breeze like glistening flags; similar to King Humbert, only is inclined to grow a little taller; some of our customers prefer this Canna to King Humbert.	Dos.	100	1000
ALEMANNIA. Ground color yellow, heavily blotched and overlaid with blood orange. 5 feet.	$0.75	$4.00	$35.00
BURBANK. Very rooty and vigorous; color lemon yellow, thickly spotted in the throat with bright scarlet. 6 feet.	.50	3.00	25.00
BLACK PRINCE (Green-leaved). A tall-growing sort, with fine showy flowers of crimson scarlet, overlaid maroon. 5 feet.	.80	4.00	35.00
BRANDYWINE. Large trusses; flowers cherry red, boldly marked with crimson. Dark foliage heavily ribbed and margined chocolate. 4 feet.	.50	3.00	25.00
CHAUTAUQUA. Intense scarlet blossoms of great size, and a dark colored foliage. 8 1/2 feet.	.50	3.00	25.00
COMPTE DE BOUCHARD. Golden-yellow flowers spotted red. 4 1/2 feet.	.50	3.00	25.00
DOCTOR NANSSEN (Green-leaved). Fine heads of pure yellow flowers. 5 feet.	.60	4.00	35.00
EGANDE. Currant red; very free. Healthy bronze foliage. 4 feet.	.50	3.00	25.00
FLAMINGO. The color is intense and clear crimson; flowers are of large size and borne on immense trusses in great profusion. 8 feet.	.50	3.00	25.00
GLADIATOR (Green-leaved). A very showy bedding Canna of medium height, with large flowers of brassy yellow thinly speckled in dull red. The long center petals and lower petal are solid dark red, making a most striking contrast to the predominating yellow. 3 feet.	.60	4.00	35.00
ITALIA. Great crinkly petals of clear yellow, irregularly overlaid with varied shades of orange scarlet. 5 feet.	.50	3.00	25.00
INDIANA (Green-leaved). One of the gorgeous orchid-covered class. Soft orange, lightened by flecks of gold, penciled and slightly margined with deep rose. 6 feet.	.60	4.00	35.00
KING HUMBERT. In this grand new Italian Canna we have a combination of the highest type of flower with the finest bronze foliage. Its flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, will measure 6 inches in diameter, and which are produced in heavy trusses of gigantic size, are of brilliant orange-scarlet, with bright red markings, while the foliage is broad and massive and of a rich coppery bronze with brownish-green markings. Bold and effective. Makes a gorgeous effect when planted in mass. 5 feet.	.75	5.00	40.00
LOUISIANA. Soft, glowing scarlet, with orange throat markings. Darker than Pennsylvania. 5 feet.	.60	4.00	35.00
MME. CROZY. 8 1/2 feet. Vermilion with gold border. The sort which popularized the Canna.	.50	3.00	25.00
NEIL CAMPBELL. Tall grower, dark foliage, very free bloomer, orange-colored flowers.	.50	3.00	25.00
PRESIDENT MEYER. Handsome bronze and sepia foliage; flowers large, in wide trusses, cherry-carmine. 6 feet.	.60	4.00	35.00
PENNSYLVANIA. Lustrous, wavy petals of great size, in which the richest shades of orange and scarlet are exquisitely blended. 6 feet.	.60	4.00	35.00
R. WALLACE. A new Canna, the largest and finest pure yellow grown. Enormous and color fine. 4 feet.	.50	3.00	25.00
SOUV. DE MME. NADY. Green foliage, large round flowers with yellow coloring entirely spotted with large brick-red spots. 4 feet.	.60	4.00	35.00
WM. BOFINGER. Brightest and richest scarlet. 5 feet.	.60	4.00	35.00
FLORENCE VAUGHAN. Large yellow flowers, handsomely spotted, leaves green.	.50	3.00	25.00

Boddington's Quality Cannas

Are true to name, have two to three good eyes, are well cured, sound and dormant, and give absolute satisfaction. Our sales last year were nearly 700,000, and not an overgrown kick. The Canna crop this year, however, is very short, and we advise placing orders early to secure stock. Delivery can be made at purchaser's option. Remember, you may deduct 5% if cash accompanies the order.

REGULATION 3.—EXAMINATION.

Seeds offered for importation into the United States from any foreign country, of which samples are taken for examination by the Secretary of Agriculture, shall be admitted only after the samples have been examined and pronounced to be neither adulterated nor unfit for seeding purposes within the meaning of the seed importation act, August 24, 1912: Provided, however, That such seeds may be delivered to the consignee pending examination and decision of the Secretary of Agriculture, on the execution of a bond for the return of the seeds to customs custody.

REGULATION 4.—RECLEANING.

If it appears from the examination of samples by the Secretary of Agriculture that any seeds offered for import are adulterated or are unfit for seeding purposes within the meaning of the seed importation act, August 24, 1912, such seeds shall be admitted into the United States after having been cleaned under bond, when samples of the cleaned seeds have been examined by the Secretary of Agriculture and pronounced to be free from adulteration and not unfit for seeding purposes within the meaning of the seed importation act, August 24, 1912: Provided, That all screenings and other refuse removed in the process of cleaning shall be exported or ground or otherwise treated so as to render the seeds contained therein incapable of germination before the bond conditioned upon the cleaning is canceled.

REGULATION 5.—APPEAL.

All applications for relief from decisions arising under these regulations should be addressed to the Secretary of Agriculture, and all vouchers or accounts for remuneration for samples shall be filed with the chief of the Seed Laboratory, who shall forward the same, with his recommendation, to the Secretary of Agriculture for action.

REGULATION 6.—DATE.

These regulations shall take effect from and after February 24, 1913.

This advertisement is set plain and simple because the facts are plain and simple. We offer you no "big sacrifice," or anything like that, but simply some real good Cold Storage Giganteum at a price which will net us a fair profit. These bulbs were packed in Japan for storage purposes, and they are as good as we can get. We have them in original large cases, but we especially draw your attention to our Baby Cases of 100 bulbs each. Packed that way in Japan, mind you—not shoved in a soap box. All from the very best fields in Japan and in good condition. You can have these bulbs delivered at regular intervals—or at any time you wish. Just send us your instructions and we will do the rest. PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Tacoma, Wash.—Mrs. Alex. Brown has gone out of the greenhouse business.

Portland, Ore.—The American Association of Nurserymen and the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association will hold a joint convention here June 18 to 20.

Aberdeen, Wash.—A recent fire at the Ellis greenhouses caused a loss variously estimated at $1,000 to $2,500. The damage to the houses, $500 to $600, is said to have been covered by insurance. The loss on plants will fall on Van Slyke & Seamons, of Tacoma. The houses are owned by H. Ellis.

San Luis Obispo, Cal.—The explosion of an oil stove in one of the greenhouses at A. W. Shurragar's gardens caused a loss, recently, of about $600 in plants, besides the damage to the house. About 100 panes of glass were forced out or shattered. The stove had been in use since Christmas, on account of the unusually cold weather which played havoc with outside stock in this vicinity.

Pasadena, Cal.—The Misses Rogers have purchased the Kempton Flower Shop, at 190 West Colorado street, and will continue the business as before. It is understood, however, that a new name will soon be given to the shop. The three sisters have had considerable experience with plants of all kinds, although this is their first experience in business for themselves. F. L. Kempton, the former owner, is returning to Buffalo, where he will still be connected with the trade. He expects to be there the latter part of February.

Roseburg, Ore.—Mrs. F. D. Owen is the florist of Fern Island Fruit Farm and Greenhouses, her husband being the orchardist. Mrs. Owen's greenhouses are in excellent condition and she expects to do a fine business in bedding stock this spring. The plant trade at the holidays was larger than ever, though prices were lower than heretofore. "Ostrich plume" ferns sold splendidly at 50 cents and 75 cents each for 5-inch pots. It is impossible to handle shipped-in cut flowers except at a loss.

Clearbrook, Wash.—George Gibbs, the bulb grower, has kept a systematic weather record here for the last quarter of a century, part of the time for the United States government and part of the time in connection with his personal study of plant life, and he thinks the climate of western Washington is such as to deserve even more favorable attention than it receives. He refers especially to the wealth of atmospheric moisture and the heavy dewfall all through the growing season. Mr. Gibbs is known locally as the "Burbank of the Northwest," and what he has accomplished has extended beyond the borders of this state. He demonstrated that bulb growing may be made a profitable industry here and his experiments were chiefly responsible for the decision of the United States government to establish an experimental bulb farm at Fort Bellingham.

Oakland, Cal.—Roseo Savagni has obtained a permit to build three greenhouses on E street, near Eighty-eighth avenue.

Seattle, Wash.—The firm of Gordon & Rasmussen, 1920 Tenth avenue, north, has dissolved partnership, and H. E. Rasmussen is now conducting the business in his own name.

McMinnville, Ore.—Charles E. Herbert and wife were the original owners of the property on which Herbert & Fleishauer conduct their aster business; they are the parents of Mrs. Fleishauer, who is the guiding spirit of the business. In 1901 H. T. Fleishauer and wife came to live on the place and in 1904 bought a half interest in the property. As the business grew, large wells were dug, the Skinner system of irrigation was installed and greenhouses were added. In 1910 additional space was needed and five adjoining acres were purchased, on which a 12-foot well will now be sunk and the irrigating system installed. Harvey T. Fleishauer gives his wife and her parents the credit for founding and developing the highly specialized business in which he is engaged and which has proven successful far beyond their early anticipations.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Stock is easing up considerably, but there is still far from a normal supply. A lot of good roses have been shipped in from the north, and these, with local grown stock, have kept pace with the demand, though the high price has left little profit in it for the wholesalers. Carnations from inside are good, though in some cases showing the effect of too much heat, this having been applied to forward the crop and increase the cut. A few also show the marks of thrips. The outdoor crop is still of poor quality. Violets are again at the normal supply and are of better quality than of late. Orchids are plentiful and meet with a brisk demand. All kinds of prepared foliage have been called for and the golden brown oak leaves are extremely fine.

Pot plants are more plentiful than they were. Good cyclamens, azaleas and Easter lilies sell well. Ferns in variety and palms are in better demand than for some time, and it is difficult to obtain some of the larger sizes of the latter. All the retail stores report a good business, not only in funeral work but in decorations.

Various Notes.

J. J. Karins, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, has been calling on the trade in the city and vicinity.

At the Star Nursery, at Montebello, I noticed some newly imported daphne plants that ought to be good property. This sweet-scented and beautiful old shrub is surely worth more consideration than it gets. Mr. Uyematsu is a careful cultivator and is getting a nice stock together in the large new lath house. He has also an elegant lot of pansies and stocks; the latter sell well, in view of the scarcity of other flowers.

As fast as the stock of the Red Cherokee goes out from the frames and indoor benches at Dieterich & Turner's, they are filled with young stock of popular indoor kinds for spring shipping. Heavy cuts are being taken from Killarney, Prima Donna and Maryland. The Beauties are also doing well, but Mr. Turner is seriously considering cutting out Beauty.

A large hotbed and frame ground has been fenced around and quarters are being prepared for the help at the new trial grounds of the Germain Plant & Seed Co., on the Whittier road.

Mr. Cushman, of gladiolus fame, made good progress while in this locality, having purchased a large orange ranch at Riverside and considerable real estate at Point Loma, near San Diego. He returned east January 28, leaving his son Ralph, who will stay until September, at least. Mr. Cushman will probably locate here permanently as soon as his eastern interests can be satisfactorily disposed of.

I was glad to see the note from the Hollywood Nurseries in The Review of January 23, especially as we so seldom hear from Mr. Soethout. As to giving the "exact facts of the late freeze," that is so manifestly impossible that I wonder our friend Mr. Soethout even tried it. By "the press" I suppose he means the daily newspapers, but these ran the whole gamut from total loss to no damage at all, and are not to be depended upon. The full extent of the damage will never be known, but if it makes nurserymen more careful of what they grow and recommend their patrons to grow, and if it closes the road at least partly to real estate sharks who misrepresent this—one of the most favored spots in the United States—it will not be all loss.

George Watson has been sending in such elegant carnations of late that I took a run out to his place, in company with Morris Goldenson and some friends, and he certainly should be congratulated on the fine appearance of the plants. The cut, too, is immense in all the popular kinds. A promising looking lot of Easter lilies are being grown. They will need all the time there is to make Easter, but, with good weather, Mr. Watson will get them in.

J. Reeves, of Beverly, met with a peculiar and painful accident recently. Some years ago he broke his ribs, and, having contracted a cold, he sneezed and started the old fracture. It must have been "some sneeze," for his ribs have stood some pressure, especially when he has been declaiming against park men and methods at our Horticultural Society's meetings. All will hope for a speedy recovery for him.

The H. N. Gage Co. is sending in fine Narcissus Von Sion and other bulbous flowers from the Montebello ranch.

Morris Goldenson and his capable manager, John Gordon, believe in the square deal to the public. They have not raised the price of carnations during the recent scarcity, their contracts being filled to the letter by their growers. Such a policy is bound to have a good effect on the business at the store.

John Bubach, the energetic representative of Lion & Co., New York, has been calling on the trade in this city and in the northern part of the state, leaving here at the beginning of February for Salt Lake and Denver, after a short trip to San Diego. Mr. Bubach reports good business all along the line. He makes friends rapidly everywhere, owing to his clean-cut business methods and the excellent line he carries.

The new market run by the Japanese growers is a busy place these days and Mr. Tamati, the manager, is evidently a live wire. Many thousands of bunches of violets are disposed of every morning in short order.

The Los Angeles Flower Market is handling magnificent stock now. Roses and orchids are leaders, but immense lots of Easter lilies, both cut and in pots, are also sold. Business shows a large increase over that of last year, notwithstanding the shortage of outdoor stock, thus indicating the stable quality of the trade.

Howard & Smith report exceedingly heavy orders on all classes of goods, especially nursery stock, and their big Packard trucks are running full speed late and early.

Wright's Flower Shop is showing particularly good azaleas, small, but bright and well flowered.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

This section of California is gradually getting back to pleasant weather conditions again, and if the improvement continues we may expect plenty of flowers in a few days. Not that stock is particularly scarce even now, but it certainly has been scarce for the last three weeks. Narcissi and various kinds of daffodils are being brought into town in large lots and, while not yet at their best, they give everything a springtime aspect that seems to be gratifying to the flower-buying public.

For the last three or four weeks carnations and roses have been more expensive than they were at Christmas. This was due to the cold snap in January. Violets showed the effects of it also, and are not yet at their best. Valley, Romans and freesias are probably the most popular flowers where white stock is wanted, and they move rapidly. Quite a lot of early tulips are shown, but they do not sell as well as the daffodils. Orchids, cape jasmine and a few other items are in about the same condition as they have been for some time. With the approach of Lent there have been plenty of doings in the society whirl here, and these, with a good sprinkling of funeral orders, have kept everyone busy.

The charge of grand larceny brought against G. Vandenneele by John Becanne, owner of the Central Nurseries, of Alameda, has been dismissed for lack of evidence. Mr. Becanne leased the grounds and buildings, with the appurtenances, to Mr. Vandenneele, and later alleged that a portion of them had been misappropriated.

The Market.

With continued dull weather, business remains quiet and there is not much doing in any of the stores, while the effects of the weather also are seen in the quality of the stock offered. Carnations are showing softness to an unusual extent. There are more being cut than there is any demand for and prices are on the down grade. Roses are in better shape, but the orders for them are not so extensive as usual. The demand for yellow narcissi is good and the supply rather short. Tulips and other bulbous flowers are selling well. Pot plants are plentiful, and there is some sale for cyclamens and primulas, while cinerarias are selling at fair prices. We are all looking for brighter weather and better business.

Various Notes.

A deputation of Tacoma florists visited us January 28. Capt. John Holze organized a team and four games were bowled on the Bismarck alleys. The scores were too numerous to mention, and both sides claimed the victory.

Ralph Richardson made a business trip to Vancouver, B. C., last week. He reports thriving times in that city in the flower trade and prices higher than at home.

The Market.

Business remains quiet. The pre-Lenten season seems to have taken effect early in society. Stock still is scarce. Roses are improving in quality, Brides and Maids especially. American Beauties prove poor bloomers where there is a deficiency of sunshine. Carnations, while improving, are still a little short. Pink Delight and Rosette have an increasing demand. An effort will be made next season to grow more of these varieties. Cyclamens, azaleas, tulips and daffodils find ready sale.

COMMERCIAL ORRIS ROOT.

Can sweet orris, or the fragrant orris root of commerce, be successfully cultivated in Missouri? Kindly answer in The Review, giving a hint or two with reference to the culture. I have been watching The Review's advertising columns for some time, in the hope of seeing an announcement of plants of this sort, but so far have failed to see any. I have frequently been on the point of sending you questions of one kind or another, but have usually found my question answered in the next issue of The Review and so have been saved the trouble of inquiring.
T. M. M.

The orris root of commerce is the dried root of the Iris Florentina. This species of iris is sometimes grown for its flowers, like the German, Spanish or Japanese iris, and has some merit as a flowering plant in Missouri.

The supply of commercial orris root comes mainly from the mountain sides of Italy, where it grows on rocky, untillable hillsides almost to perfection, without much expense in the way of cultivation. There it is largely gathered and dried by cheap labor, mostly children, and shipped to supply the markets of the world.

I know of no one in Missouri who is growing it for the dried orris roots, though I have seen it in many gardens as a flowering plant. I doubt much whether it could be grown cheaply enough in this state to compete with the extremely cheap product grown on those waste hillsides of Italy. At any rate, the industry has not, so far as I am aware, been sufficiently developed in this state or anywhere in the United States for us to have data upon which to base a positive statement as to whether it would pay a Missouri grower or not. As the roots require considerable attention in the way of washing, trimming, scraping and hand labor in preparing and drying them for market, I doubt whether we could compete with the cheaper Italian labor which does the bulk of the work. And, again, I doubt whether we have any location in Missouri where the iris would hold its own in competition with native species of plants, so as to enable us to produce it in the field without greater expense than is put on the great areas of it where it thrives well without attention in Italy.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas R. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

THE death of Daniel Twoomey, of Geneva, N. Y., is reported in this week's obituary column.

THE National Association of Retail Nurserymen was in session at Rochester, N. Y., February 5.

C. M. GRIFFIN, of Jacksonville, Fla., it is said will become president of the Orchards Co., a corporation to be organized with $50,000 capital to plant fig orchards at Charleston, S. C.

L. G. KELLOGG, proprietor of the Prairie City Nursery, at Ripon, Wis., acted as judge of the exhibits at the annual convention of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society, held recently at Madison.

S. R. MOORE, well-known as one of the proprietors of Glen Moore Nursery, Zanesville, O., was one of the prime movers in the recent fourth annual Ohio state apple show, held at Zanesville, and to his work much of the success of the exhibition is attributed.

THOMAS S. DUANE, of the Martinez Nursery, Martinez, Cal., whose grounds are in what is known as the Franklin canyon, has secured a lease on some vacant property on Escobar street, between Las Juntas and Ward streets, in Martinez, and will establish his headquarters there.

FRANK W. POWER, Orenco, Ore., has been appointed chairman of the exhibits committee for the joint conventions of the American Association of Nurserymen and the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association to be held in Portland in June. He will be glad to hear from anyone who would like to exhibit.

Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa.

EDWIN H. RIEHL, nurseryman and fruit grower at Alton, Ill., has been re-elected president of the Alton Horticultural Society. The other officers chosen were: First vice-president and librarian, William Jackson; secretary, Ella Davis; treasurer, E. Hollard.

SAMUEL HINKLE has been appointed receiver of the Havelock Nurseries, at Havelock, Neb. He will settle the affairs of the company and it is expected that business will then be resumed. As reported in The Review some months ago, there was a disagreement between the two proprietors, Adair & Swann, and Mr. Adair began suit for a dissolution of the partnership.

New Single Rose IRISH FIRE FLAME

A new departure in Roses for winter forcing. Irish Fire Flame is a single rose with only five petals, and is the most striking and the best single rose Messrs. Alex. Dickson & Sons have ever raised. It flowers profusely during the winter months, producing both single flowers and sprays of from three to five buds. The bud is an intense fiery crimson scarlet at the tip, shading at the base of petals to orange salmon; the open flower is a beautiful bright salmon. It is of strong, vigorous growth, with dark green foliage, reverse of leaf deep bronze.

We have tested this rose for two years and can confidently recommend it as a sterling novelty in roses. It has been awarded a Gold Medal by the National Rose Society of Great Britain and has taken several prizes for table decoration.

such service as will cover the whole ground—and some few have none at all. Take, as an illustration, what this law has done for New Jersey. New Jersey had an inspection service which was not adequate—that is, not all imported stock could be inspected. As a result of our notifications they discovered a nest of gypsy moth eggs on imported stock in New Jersey, a sufficient mass of eggs to have started a good healthy colony. The local officers presented this state of affairs to the State Department of Agriculture, and immediately that department was able to find funds to provide for ample inspection. Three additional inspectors were appointed, and the requirement was made that nursery stock entering New Jersey from abroad should not be opened until an inspector was on the ground to examine it. New Jersey now has probably one of the best systems of any state, indirectly resulting from the passage of this federal law and the discovery right at home of the danger they were in. The same influence is operating in other states. Kentucky, for example, which has been one of the states with least provision for inspection of nursery stock, has taken steps to remedy this condition, and other states are considering similar action."

CULTURE OF CELOSIAS.

Will you kindly furnish me with details concerning the culture of Celosia Pride of Castle Gould, which will enable one to have this plant at its best during the chrysanthemum exhibition period?
W. N.

Sow the seed about the middle of April, in a warm greenhouse. Pot off singly when of sufficient size, using a light soil containing some fine, well decayed cow manure. Shift to larger pots as required. In June, if they are plunged in coal ashes outdoors, they will not dry out so much and will do better than in a greenhouse, which would often be hot. Good plants can be flowered in 7-inch and 8-inch pots. I prefer the larger size. For extra sized plants, 10-inch can be used. At the last potting use some fine bone in the soil, in addition to one-fourth cow manure, and feed liberally when they are well rooted. Remove the plants into a light, sunny greenhouse early in September and they will be in good shape for the early part of November. Plants may also be grown outdoors and, if carefully lifted, will do well. They are not equal, however, to plants grown along in pots.

Robert Miller, president of the Miller Floral Co., Farmington, Utah, who spent several days here last week on his way home from a trip through the east, said January 22 that of all the novelties seen on his travels he was specially pleased with Carnation The Herald. He made a trip to Joliet to see it growing and said it looked to him like a good money-making proposition for his shipping trade in cut flowers. He is shipping over a wide radius in the intermountain territory, where there is a good market for red carnations, and he left a good-sized order for cuttings of The Herald for delivery March 1.

NEW CARNATIONS

Wm. Eccles The First Prize winner at Detroit last year in the Red or Scarlet class, and the Silver Medal winner of the New York Horticultural Society for the best undisseminated seedling. The Scarlet everyone was waiting for. Has a strong, rigid stem, a perfectly formed $3\frac{1}{2}$ -inch flower, non-bursting calyx, highly perfumed, a grand keeper and as free as any Scarlet to date.

Lady Northcliffe (Engelmann). A beautiful Salmon-pink in color, much resembling Pink Delight. Has a well built up flower and just enough in it not to burst the calyx. While the flower is not the largest (about 3 inches), it is fully as free as May Day and will surely make a grand bread-and-butter sort.

British Triumph (Engelmann). One of the finest things ever raised in England. The color is a striking shade of Crimson. The flower is $3\frac{1}{2}$ -inch in size and well built up. It has the sweetest perfume of any Carnation ever raised, and its keeping qualities are the best. Has a fine stem, good constitution and is free.

PRICES: $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

Also Mrs. C. W. Ward and Enchantress. Fine rooted cuttings, ready to ship.

ENCHANTRESS SUPREME

THE best Sport of Enchantress up to date, possessing all the vigor and freedom that distinguish its parent. Color a light salmon pink—a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching. A good all-round Carnation that retains its color at all seasons. Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter. Has shown no inclination to be a burster. The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years' duration convinces us of its great value.

COMMODORE

THE BEST RED CARNATION

So pronounced by the leading carnation growers. A fine grower, does not split; a brilliant red, much deeper in color than Beacon and a variety destined to become the leader in its color. Its keeping qualities are as good as Pink Delight, which is considered the best keeper among Carnations. All growers should try Commodore.

THE E. G. HILL CO. Richmond, Indiana

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

The weather here has been exceedingly mild for the last week. Trade is good and there is just about enough stock to go around. Funeral orders have helped to keep the retailers busy. Roses are arriving in greater quantities, after being extremely scarce for about a month. The different varieties of Killarney are much in evidence. Maryland and Taft are seldom seen. Lady Hillingdon is the best yellow. Carnations are also in full crop and choice blooms are coming in daily. Rosette takes the eye, the color being fine. White Wonder is the best white. Violets are to be had in almost any quantity. Sweet peas are scarce. Asparagus is in good demand.

Various Notes.

John Coombs will build another carnation house, the same as the one he erected last year.

A. N. Pierson is confined to his home by sickness.

G. McClunie has opened an agency in the Adams drug store, at 1041 Main street, and expects to install a refrigerator there shortly.

Some excellent violets are coming in from J. Haworth's, at Farmington, Conn. W. S. C.

Esbon, Kan.—T. W. Lewis has built up a prosperous trade in the several years he has been in business here. He buys the greater part of the stock needed, as he has only 1,200 feet of glass.

GERANIUMS

We have a splendid lot of 2- and 3-in. stock, ready for immediate shipment, and are booking orders for future shipment to such an extent that we would suggest to prospective customers for after Easter orders, that they be placed at an early date, so as to insure delivery. PREPARE FOR MEMORIAL DAY is the peer of all Snapdragons. It is not the coarse and long-headed kind, but a soft, delicate pink that comes most perfect in full sunshine, both indoors and out. It is unexcelled for the field or border. Use seeds for bedding stock and plants for Memorial. I have a block of plants that will be ready about Feb. 20, when they must go, as we need the space March 1.

AND BEDDING-OUT TIME

MY

Original Silver Pink

Plants will be stocky and branched, same as shown here, and the price is $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000, by express. Order today, as my stock is limited to 8,000 plants.

Price of pure seed. $1.00 per pkt. of over 500 seeds; 3 pkts., $2.50, delivered anywhere in the world. Cash must accompany all orders.

Use seedlings for a full crop at Memorial day. Plants from cuttings are good, but will have an extended flowering season. When this is desired the same can be had of seedlings, regulated by pinching, but you cannot have every shoot ready for market at practically the same time except by the use of seedlings, where every shoot is a "live wire," of the same age. The plants we offer have been pinched and handled for a MEMORIAL CROP, when you will want BLOSSOMS, and all you can get. Plants will have three to five branches. Make room for a lot and order at once. If you need proof, read the following letters:

Now write your order to the original SILVER PINK man—

G. S. RAMSBURG, - Somersworth, N. H.

Biddeford, Me., Jan. 15, 1913.

Mr. G. S. Ramsburg.

Dear Sir:—Your bed of Silver Pink Snapdragon seedlings at Memorial last year were a pleasing sight, being in full, even crop.

Very respectfully,
Charles S. Strout.

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 12, 1912.

G. S. Ramsburg, Esq., Somersworth, N. H.
My Dear Mr. Ramsburg:—I have been thinking over the matter of your Silver Pink Snapdragon for a good while, and have been waiting for them to come into bloom nicely before I would form a definite opinion of them. I personally think they are the finest I ever saw, both for size and color, and we are preparing for a big season with them the coming year.

Yours truly, G. R. Noble.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

February came in with a breath of winter such as we have not had before this season. There is no snow, but everyone is pleased to see the cold weather. If the present cold continues for a week or two, it will be worth a great deal to our florists. The prolonged heat was bringing the Easter flowers along too rapidly.

Cut flowers are rather scarce, especially good roses. There are a few good Killarneys of both colors, but American Beauties are scarce and of indifferent quality. However, there is good promise of a full cut for Easter. Carnations are not so plentiful as they were a few weeks ago, but are still in good supply. Callas are overabundant, as it is impossible to use them all in design work, and this is about all they are used for here. Valley is good and in fair supply. There is always a demand here for good valley. Violets are still plentiful, but the dreaded glut has not developed, thanks to the cold weather. Our florists forced a good supply of deutzias this year, but there seems to be no demand for them and they will probably not figure much in the next year's growing in this city.

Various Notes.

Some good white lilacs were seen at L. H. Geny's place last week. A few of these always sell well here. They reported plenty of funeral work last week.

Hillcrest School Farm made deliveries of gladioli and tuberose last week and will also ship a few hundred dahlias. The managers are planning to grow a larger acreage this year than ever before. They will also grow an acre or two of cannas this season.

Westport, N. H.—A recent wind storm broke a large amount of glass at the Hyponoco Greenhouses.

There is but one SNAPDRAGON worth while—and that is

Buxton's Silver Pink

IT PRODUCES large spikes, 30 inches long. Requires no wires or stakes to hold it erect. Flowers freely and brings the top-notch price in the open market. Whether you are a wholesaler or retailer, you cannot go wrong by planting a bench of this excellent variety. See testimonials in earlier issues of The Review from leading growers and retailers that prove the merits of this sterling variety.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Our first taste of real winter is with us. The thermometers registered 2 degrees above zero February 1, which was by far the coldest weather we have had since a year ago. Business has taken a slight brace and, with cold weather shortening up the supply of stock, we should sail into Lent without noticing the change. Roses are the one scarce article. Choice stock is plentiful, but the short and medium grades are below the average in quantity. Bulb stock of all kinds is plentiful and of fine quality. Double tulips and daffodils are coming in. Freesia is of extra good quality. Greens, such as plumosus and maidenhair fern, are scarce. Lilies are coming in finely now and a steady cut is promised from now until Easter.

Various Notes.

Rambler roses for Easter promise well, and all growers say they will have them in plenty of time. C. Merkel & Son, of Mentor; the J. M. Gasser Co., of Rocky River; the James Eadie Co. and A. Graham & Son are all large growers of these Easter specialties.

Hart Bros., on Detroit street, have several thousand hydrangeas in grand shape for Easter flowering.

Carl W. Gerdum, a valley and orchid grower, has bought the old range of the Ohio Cut Flower Co., west of town, consisting of 75,000 feet of glass. He will grow carnations, mums and a general line of cut stock, in addition to his other specialties.

Don't overlook novelty night, Monday evening, February 10, at the rooms of the Florists' Club.

As a start in the club bowling tournament, the Tulips, with George Smith as captain, rolled the Freesias, with Charles Russell as captain, on Monday, February 3. The Daffodils vs. the Hyacinths is the bill for February 24.

F. A. F.

Natick, Mass.—A. W. Blackmore has finished building a house, 30x150, for carnations. Mr. Blackmore is just starting in the business commercially. He will make carnations a specialty.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubes, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2 1/2-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Trade last week seemed to show some improvement over that of the week previous. Perhaps this was more noticeable on account of the scarcity of some varieties of stock. Roses seemed to be the greatest problem, being hard to get all through the week, and of course there was an unceasing demand for them. On the other hand, carnations were quite plentiful and assisted greatly in the absence of roses. Lilies are commencing to put in an appearance again and they sell readily. Bulbous stock in every seasonable variety is pouring into the market, but there is an exceptionally good demand for this class of stock. Daffodils, tulips and Dutch hyacinths, in pots, are easily disposed of. The weather, in general, has been cloudy; this, of course, has been unfavorable to the rose growers.

Trade throughout the month of January was quite encouraging.

Various Notes.

McKinley day helped considerably to increase last week's receipts, though the observance of the day seems to be losing its popularity. In order to assist in keeping up the sentiments of the day, W. G. Matthews, following his usual custom, beautifully decorated the McKinley monument, at Cooper park, with southern smilax and a 6-foot wreath of bronze magnolia and carnations.

Miss Elberta Engle visited friends in Xenia, O., last week.

J. W. Rodgers spent last Sunday with his family at Monroe, O.

M. D. Schmitt has some fine specimen begonia plants in full bloom. He reports sales on them as fine.

Visitors of last week were: S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, Pa.; D. Rusconi and his eldest son, of Cincinnati, O.; I. Rosnosky, representing the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, and Mr. Kennedy, of J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., Cincinnati. R. A. L.

Sheridan, Wyo.—The L. M. Best Floral Co. has secured the contract to furnish the needed plants for Pioneer park.

Kansas City, Mo.—Claude F. Carson, a chauffeur for the Alpha Floral Co., narrowly escaped death from asphyxiation by gasoline fumes recently, while doing repair work under a motor truck. He was restored to consciousness and taken to a hospital, where his condition was reported as critical.

New American Beauty GERANIUM

We take great pleasure in introducing to our many customers for 1913 our new American Beauty Geranium. For the first time, after working on it for nearly three years, we are offering it for sale.

Our Claim for American Beauty Geranium is that it surpasses all other Geraniums in its real American Beauty Color. The individual blooms measure 2 3/4 inches across. It is semi-double, medium dwarf, of stately shape. It has come to stay as a money maker. Prices to the trade: 2 1/2-in. pots, 50c each $5.00 per doz.; 3-in. pots, $1.00 each, $10.00 per doz., cash. Write for circulars in natural colors and prices on large lots.

THE NEW PINK CARNATION.

NORTHPORT.

Color, cerise pink. This variety has been thoroughly tried out for the past five years and we offer it today with every confidence that it will ultimately take first place as the premier dark pink. The color is similar to Mrs. C. W. Ward without the objectionable streakiness and tendency to burst the calyx of the latter variety during the dark weather. The growth is wonderfully free and continuous and Northport will produce more flowers per plant than any other variety of its type. The calyx is practically non-bursting. Rooted cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

We have for immediate delivery A1 rooted cuttings of Enchantress, White Enchantress and Beacon at $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000.

PERENNIALS FROM SEED.

Will you please tell us through The Review whether or not Rudbeckia Golden Glow or Rudbeckia Golden Ray makes seed? Also, whether lycium or matrimony vine makes seed? We never see any of the above seed offered for sale in any of the catalogues.

We have a white perennial sweet alyssum that blooms from the last part of April until frost. It is perfectly hardy and grows on the desert here in New Mexico, where but few weeds and grass can live. It grows from twelve to eighteen inches high. We have zero weather every winter. We never see anything in the catalogues of such a plant. We do not see why there is not a good future for it.

A. G.

Lycium, or matrimony vine, carries fruits which contain seeds. The plant, however, is so easily propagated from layers, suckers or cuttings that seed is hardly ever offered. The rudbeckias named, in common with some other double flowers, do not make seed so freely as single flowers do. Even if they did, it is doubtful if it would be worth offering, as these particular sorts are such rank growers that it is more of a question of how to keep them within bounds rather than increasing their numbers.

The hardy sweet alyssum you speak of I do not know and it should certainly be a useful commercial plant, flourishing as it does under such adverse conditions and flowering over so long a period. Send a specimen to your State Experiment Station and ascertain its name. As it probably seeds freely, it should be easily possible to disseminate it.

Vegetable Forcing.

LETTUCE IN HOTBEDS.

Please tell me at how early a date I can start lettuce in hotbeds, as I shall not be able to get my houses up this winter. The climate is that of north-eastern Ohio. G. C. H.

You can make your hotbeds for lettuce by the first part of February, although you may have to cover the glass with straw and manure or mats, as there might be some zero weather after the lettuce gets started, which might freeze it hard enough to injure it. If you use the double-glazed sashes you will not have to cover them. Lettuce plants may be set in the field by the middle of March in most seasons, providing they are grown cold, so as to be able to stand the freezing. Soft, tender plants from the greenhouse or hotbeds would not stand it.

The double-glazed sashes are fine for winter use. If they are used, I really think it would be safe to start hotbeds now. The chief danger is that the heat of the hotbed might be all spent before mild spring weather comes. This will depend on how good the hotbed is. H. G.

MEALY BUG IN GRAPERY.

I would like to ask your advice regarding a hothouse grapyery. The three varieties I have are the Black Hamburg, Gross Colman and the Muscats. The grape vines have been in the greenhouse for the last twenty-eight years and I have had charge of them for the last five years. I prune them the first week in January and start them with heat about the middle of February. The Hamburgs are ripe the latter part of June. But I can not get rid of the mealy bug. After pruning I wash the vines thoroughly with a brush, using an insecticide, and they stay clean until the fruit sets. Then I am troubled with the insect until the fruit is ripe. Would it do to use kerosene in any form, or fumigate the house before starting the grapyery? F. A. D.

Your grape vines should be dormant now, and if the fruit is all cut, give the house a fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas. This will kill all bugs and many eggs. If, perchance, there are any eggs left which may hatch later, give another fumigation a few days after the house has been started, and just before the vines break. Use earthenware jars when fumigating. Secure ninety-eight per cent cyanide of potassium. Find the cubic area of your house by multiplying the length by the breadth and then by the average height. For each 1,000 cubic feet use one ounce of sulphuric acid, two ounces of water and one-half ounce of cyanide. Place the water in the jars first, then add the acid and later drop in the cyanide wrapped thickly in paper. Be sure all ventilators are closed and that no cats or other pets are locked up. Lock the doors and allow no one to enter till next morning. Remember to get out of the house quickly after dropping in the cyanide, as it generates a deadly gas instantly. Do the work yourself; don't trust it to any assistant.

house just before the vines start to color, select a cool night and give them a light dose of gas. I found that for a house 20x50, four ounces of sulphuric acid, eight ounces of water and two ounces of cyanide killed all bugs. It somewhat scorched some of the tender leaves at the ends of the shoots, but this is a trifling loss when compared with the absolute cleanliness of the branches from bugs. The warmer the night, the greater the danger of scorching foliage. Therefore, always choose a cool night and give an all-night exposure.

Do not use kerosene on your canes, or you will regret it. I have seen whole houses almost entirely ruined by painting the canes with it. C. W.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each boiler advertised in The Review is a good boiler, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

BOILER ACROSS ALLEY.

Enclosed you will find a sketch of our present houses and one proposed house, located across a 16-foot alley. Our present houses are each 18x75 and are heated by a fifteen horse-power marine boiler. The heating system works finely. The flows rise six feet from the boiler and then branch off for the 2½-inch flows. If we place a boiler in a pit six feet deep, can we bring the pipe across the alley and connect it to the present system? If so, we expect to move the present boiler into the new pit and use another boiler to run both plants. Kindly tell us how it can be done with best results. The flow pipe must be at least under the surface of the alley, to allow driving over. How many 2-inch pipes will be needed for the new house, to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in this Ohio climate? There are ground benches. How many 2½-inch flows will be needed? C. B.

The sketch shows three houses, each 18x75 feet. Each house has two 2½-inch flow pipes, with nine 2-inch returns in two of the houses, which are heated to 50 degrees for carnations, and eleven returns in the rose house, which is kept at 60 degrees. There should be no trouble about heating the houses with the boiler across the alley.

The new house is 21x145 feet and is to be heated to 50 degrees. This house has three feet of glass in the north wall and four feet in the south wall. To heat this house will require about 1,200 square feet of radiation. This will be provided if three 2½-inch flows and nine 2-inch returns are used. Carry one flow under the ridge and the others on the plates. Place a coil of three returns on each wall and distribute the other return pipes in the walks.

THE FUEL MARKET.

According to one of the authorities in the coal trade, at the close of January scarcely a trace remained of the anthracite shortage which was causing such consternation in trade circles back in the fall and early winter. The change which has taken place in the status of the hard coal industry in recent weeks is no less than amazing, feverish anxiety to obtain tonnage at almost any price having given way to indifference and, in many cases, to inability to take in any more coal, owing to the filled-up condition of storage places. The transformation has been wrought solely by falling off in consumption, production since early fall having remained practically on a par with the season of 1911-1912.

of the past, but it is scarcely the factor that it was a few weeks back. Cars are plentiful on some lines, and while on others the supply is below normal, the eastern roads as a whole are giving improved service. The car situation will naturally become easier as spring approaches, but mine labor is likely to be scarce as long as the country remains prosperous and men can find employment at good wages in other lines.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business last week was of the usual run. There have been quite a number of society events, which called for a good supply of decorating material. Some stores complained of the transient business, saying that it was not up to the standard. Funeral orders came in as usual. Bulbous stock is becoming more plentiful and is welcomed, especially the yellow. Carnations are improving steadily in color and size, and the demand seems to be increasing. Pink roses are scarce, while the red and white are coming in faster.

Various Notes.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. reports quite a nice run on funeral work for the last week. This concern is cutting some excellent spring and bulbous flowers.

Florists across the state line report a good week end business, especially in funeral work.

Samuel Murray has a fine display of orchids at his greenhouses. It would pay anyone to visit his place.

The W. H. Sawvel Floral Co. is sending in some fine carnations.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports business for the week end as good, including a quantity of funeral work.

W. J. Barnes was busy last week with table decorations. He reports business to be as good as could be expected for this time of year.

Henry Kusik & Co. say that carnations are moving better, but still complain of not having enough roses to meet the demand.

Roy Wilcox and wife, of Council Bluffs, were in the city last week on their way to Excelsior Springs.

BEAUMONT, TEX.

In a recent number of The Review we noticed that Wolfe, of Waco, is written up as being pretty close to the center of Texas. Now, although we feel a loyal pride in our fellow Texan's success, we see no reason why the southeast corner of that same big state should longer defer its bow to the floral world in print. The Beaumont Floral Co. is just 5 years old today, and we are preparing to move from the unpretentious little adobe and stucco shop that has sheltered us during our infant years, into a perfectly equipped office in a modern hotel now under construction. We have recently bought the acre of improved town property which we formerly leased for our greenhouses, have 7,500 feet of glass, grew and disposed of 20,000 choice mums last year, have a fair output of carnations and all the bulbous and small stock we use. Our greenhouses nestle close to the famous Spindle-Top Hill, whose gushers still spout fortunes as well as oil; to the low-lying rice fields growing into wealth for their promoters; to the wonderful timber belt that keeps the sawmills of Texas and southern Louisiana buzzing to the tune of millions a year. And, although our part in this great activity may be small, not the least of it to us is that the output of our little industry adds a keener note to joy and softens sorrow in the midst of it all. Miss Browne and myself, who are sole owners, engaged in the business with no previous experience and a capital that still makes us blush to remember. And, although speaking from a corner and not the hub, we wouldn't sell today for as many dollars as there are inhabitants in Beaumont, and they number 25,000. I cannot close without acknowledging the inconceivable value of The Review and the immense help it has been and still is to us. Mrs. Elizabeth Weissinger.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—The Haentze Co. has a souvenir post card showing its patch of White Lady gladioli. In the field beside the greenhouse at the time the picture was made there were 75,000 bulbs and bulblets.

Detroit, Mich.—Henry Vanhousenbrouck, at one time foreman at Charles Abraham's nursery, in San Francisco, Cal., and later with the Alameda Floral Co., in Alameda, Cal., has purchased some ground here, with the intention of starting in business on his own account. He has just returned from a trip to Belgium.

GLENWOOD, MICH.

According to the Cass County Weekly, "E. H. Hitchcock, the Glenwood dealer in decorative material, has stored at his warehouse in Crawford county, this state, and also upon the reservation of the Menominee Indians in Wisconsin, over $12,000 worth of supplies, all of which have been sold and are being shipped as occasion demands. Much of this material consists of ferns, gathered in the swamps of the northern country, although a considerable amount has been gathered around Glenwood. This is sorted and packed by Mr. Hitchcock's agents and sold in Chicago mostly, although other cities handle it.

"Mr. Hitchcock started his business at Glenwood, and would have confined all its shipping to that point, but was unable to get favorable express rates and had to try some other means of shipping, which was to sort and send out from the places where the supply was gathered, thus giving employment to people away from here largely, instead of at home. He has been extremely successful in his operations, and when he leased the privilege on the Menominee reservation was able to promptly give the $2,000 bond the government required that he would confine his efforts there to this business."

WATERBURY, CONN.

Walter, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Rasmussen, on the Bradleyville road, died January 27, the result of falling into a pan of scalding water on the morning of the preceding day. After the children had been dressed and were all supposed to be at play in the greenhouses conducted by Mr. Rasmussen, Mrs. Rasmussen prepared to wash the kitchen floor. She had set the pan of water down, leaving it for a few moments in the course of her preparations, when suddenly she heard crying and returned to the kitchen to find one of the older children with the baby in her arms, which she had rescued from the hot water. The child had toddled into the house and, falling backward, fell into the scalding water. His back and legs were entirely scalded, and though medical attendance was quickly called and everything done that could be, he succumbed to his injuries. He was an unusually bright little fellow and the deepest sympathy is felt for his bereaved parents.

Lynchburg, Va.—R. B. Carruthers has started business as a florist, with headquarters at 52 Law building.

I have used the Imperial Plant Food, both in Powder and Biscuit form, and have always found it safe and reliable, as well as very marked in its effects on all classes of plants on which it has been used. For the commercial florist or private gardener who needs a really high-grade and quick-acting fertilizer, there is nothing superior to the Imperial Plant Food. Many skilled growers have been using it for years, and I have yet to meet one who does not commend it.

Wizard Brand Manure is especially useful to the florist in winter, when the crude, rough manure supply is wet, frozen and hard to get.

Sheep or Cattle Manure PULVERIZED OR SHREDDED

A kind for every use and in most convenient, effective form. Saves labor, is ready for instant use when most needed and can be depended upon.

One hundred pounds in a bag equals a whole wagon load of stable manure.

Don't fail to specify WIZARD BRAND when you order and you'll get the best. Your supply house can furnish it if you insist, or we ship direct promptly.

Foley Iron Frame House erected for Joseph Thomas,
Greensburg, Pa.

This house is the latest addition to Mr. Thomas' range, being one of our Iron Frame houses, 34 ft. 6 in. by 300 ft. The testimonial given by Mr. Thomas, as shown below, will give you some idea of how superior is our construction as compared to the houses he had been building of an inferior type.

"The frame is certainly the easiest and most simple to erect of any houses we have built. The many visiting florists who have been through the house join us in pronouncing it the most modern and up-to-date house they have seen."

Joseph Thomas.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The cold weather the latter part of last week caused trade to show a little dropping off, but on the whole it is in a pretty healthy condition. However, Lent now is here and there is likely to be a slight slump. During the week cattleyas were abundant, but the sales were slow, there being no special event to create a demand for them. Carnations are coming in poorly, due in many cases to the long spell of dark weather; yet good stock moves. Roses, violets and daffodils have been moving first-rate all the week.

Various Notes.

George B. Hart has been appointed to the committee on agriculture and horticulture of the Chamber of Commerce.

George Boucher is running a new automobile.

Ambrose Secker is with J. B. Keller Sons in their retail store.

W. H. Dildine has been appointed to the committee on postal facilities of the Chamber of Commerce.

H. J. Head has been taken to the hospital for an operation.

Primula obconica as a cut flower is, to all appearances, being displaced by Primula malacoides.

Visitors: R. H. McKerr and A. C. C. Appon, of Canandaigua, N. Y.; James P. Boyle, of Lyons, N. Y., and Charles White, of Medina, N. Y. S. A.

Elyria, O.—Harry Copas, of the Copas Floral Co., was taken suddenly and violently ill recently, while sitting in the firm's delivery wagon, and was taken to Memorial hospital. At last report he was believed to be recovering. His illness was supposed to be due to overwork and lack of sleep.

Muskogee, Okla.—Miss Myrtle Ray, a clerk at the store of the Muskogee Carnation Co., is an accomplished singer with a remarkably fine voice and was recently offered an engagement with "The Siren," the Frohman musical comedy. Though the offer was an attractive one, she was uncertain whether to accept it.

FACTS ABOUT OUR CEDAR.

Our cedar is all air-dried.

Air-dried cedar weighs less than air-dried cypress.

Cedar does not absorb moisture like cypress; therefore when exposed it does not shrink, expand and warp as cypress. We consider it the better lumber for sash, hotbed sash, doors and gutters.

Cedar is not surpassed in durability by cypress or any other lumber available for greenhouse construction.

The best grade of cedar is not cheaper than the best grade of cypress. We are using the best grades of both.

We can support our above statements by the testimonials of many growers who have been using both and know by actual experience.

CURVED IRON EAVE Style "S"

This eave is intended for use on detached houses with either fixed glass or side sash.

It is practically all exposed to the inside heat of the greenhouse and so is ice clearing.

CURVED IRON EAVE Style "L"

This eave although lighter than style "S" is amply strong for all eave purposes.

It obstructs little light and is ice clearing in the most severe weather.
It is intended for use with fixed glass only.

This Supply Book Covers Everything You Need for Building a House

IT is really half a dozen catalogues boiled down and bound up in one. In addition to the help the index gives you, there are over 500 illustrations to assist you in finding quickly what you want.

In the construction section you can at a glance find just the information you want, and see by the illustrations exactly how every important detail of our houses is handled.

When it comes to heating, you will find not only boilers and every conceivable kind of fitting, but a goodly lot of valuable tables and information that will be of great value to you.

It's bound up loose-leaf fashion, so that whenever we get out anything new we can print up a page and with a snap of the fingers you can insert it. In this way, your Hitchings Supply Book will always be up-to-date.

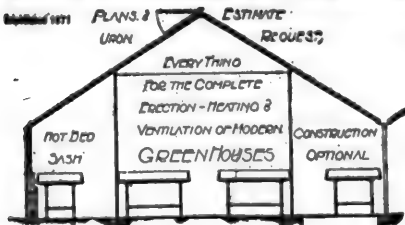

Send for as many copies as you want. We will gladly mail them.

FACTS

Questions and Answers No. 2

Q. What proof have you that Cypress is more durable for greenhouse work?

A. There are a number of proofs. In the first place, Cypress grows in a damp, humid atmosphere, under conditions very similar to those of a greenhouse. The trees are very slow in growing, requiring about 200 years' growth before tree is large enough to cut timber. The lumber is of a fine grain and the U. S. Government in its report says, "The wood is slightly resinous and it is very durable in contact with soil." Some of the logs dug from alluvial deposits in the swamps along the Gulf of Mexico and sawed into lumber are estimated to be 30,000 years old. The physical properties of the wood alone shows its great strength and durability, but there are thousands of actual cases where it has been used and found to be in truth "the wood eternal."

At Greenwich, Conn., Cypress shingles laid in 1640 are still in use today and in good condition. Another in Brooklyn, N. Y., still in use after 228 years. Another at Clifton, Staten Island, 200 years, and so on it goes. In foreign countries, some Cypress exterior woodwork has been in use over 1200 years. The New Orleans Cypress water mains were in good condition after 100 years of use. Headboards on graves have been so well preserved after 140 years that letters were still legible.

Now to come closer home. Cypress sash made by this Company in 1868, 45 years ago, are still in use on a greenhouse in Des Plaines, Ill. Cypress sash bars furnished to Jacob Fries, Bethlehem, Pa., have been in use over 30 years, and he is still our customer. Cypress gutters furnished Bassett & Washburn, Hinsdale, Ill., 22 years ago are being used again in their new range of 12 houses, and you may be sure the boards are as sound as the day they were put up. It is really remarkable that there should be any doubt on this very important question of the best lumber for greenhouse woodwork.

Q. Is Cypress more expensive than other kinds of greenhouse woodwork?

A. Yes. It costs more for the lumber. The waste cutting out the sap must be paid for by you. It is a difficult lumber to handle, and must be machined slowly to get a good smooth job. Yes, it costs more and it is worth it.

EXCEPTIONAL VALUE IN

SCOTTII FERNS

11-inch tubs, very fine stock,
$2.50 and $3.00 each

OCYCLAMEN.

This has been one of our specialties for over twenty years. This year we grew upwards of fifty thousand plants. At this time our stock is better than ever before and sure to be a money-maker for anyone buying now.

Plants in all sizes exceptionally well flowered.
4-inch pots.....$25 and $35 per 100
6-inch pots.....$6, $9 and $12 per doz.
8-inch pots.....$12, $15, $18 per doz.

GARDENIA VEITCHII.

These are very strong plants and will make grand stock for winter blooming.

4-inch pots, heavy.....$20 per 100; $180 per 1000
6-inch pots, heavy.....$50 per 100
8-inch pots, heavy, in bud, will flower in January.....$12, $15 and $18 per doz.

CROTONS.

The Croton, with its highly colored foliage, is indispensable for the coming season. We have the largest and most complete collection of Crotons in the world, of the very highest quality and brilliantly colored.

3-inch pots.....$25 per 100
4-inch pots.....$30 and $35 per 100

Punctata, Heavy.

6-inch pots.....$1, $1.25 and $1.50 each
8-inch ass. pots, made up plants, handsome specimens.....$2, $2.50 and $3 each

We are also offering our wonderful collection of Seedling Crotons in over one hundred fifty (150) varieties. These varieties have proved themselves far ahead of any new varieties at home or abroad, having taken first prize wherever shown.

4-inch pots, strong plants.....$3 each
6-inch and 8 1/2-inch pots, strong plants.....$5 each, $50 a doz., $300 per 100

DRACAENA LORD WOLSELEY.

One of the very best varieties, being bright red in color.

3-inch pots.....$20 per 100
4-inch pots, strong plants.....$30 and $35 per 100

DRACAENA DESMETIANA.

This is one of the most desirable of the broad leaf varieties, a strong vigorous grower, with bold, dark green foliage which becomes beautifully suffused and variegated.

7-inch and 8-inch pots.....$2, $2.50, $3 and $3.50 each

DRACAENA BRONZE BEAUTY.

This variety was offered three years ago with Dracaena Mandalana by the introducer, Wm. A. Manda, and is the strongest growing Dracaena we have. Although not as highly colored as Dracaena Desmetiana, we have found it wonderfully durable as a house plant. We offer splendid specimens.

8-inch, 9-inch and 10-inch pots.....$3, $3.50, $5 and $6 each

PHOENIX ROEBELENI.

This is unquestionably one of the great palms of the future, combining the grace of a Cocos Weddelliana with the hardness of a Kentia. It will prove an invaluable plant for the house. Our stock in the following sizes is unusually fine.

6-inch pots.....$1.25 and $1.50 each
10-inch and 12-inch tubs, specimen plants.....$5, $6, $7.50, $10, $12.50, $15 and $20 each

Large specimen plants, fine for decorating.....$3.50, $4 and $5 each

ARECA LUTESCENS.

Perfect plants with rich, dark green foliage. Our stock is in splendid condition.

6-inch pots, 3 plants, 24 inches to 28 inches tall.....$9 and $12 per doz.
8-inch pots, 3 plants, 36 inches to 42 inches tall.....$24 and $30 per doz.

FICUS PANDURATA.

The plant of the century. Positively the best house and porch plant to date. Our stock of this wonderful plant this year is finer than we have heretofore offered, and we can surely give you satisfaction.

6-inch pots, 2 feet tall.....$1.50 each
6-inch pots, 2 1/2 feet tall.....$2 each
7-inch pots, 3 feet tall.....$2.50 each
8-inch pots, 4 feet tall.....$3 each
10-inch and 11-inch tubs, 5 feet to 10 feet tall.....$4, $5, $6 and $7.50 each

FICUS CHAUVIERI.

This is an old variety, taken up again by us. We believe we have the only stock of this variety in the country. It is in a class with the old Elasticas, being very hardy and doing equally well for both inside and outside decoration. This plant has already given great satisfaction.

6-inch pots, 18 inches high.....$12 per doz.
Large plants.....$1.50, $2 and $2.50 each

KENTIAS.

Strong stock for growing on.

3-inch pots, Belmoreana and Forsteriana.....$12 per 100, $110 per 1000

NEPHROLEPIS IN VARIETY.

We are now the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country, in the following varieties; in fact, we are headquarters for them. The demand increases each year and it is our aim to have

EVERY VARIETY IN NEPHROLEPIS
IN EVERY SIZE
EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Excellent values in all sizes. Our entire stock, in all sizes, are all pot grown plants.

NEPHROLEPIS SCHOLZELL.

This is an ideal crested fern, holding the same relation to all other crested varieties that the Neph. Scottii holds to the old Boston.

2 1/4-inch pots.....$6 per 100, $50 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$20 per 100
8-inch pans, heavy.....$12 and $15 per doz.
10-inch pans, heavy.....$18 and $24 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA IMPROVED.

This variety is a greatly improved Elegantissima and shows no tendency to revert to the old Boston. This will prove a valuable addition to the crested varieties.

11-inch buckets.....$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4 and $5 each

NEPHROLEPIS WM. K. HARRIS.

A type of Boston more dwarf than Harrisii, but with the same wavy appearance of the fronds. An ideal variety in all sizes.

2 1/4-inch pots.....$5 per 100; $75 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$20 per 100
6-inch pots.....$6 per doz.; $45 per 100
8-inch pots.....$12 per doz.; $90 per 100
11-inch tubs.....$2.50, $3 and $4 each

NEPHROLEPIS GIATRASIL.

Sport of Nephrolepis Bostoniensis. This variety is beautiful in a small plant and will prove a valuable addition as a small fern for pans, etc.

6-inch pots, heavy.....$8 and $9 per doz.
8-inch pots, heavy.....$12 and $15 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS SMITHII

This variety is a greatly improved Amerpohlii, dwarfed in habit, the fronds being much finer, and do not have any tendency to spoil in the center of the plant. It is the finest of all Nephrolepis for Christmas baskets and has given entire satisfaction.

2 1/4-inch pots.....$15 per 100; $120 per 1000

FLORISTS' REVIEW

WHEN WRITING
ADVERTISERS

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

PUSHING IT ALONG.

In the St. Valentine's day number of The Review it was said that "the purpose of this issue is to get 10,000 florists each to do a little something to attract the attention of the public to the appropriateness of flowers for use as valentines." Complete returns are not in, but a goodly proportion of the 10,000 certainly did their part. For instance, Samuel Murray sent to the best people of Kansas City a neatly printed card bearing the following above his signature:

"Flowers should be used to express your Greeting on Valentine's Day.

"Our supply and variety of choice flowers will be found adequate for this occasion.

"Coming from us will assure you of correct arrangements of the best flowers and prompt delivery.

"Let us serve you."

A CONSERVATORY ENTRANCE.

Usually a florist gives little attention to the appearance of the rear view of his establishment; if he has a greenhouse beside or behind his retail store he is content with a structure that fulfills the utilitarian need and spends no money on the impractical. In the case of Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, however, when a conservatory was built for the storage of decorating plants the entrance on the rear street was designed to be one of the attractive features of the place. It is shown in the accompanying illustration and will be seen to present a better appearance than many a main entrance does. The conservatory is 30x100, of steel frame construction, and beneath it is a basement to which flowers are transported from an electric elevator in the sidewalk.

PUSHING SPECIAL DAYS.

The following letter is from A. F. Koehle, in charge of the retail florists' department of the Texas Nursery Co., of Sherman, Tex.:

"We have read with great interest and pleasure the several pages in The Review for January 30, on making, and how to make, St. Valentine's day another special flower day. We are enclosing herewith a copy of a letter we intend getting out to our customers, the other fellow's customers, and prospective customers. Like most other florists, we have representatives in the smaller towns around us, from whom we get a list of prospective customers, to whom, as you will note by enclosed copy, we mail the letter. We did this last year and it increased our Valentine's day business many-fold, and we are expecting it this year to at least double that of last year. We would like your opinion as to this method, as we do not see it mentioned exactly in this way in your many suggestions for featuring the day as appropriate for sending flowers.

"We also use this means of advertising at Christmas, Easter, Mothers' day, Thanksgiving and at other times during the season when we have anything special to offer. However, we get out a separate letter, composed accordingly, to the single men, married men and married women. We have found this a profitable way of advertising, but there is always room for improvement and we would like your opinion."

The form letter enclosed by Mr. Koehle is as follows:

"Dear Sir: Did you send flowers for valentines last year? If so, no need to explain what an ideal valentine a box of choice cut flowers or a pretty pot plant makes. If not, we ask you to try it once and see the pleasure it gives the recipient and you will always be an advocate of 'Flowers for Valentines.' We will have a splendid and appropriate line for this occasion at ——. May we not have the pleasure of furnishing and delivering your valentines?"

There can be no question that such a letter pays. Advertising is nothing more nor less than salesmanship. The best way to get an order is to go among the kind of people you want to reach.

THE FOX STUDIO.

It is generally known that Charles Henry Fox, the well-known Philadelphia retailer, takes students in the art of floral arrangement and in salesmanship—beyond this not much is known. A glimpse at Mr. Fox in his studio will be of more than usual interest. You mount three or four flights of steps from the rear of the Sign of the Rose, to reach the door marked "Studio," with a line below advising the student to bring enthusiasm along. Inside is a well lighted room, neatly furnished in proper style. One of the walls is filled with what may be described as a floral chart. This chart embodies Mr. Fox's ideas in teaching. He aims, by thoroughness and originality, to teach the student in one year what is often imperfectly done in four or five years. Education of the practical kind is begun downstairs with every minute detail; the storing of boxes, placing paper and twine in their proper places, sorting and grading flowers and putting them in water, lining and packing boxes for short and long distance delivery and, finally, in the art of selling, first in one or two kinds of flowers, then in all.

To return to the lessons in the studio. The chart is arranged in mathematical style. "What are flowers?" "A form of human expression," is Mr. Fox's description. Then follow questions as to how they should be grown. The answers briefly refer to the importance of water, air and light and to their effect on quality. Good flowers, Mr. Fox believes, should always be used in after it in person, but this usually is not possible for florists. The next best way is to send the prospective customer a personal letter, but this takes much time, costs much money and is possible only with a small list of names. The way to reach the greatest number with the least effort and at the lowest proportionate cost is to advertise in the paper of largest circulation preference to poor ones, because the cheap stock requires too much time to prepare; time is money with a busy florist.

Taking up the retail line, the chart follows out every detail in store management. The price of flowers; why this or that variety is costly; the comparative value; how to buy; how to make up; how to sell—all are fully

FLORIST.....

PUSHING IT ALONG.

In the St. Valentine's day number of The Review it was said that "the purpose of this issue is to get 10,000 florists each to do a little something to attract the attention of the public to the appropriateness of flowers for use as valentines." Complete returns are not in, but a goodly proportion of the 10,000 certainly did their part. For instance, Samuel Murray sent to the best people of Kansas City a neatly printed card bearing the following above his signature:

"Flowers should be used to express your Greeting on Valentine's Day.

"Our supply and variety of choice flowers will be found adequate for this occasion.

"Coming from us will assure you of correct arrangements of the best flowers and prompt delivery.

"Let us serve you."

A CONSERVATORY ENTRANCE.

Usually a florist gives little attention to the appearance of the rear view of his establishment; if he has a greenhouse beside or behind his retail store he is content with a structure that fulfills the utilitarian need and spends no money on the impractical. In the case of Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, however, when a conservatory was built for the storage of decorating plants the entrance on the rear street was designed to be one of the attractive features of the place. It is shown in the accompanying illustration and will be seen to present a better appearance than many a main entrance does. The conservatory is 30x100, of steel frame construction, and beneath it is a basement to which flowers are transported from an electric elevator in the sidewalk.

PUSHING SPECIAL DAYS.

The following letter is from A. F. Koehle, in charge of the retail florists' department of the Texas Nursery Co., of Sherman, Tex.:

"We have read with great interest and pleasure the several pages in The Review for January 30, on making, and how to make, St. Valentine's day another special flower day. We are enclosing herewith a copy of a letter we intend getting out to our customers, the other fellow's customers, and prospective customers. Like most other florists, we have representatives in the smaller towns around us, from whom we get a list of prospective customers, to whom, as you will note by enclosed copy, we mail the letter. We did this last year and it increased our Valentine's day business many-fold, and we are expecting it this year to at least double that of last year. We would like your opinion as to this method, as we do not see it mentioned exactly in this way in your many suggestions for featuring the day as appropriate for sending flowers.

"We also use this means of advertising at Christmas, Easter, Mothers' day, Thanksgiving and at other times during the season when we have anything special to offer. However, we get out a separate letter, composed accordingly, to the single men, married men and married women. We have found this a profitable way of advertising, but there is always room for improvement and we would like your opinion."

The form letter enclosed by Mr. Koehle is as follows:

"Dear Sir: Did you send flowers for valentines last year? If so, no need to explain what an ideal valentine a box of choice cut flowers or a pretty pot plant makes. If not, we ask you to try it once and see the pleasure it gives the recipient and you will always be an advocate of 'Flowers for Valentines.' We will have a splendid and appropriate line for this occasion at _____. May we not have the pleasure of furnishing and delivering your valentines?"

There can be no question that such a letter pays. Advertising is nothing more nor less than salesmanship. The best way to get an order is to go among the kind of people you want to reach.

THE FOX STUDIO.

It is generally known that Charles Henry Fox, the well-known Philadelphia retailer, takes students in the art of floral arrangement and in salesmanship—beyond this not much is known. A glimpse at Mr. Fox in his studio will be of more than usual interest. You mount three or four flights of steps from the rear of the Sign of the Rose, to reach the door marked "Studio," with a line below advising the student to bring enthusiasm along. Inside is a well lighted room, neatly furnished in proper style. One of the walls is filled with what may be described as a floral chart. This chart embodies Mr. Fox's ideas in teaching. He aims, by thoroughness and originality, to teach the student in one year what is often imperfectly done in four or five years. Education of the practical kind is begun downstairs with every minute detail; the storing of boxes, placing paper and twine in their proper places, sorting and grading flowers and putting them in water, lining and packing boxes for short and long distance delivery and, finally, in the art of selling, first in one or two kinds of flowers, then in all.

To return to the lessons in the studio. The chart is arranged in mathematical style. "What are flowers?" "A form of human expression," is Mr. Fox's description. Then follow questions as to how they should be grown. The answers briefly refer to the importance of water, air and light and to their effect on quality. Good flowers, Mr. Fox believes, should always be used in after it in person, but this usually is not possible for florists. The next best way is to send the prospective customer a personal letter, but this takes much time, costs much money and is possible only with a small list of names. The way to reach the greatest number with the least effort and at the lowest proportionate cost is to advertise in the paper of largest circulation preference to poor ones, because the cheap stock requires too much time to prepare; time is money with a busy florist.

Taking up the retail line, the chart follows out every detail in store management. The price of flowers; why this or that variety is costly; the comparative value; how to buy; how to make up; how to sell—all are fully described. The student is made to feel that there is a right and a wrong way to do things and his or her reason is brought into play to choose the right.

Some of Mr. Fox's ideas are interesting. Never use tight buds for a theater corsage bunch; they should always be fully developed to make an effective display. Judge your customer; while it is not in good taste to sell a gaudy corsage, and no one of refinement would want it, still there are people who would not be satisfied with anything else. Do not talk too much; many a good sale has been spoiled by a too talkative salesman. Suppose, for instance, that Beauties are plentiful and can be sold at a good profit; the order is taken, but, as the customer goes out, something else is noticed. The salesman praises it and the order is revoked for something far less satisfactory to the house.

These instances will show the lessons Mr. Fox gives to his new school of floral art. Phil.

times until the flowers begin to open; then it is advisable to keep the house as dry as possible and to apply water more sparingly to the plants. By the time the spikes are fully developed all the water that is needed is just enough to keep them from wilting. The temperature also can be dropped 10 or 15 degrees from this on, and by keeping a little air on the top sash the flowers will keep in good condition for several weeks. The lasting qualities of calanthes for cut flower purposes ought to be enough in their favor to cause more growers to take an interest in them. My employer showed me some he had had in his house for six weeks, and they were then in better condition than the general run of flowers would be after being three days in the same position.

The varieties grown here are Calanthe Veitchii, a fine old standard variety of which I had quite a number of spikes this year four and one-half feet long. Bryan is another strong grower, with long, arching spikes of beautiful white flowers and a deep crimson eye. Wm. Murray is similar to the above, with the crimson extending all over the lip; a decidedly pretty combination. Jobstown is a pure white with the faintest tint of lemon in the center. Vanderbilt is a large-flowered white with a rose-pink eye. Sandhurstiana is a splendid dark variety. Bella is a fine, large-flowered hybrid, and vestita oculata and vestita rubra are good old varieties that should be in every collection. I have also another fine, large-flowered pure white hybrid which promises to be a winner another year. All of the above varieties are well worth a trial, and any grower who puts as much skill into them as he does to grow a chrysanthemum for exhibition will have something for his pains next Christmas.

CALANTHES.

The calanthe season is now nearing its close, but a few words in favor of this beautiful orchid and its good qualities may be of help to someone who has not succeeded with its culture, or who has never tried growing it, as it seems to me to deserve more attention than it has yet received, both for greenhouse decoration and for cut flower purposes. Their long, drooping spikes, when fully developed, are surely a grand sight and command admiration wherever seen, whether in greenhouse or drawing room, and anyone who will try the following cultural instructions, and use his own judgment, ought to be well rewarded for his pains.

After resting the bulbs for eight or nine weeks, in a dry place, where the temperature does not go below 50 degrees, I shake them out of their previous flowering pots and clean the bulbs thoroughly. I then stand them on sand in shallow boxes or seed pans and put them where the temperature is from 65 to 70 degrees. By keeping the sand moist and the bulbs sprinkled overhead occasionally they will soon start to grow. After the young roots are fairly started there should be no delay in potting, as they are extremely tender and are liable to get broken, even if you use the greatest of care.

For potting material I use good fibrous turf, shaking as much of the fine soil out of it as possible, mixing with that about one-fifth well rotted cow manure and a good sprinkling of clean, sharp sand and crushed charcoal. A little orchid peat, chopped up fine, also is of great benefit where the soil is deficient in fiber.

The size of pots or pans to use is immaterial. I use 5-inch and 6-inch pots, and consider them the most convenient, filling them one-third their depth with drainage. I put one large bulb in a 6-inch pot or two medium sized bulbs, according to their size. Firm the soil well in the pots and tie the large bulbs to a small stake to keep them in position till the young roots get a good hold of the soil, when the stakes can be removed.

Water must be applied sparingly for a while, but a light spray overhead morning and afternoon will encourage growth. Do not let the temperature from now on go below 70 degrees at night, and during the summer months it will not harm them to let it run up to 90 degrees during the day. For shading I paint the glass with a mixture of kerosene and white lead, medium thick. During the months of August and September, when the bulbs are swelling, give plenty of water. Feeding can also be commenced at that date. Cow and sheep manure water I consider about the best for that purpose, using them alternately, starting in lightly, at first about once a week; this can be applied oftener and stronger as the plants advance in growth.

Syringing should be done thoroughly every bright morning to keep down red spider. Keep a moist atmosphere at all with point up. Sow them broadcast or in rows like peas. Rows are to be preferred, as weeding and cultivating are more easily done.

VIOLETS IN CALIFORNIA.

Of the many interesting sights in my recent trip to the Pacific coast, one of the most absorbing to me was the violet industry near San Francisco.

Violets, violets everywhere! Flower vendors are at almost every corner on the downtown streets in 'Frisco, with stalls, baskets and arms loaded with the fragrant flowers. It seemed as though every other lady I met on the street was wearing a big bunch of them. The shop girls wore smaller bunches, and man after man stopped on his way home and purchased, carrying the flowers along the streets, usually without wrapping, and to a stranger in town it appeared almost like a "Violet day" celebration.

The retail florists were doing a good business, although the low price on the streets—10 cents per bunch, or three bunches for 25 cents—was somewhat discouraging. The wholesale dealers were busy shipping great quantities, not only to all points along the Pacific coast but as far east as Kansas City, St. Louis and even beyond. In our own store at Des Moines, Ia., we use these flowers and, by the way, the violets grown on the Hudson, these latter coming from Chicago dealers, so that literally Des Moines people wear the violets of both coasts.

The Pacific coast violets are all outdoor grown, most of the growers being Italians located ten to twenty miles south of San Francisco, the town of Colma being about the center of the district. Being interested in the subject, I visited several of the "violet farms," as they call them, the largest, belonging to Joe Lagomarsino, being typical of the lot. "Joe" is a live, wide-awake young man, a thoroughly up-to-date grower and in love with his business. He has seventeen acres in violets, separated into several fields by windbreaks of cypress trees. His place is on a hilltop, the fields extending down into the valleys. The plants are set in rows about thirty inches apart, so as to permit horse cultivation, and are usually permitted to stand about three years before replanting. Princess of Wales and California Giant are the only varieties grown, the former being of the richest and most attractive color, while the latter has the longest stems, frequently twelve to fourteen inches, and mammoth flowers.

The crop season extends from September to April. In December they were picking 150 to 200 bunches per day, the crop being short because of the exceptionally dry weather. During January and February they usually pick 400 to 500 bunches per day. When flowers are scarce they put thirty-five to forty blossoms in a bunch, with lots of leaves, but when more plentiful, say in February, they usually count out about sixty to seventy-five flowers. No attempt is made to have the number uniform, apparently.

The growers usually sell their product to the wholesalers in San Francisco, as most of them are not in shape to make direct shipments to the east, and I believe several of these growers and wholesalers are advertising in The Review.

PANSIES ON HILLSIDE.

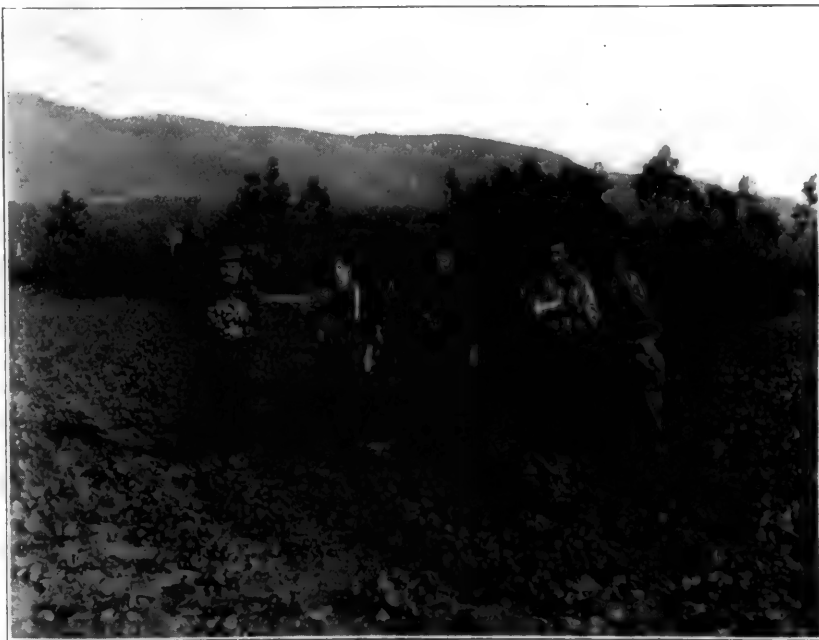

I have about a quarter of an acre of pansies covered with ice, although I took precautions to bed on a sandy hillside, with frequent cross ditches for drainage. I am located in southern Maine. Do you think the ice will be likely to kill them? They are covered with boughs, leaves and meadow hay. Is there any way to remedy the trouble? Is there any machine that will sow pansy seed broadcast, on beds three feet wide, thin enough for the plants to remain until they bloom, and yet not waste many seeds?

C. A. P.

The ice will not damage the pansies, seeing they are well mulched. A sandy hillside is about the best location you could have selected for your plants. I do not know of any seed sower such as you describe, though there may be one on the market. Perhaps some other reader can furnish the desired information. I should prefer to sow pansy seed by hand; if it is dropped carefully by a practiced hand, little thinning should be necessary.

TOPPING THE SIDE SHOOTS.

Please tell me whether I ought to top back the side shoots or branches on carnation plants, when they grow out after the center stem has been topped back. J. A. M.

If this question refers to the young carnation plants during the spring and summer, the side shoots should also be topped when they have grown long enough. The usual practice is to do all needful topping about once in two weeks up to the time the plants are brought in from the field. W. H. T.

HOLDING FOR JULY CROP.

I have several beds of carnations, comprising Enchantress, White Enchantress, Lawson, Winsor and Victory. When I took charge of these houses the Victory plants were badly affected with smut, which finally spread all through the houses. I have been spraying with Bordeaux mixture regularly, except in the last six weeks. I was afraid to spray much during the cold and cloudy weather. The outside temperature in this part of Colorado dropped to 37 degrees below zero and the heating of the houses was none too good.

These carnations were probably set in the beds sometime last May. They commenced blooming about September 15 and are in fine condition now. As I shall not need any of these flowers in the near future, but shall want an abundance about July 1, would it be safe to cut them back or would it be better to wait until later? Please tell me the best time to cut them back. How closely should I cut them and what treatment should I give them in order to have plenty of flowers by the first of July? They are planted in good soil and have been fed with liquid cow manure only. A. F.

If your climate is suitable for producing good carnation blooms indoors during July, there should be no trouble in throwing the plants into crop at that time. If you have no use for the blooms now, the plants can be cut back any time and I should say the sooner the better. The sooner you cut them back, the harder you can cut them, and the harder you cut them, the more shapely you can keep the plants. How much they should be cut back will depend altogether on the condition of the plants, but you will of course keep in mind the idea of getting a new growth from the main body of the plants. If the plants are not straggly and have not made a rank growth, then it will perhaps be well simply to cut away the blooming stems down to where you will get good, strong breaks from the main body of the plant. If, however, the plants are straggly, then you will do well to cut them back almost to the main stem. In the latter case you should let them run a little dry for a couple of weeks before you cut them. If properly handled it will not matter if no foliage remains on the plants, if it is done this early in the year. Later, when the weather is hot, the chances of the plants making a new start are not nearly so good.

After you have the plants started into a new growth, it will be a simple matter merely to keep the blooming shoots cut back until you want the crop to come along. It takes a carnation bud about six weeks from the time the bud shows at the end of the shoot until it comes into bloom. If your plants are growing vigorously, you could stop topping about April 15 and expect a full crop by July 1. After you cut the plants back, and the new growth has started, dust them with hydrated lime, to keep rust in check. There is nothing better. A. F. J. B.

INDIANA STATE FLORISTS.

A Visit to Dorner's, at La Fayette.

On invitation given at the January meeting, the State Florists' Association of Indiana held its February meeting in La Fayette, February 4, the main object of the meeting being the inspection of the plant of F. Dorner & Sons Co. There were about twenty-five persons in the party. In addition to our own members, we had with us, as guest, R. T. Brown, manager of the Cottage Gardens, Queens, L. I., and vice-president of the American Carnation Society, who had been visiting the writer on A. C. S. business.

We were met at the station by Ted Dorner and Fred Hudson, and whirled out to the greenhouses in closed carriages, which were a welcome shelter from the cold though bright weather. At the greenhouses we were met by the rest of the firm, Fred and Miss Emily, familiarly known as "Mitley" Dorner. Did you ever visit this establishment? If you have not, then at the first opportunity give yourself this treat. I will warrant you that the hearty welcome you will receive, and the many wonderful sights you will see, will linger long in your memory. Some of our party had never seen the place, while others had, but all had their expectations keyed up to a high notch and all had their expectations more than realized. The writer, having visited the place last December, knew pretty well what was in store for the day.

Of course the seedling carnations were the chief attraction. Our hosts had allowed the blooms to hang on a few days, and such a sight is not often seen. There were hundreds of varieties in the second, third and fourth year of trial, and fully 2,500 first-year seedlings which had bloomed in the field during the last summer and had been transferred to the greenhouses for further observation. The entire new range is given over to varieties originated by the firm, and over half of the space is occupied by new varieties still on trial. Do you wonder that this firm has given to the trade more bread-and-butter varieties than any other one firm in the whole world? The trials are conducted systematically, and the weeding out is done carefully by master hands, made doubly expert through

Primulas.

In order to have strong plants for Christmas sales, the present is a suitable time to make a sowing of primula seed. Of course, it is possible to make sowings several months hence and have plants of flowering size, but the seeds germinate decidedly better at this season, and really strong plants are only to be had by starting early. Primula Sinensis, commonly known as Chinese primrose, is an excellent seller for Christmas and later. For the holidays such bright varieties as Crimson King, Ruby Queen, Chiswick Red and His Majesty are in demand, but the pink and pure white shades have many admirers. The stellata type, of looser habit, is more decorative than the old type but does not, as a rule, sell so well in the markets.

P. obconica can be sown as late as April, but much finer plants will be had if the seed is sown now. Strong plants in 6-inch and 7-inch pots can be had for Christmas. Later sowings will give plants in 4-inch or 5-inch pots and suitable for massing in pans. There has been a wonderful improvement made in the strains of P. obconica. The giant-flowered types do not flower so freely as the grandifloras, but the blooms are of immense size and are generally purchased in preference to the smaller ones. There are now quite a variety of separate colors obtainable, but pink, bright rose and crimson sell the best. P. Kewensis is a strong growing, fragrant, bright yellow primula which has become popular. Its treatment does not differ from that of the Sinensis and obconica varieties.

It is good policy to purchase seeds of a first-class strain of primula, or for that matter of any other flower seeds. Use a light compost consisting chiefly of leaf-mold, with plenty of fine sand and powdered charcoal added. Drain the seed pans well, cover the seeds lightly and keep protected from sun and air until the seeds germinate. Careful watering is essential and do not allow anyone to use the hose on these or any other seedlings. The watering can is often sneered at, but it is a necessity today in every establishment where good plants are to be grown.

Primula malacoides, one of the more recent Chinese introductions, is vigorous and should not be sown before May. This has appeared in a good many florists' windows during the present winter. It is unlikely to displace obconica or Sinensis, but it is of a pleasing loose and airy habit, and is decorative. Seed of a pure white variety as well as lavender is offered this season. This plant requires late sowing and a cool, bright, airy house in winter. It always needs careful watering to prevent the foliage from decaying.

SNAPDRAGON AURORA.

The photograph of the silver-pink snapdragon, Aurora, here reproduced, was taken December 26, 1912, and was sent to The Review by George Cartwright, of the Boston Flower Exchange. Mr. Cartwright states that the variety was raised by F. W. Fletcher & Co., Auburndale, Mass., one of the consignees to the Boston Flower Exchange, that it has been handled by the Exchange for the last two seasons and that the consignments have invariably been sold before their arrival.

"The variety," Mr. Cartwright continues, "is free flowering, giving a good crop of medium-length spikes through October, November and December, and a greatly increased quantity of 20-inch to 30-inch spikes from February to June. The individual flowers are extra large and are of good substance, making it a good keeper. The stems are unusually stiff, requiring no staking. The spikes illustrated were four inches in diameter. I consider it the best of the silver-pink varieties that I have seen. No stock of this variety has been sold and none will be offered at present."

SAMPLES FOR INSTRUCTORS.

In reply to an inquiry the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, says: "Several times various instructors in the state agricultural colleges have expressed a need for samples of greenhouse structural material to use in class work. It seemed to us these samples would be a great help to the instructors in imparting a knowledge of the correct principles of greenhouse construction. We finally decided to send out a set of samples showing the parts most generally used in greenhouse building. Right now we are sending samples to every state university having a class in horticulture where greenhouse construction is taught as a part of the regular course. So far we are sending them only to state colleges that we know are in need of them, but we would be willing to send a few sets more to other schools that have legitimate use for such material."

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

For the approaching show in New York the American Rose Society has been offered a special prize of $200 by the New York Cut Flower Co. There is also a silver cup from Moore, Hentz & Nash, valued at $50. There also is a special grower's prize, $15, $10 and $7 in cash. This prize is for the actual grower and not for the exhibitor, excepting in the case where he does his own growing. The object is to recognize the man who actually does the good work. This prize was first offered by Frank L. Moore, of Chatham, N. J., and has been renewed by someone almost every year since.

THE WESTERN ASSOCIATION.

The Western Dahlia and Gladiolus Association had announced a meeting and exhibition to be held at 66 East Randolph street, Chicago, February 7 and 8, but the attendance was so small as to afford little encouragement to the prime movers in the organization. Wm. Espel and E. S. Thompson, of Benton Harbor, Mich., brought exhibits. Secretary Thompson announces the following officers for the coming year: President, J. T. Fitchett, Janesville, Wis.; vice-president, S. W. Pike, St. Charles, Ill.; secretary-treasurer, E. S. Thompson, Benton Harbor, Mich.; directors, W. E. Fryer, Mantorville, Minn., and Wm. Espel, Benton Harbor, Mich.

EUROPEAN NOTES.

Horticulturists generally are now on the qui vive for the Ghent Quinquennial Exhibition, which opens April 26. The buildings are practically completed, and Fred Burvenich, Sr., is busy planning the positions of the principal exhibits. The secretarial work is ably controlled by Lucien de Cock. In the list of judges drawn from all European countries many eminent horticulturists are included, and America is represented by Mr. Roehrs, of Rutherford, N. J.

Visitors to England this year should note the dates of the following leading exhibitions: R. H. S. spring show, May 20 to 22; R. H. S. summer show, July 1 to 3; National Rose Society, May 1 and July 4; National Sweet Pea Society, July 17. All the foregoing are held in London. Leading provincial shows are: Carnations at Leamington, April 10 and 11; Yorkshire Gala, June 18 to 21; Shrewsbury Floral Fete, August 20 and 21.

The new American seedling rose, Mrs. Charles Russell, was exhibited in London before the R. H. S., January 21, by W. A. Manda, who brought the blooms with him across the Atlantic. Despite the trip, they were O. K., a tribute to their lasting qualities, and this was strongly emphasized by their receiving an award of merit from the floral committee, which most assuredly would not have been given if the flowers had not been in the pink of perfection. They were marvelously fresh; so, also, was Carnation Northport, from the same exhibitor.

Another pretty novelty, Cyclamen St. George, from St. George's Nursery Co., Harlington, London, also received an award of merit. This is decidedly pretty and unique, on account of its foliage. The flowers are an intense salmon color, and the olive green leaves, with silver markings, remind one of a Rex begonia.

Carnation Mary Allwood has received a first-class certificate from the Carnation Society. It was raised by Allwood Bros., Haywards Heath. It is a novel and distinct shade of cardinal pink, with large petals and exquisite form, and is good in every way. It is quite distinct in color from anything in commerce.

Edward Webb, senior partner in the firm of Edward Webb & Sons, seed growers and merchants, Stourbridge, England, died in Paris January 21. He was in his sixty-ninth year. In his day he did considerable work in the raising and improving of strains of garden and agricultural seeds, and the firm is one of the largest in the country.

David King, nurseryman, Edinburgh, has been elected chairman of the Scottish Horticultural Association. Bee.

DAHLIA SOCIETY.

The seventh annual meeting of the New England Dahlia Society was held at Boston January 29. John K. Alexander, of East Bridgewater, Mass., was unanimously reelected to a third term as president. W. C. Brady, of Wollaston, Mass., was reelected vice-president. J. Herbert Alexander, of East Bridgewater, was elected secretary, and George L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I., was elected treasurer. The executive committee is: Edgar W. Ela, Woburn, Mass.; J. H. Flint, Salem, Mass.; C. N. Bacon, Holliston, Mass.; L. B. R. Briggs, Cambridge, Mass., and Parker A. Mansfield, Malden, Mass.

Maurice Fuld, of the H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, gave an interesting address.

The society accepted the invitation to hold its annual exhibition in conjunction with the dahlia show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, September 12 to 14, and to make the 1913 show the largest dahlia exhibition ever held in this country. Secretary Alexander says: "We ought to have a full thousand members before the 1913 show is held. Twenty-eight American states, including Porto Rico, and five foreign countries are already represented in our list. The New England Dahlia Society issues quarterly a 'Dahlia News,' which deals with all phases of dahlia life, a paper of great value to our dahlia-loving members."

THE PUBLICITY PROPAGANDA.

[Extracts from a paper by M. C. Ebel, read before the New York Florists' Club February 10, 1913.]

No more perplexing problem confronts the business man than what to do, and how to do it, to get the greatest return from his expenditures in creating a selling market for his products. More money is wasted in this branch of a business than in any other department, because it is next to impossible to trace returns on all that is expended. I have, however, been quietly watching the course of events since I fired my first shot at publicity last May, and the interest which has been manifested among the florists generally in this subject must assure anyone not a pessimist that the publicity movement will not be permitted to wane, but that it will progress until it will finally make its power and influence felt in the florists' industry, just as it is doing among the younger industries today.

The Evolution Progressing.

There is no question that the florists' business is already unconsciously following in the evolution through which other successful industries have passed from their minor state into great enterprises. I refer principally to the large commercial florists' establishments, which are producing along the same lines that the large manufacturers produce, studying all the phases where economies may be practiced and then taking advantage of the economies to reduce the cost of production, and so, as in other fields of endeavor, the large grower can make money at prices at which the small grower cannot afford to produce.

This feature of the florist business is never again going to diminish, but on the contrary will continue to increase, and with this development of the business the chances of your ever seeing much higher prices for flowers than those now prevailing become more and more remote.

Chain Stores Planned.

Wallace R. Pierson, in his paper, "The Florist and His Market," presents some arguments which should make grower, wholesaler and retailer sit up and take notice. He says they are all in the same boat. He is right. He urges coöperation between the grower, wholesaler and retailer, rather than competition, and warns of the possibility of a chain of stores handling flowers as they do other commodities.

This is no longer a possibility but will soon be an announced fact; for a strong organization is already under contemplation having associated with it a man heavily interested in several similar successful, what might be termed, endless chain store enterprises. It will seek direct outlets for its productions, and as its retail business expands, it can continue to increase its growing capacity, if it chooses, or exercise the privilege, if it finds it more profitable to do so, of going direct to growers and contracting for their entire output. The opportunity is a great one. The mystifying part of it is that it has not been taken advantage of before. It brings to mind an old saying that it takes an outsider to discover the inside of one's opportunities.

No general publicity campaign will be required by such a concern. It will do its own advertising and create its own markets; but this is individual advertising and will not help its neighbor in the business. Individual advertising only helps the individuals by whom it is directed.

Local Publicity Campaigns.

Then we have our local publicity or advertising campaigns. They may have some good features, but I have failed to discern any in watching what has so far been undertaken. No doubt some of them have been productive of results, but could they be declared a success when the expenditures are taken into account? For argument's sake, let us concede that one of the local publicity committees would hit on a plan whereby a greater demand and better prices for flowers could be established within its region. How long would it be before the growers from elsewhere would swamp that locality with shipments to get some of those better prices and they would again be confronted with the problem of how to overcome the gluts?

Curtailment of products can not be successfully maintained in the florist industry, although the suggestion was offered at the Philadelphia meeting, where Mr. Pierson first read his paper, that the florists devote some of their glass for a time to vegetable growing. The weak point here is that the vegetable grower is confronted with the same problem as the florist.

Universal publicity, educating the public to the usages of flowers and plants, instructing them how to grow and care for them, how to employ them, and convincing them that they are not luxuries but comforts which gladden the heart and mitigate sorrow and suffering, that is what is now required to increase the selling market for the florists, and there is nothing else left to accomplish this for you.

A National Bureau Needed.

Mr. Pierson has struck the right trail on publicity when he states that we need a national publicity bureau. And that bureau must be under the supervision of a man who is well informed on the details of the industry he is to represent, and on all the inner workings of the press in general. He is not easily found, but he exists and when you do find him, give him a fair chance.

But who is to pay the piper for this music? All of us. Let the support be forthcoming from the S. A. F., from the local societies and all allied interests of floriculture. We shall all benefit by it; growers, wholesalers, retailers, seedsmen, supply men, greenhouse men and all. The big men need publicity less than the small men. The small grower is the sufferer in a bad market and I predict that the time is not far distant when he will have to abandon the big markets and find his own direct market at home, as many are already doing. Therefore, he should be prepared to contribute his mite to the share expected of the large growers and others towards making it possible to inaugurate a campaign of publicity which must be national in scope to build up for him a greater demand for his products.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business has been a little quiet in the last week, which was the coldest of the winter. St. Valentine's day should be good for the florists, as well as the stationers. Flowers are not so plentiful, the roses and carnations being off crop, but should be in good supply for Easter. Considerable bulbous stock is on the market, Romans, Paper Whites, etc.

Various Notes.

C. L. Niednagel's cut has not been so heavy, but the quality is excellent. He is cutting some fine long-stemmed Beauties. He expects to go over to Huntingtonburg, Ind., next Sunday to see the plant of Peter Morgen.

Julius Niednagel reports no kick as to business done. Roses and carnations are off crop, but will be in again for Easter. The new residence is being heated by steam from the greenhouse plant.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. is doing the usual good business. The out-of-town trade has been good all season.

Karl Zeidler has been cutting some extra fine carnations this winter. The plants are in solid beds.

J. C. Elsperrmann has been rushed with business lately. The carnations will be in good crop for Easter.

E. L. Fenton has been elected secretary of the Ohio Valley Fanciers' Association. E. L. F.

Portland, Conn.—Otto Keser has fully recovered from the effects of the recent storm and reports a good season.

A Corner of Albert A. Sawyer's Field of the Astermum, at Forest Park, Ill.

SAWYER'S ASTER FIELD.

For several years A. A. Sawyer, of Forest Park, Ill., has been sending exceptionally good asters into the Chicago market and those who attended the last S. A. F. convention will recall with pleasure his display of the cut blooms. The accompanying illustration shows a corner of the field from which they came.

Mr. Sawyer has been at work on the development of his aster for the last eight years. He wisely calls it the Astermum, a name that attracts the attention and sticks in the mind. Stock has been worked up in three colors, white, light pink and an especially good lavender. Mr. Sawyer, who before he became known as an aster specialist was recognized as exceptionally successful with pansies, says that the Astermum is of such upright habit that he plants only nine inches apart. The stems are eighteen to twenty-four inches long and each plant makes ten to fifteen blooms. He has grown his stock for market without disbudding.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh is so near Punxsutawney that we naturally keep one eye on that burgh for reports about ground hog day. The report came that he saw his shadow and the greenhouse men began hauling coal, and have kept at it, as we have had near-zero weather ever since. The closest was on the morning of Thursday, February 6—3 degrees above—and that is bad enough, in contrast with the former warm weather.

Roses are scarce and will continue so for a couple of weeks, but there is plenty of everything else. Bulbous stock is fine and should be a treat to flower buyers after the steady diet of roses and carnations, if the retailers will only try to make their customers understand. The shortage of roses is really for a shorter time this year than for several years. Of course there are but few Beauties, but they are not asked for and are not missed much. Carnations are getting more plentiful every day and the wholesalers have been having a comfortable time for the last week.

Among the retail shops there was a decrease of trade last week. That is the rule in the first few days of Lent, but for the last few years it has not been noticed much after the first week. While there may be no large affairs, there will be more small luncheons and teas, and possibly the retailers make as much on this kind of business as on the bigger events, for there is not so much cutting of prices. The shop windows all look well, but there is nothing new in sight except an unusual effort on the part of some, by means of circulars, letters and street car advertisements, to stimulate the sending of floral valentines.

Club Meeting.

The club met Tuesday evening, February 4, and there was a large attendance. The subject for the evening was carnations, but the only carnations on exhibition were a bunch shown by James Wiseman, gardener for D. M. Clemson. The flowers, which were Winsor, white and pink, were particularly good when it is taken into consideration that they were grown right in the smoke district, in the heart of the city, and a cultural certificate was awarded.

Carl Becherer, gardener for Dixmont hospital, had some fine cyclamens and primulas, which also were awarded a cultural certificate.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Neil McCallum; vice-president, E. C. Reine-man; treasurer, T. P. Langhans; secretary, H. P. Joslin; assistant secretary, W. A. Clarke; executive committee, P. S. Randolph, Augustus Frishkorn and C. H. Sample.

The president-elect, being called on for a speech, responded in his own inimitable way. After expressing his appreciation of the honor conferred on him, he at once wandered off into flowers and poetry in a way that makes his title, "Sage of the Club," seem decidedly appropriate, and it is safe to predict a year of interesting meetings. He did not take the chair, but will be installed in office on the same day as President Woodrow Wilson, on the evening of March 4, when the club will give a reception for him. A committee has been appointed to arrange for entertainment and refreshments.

The retiring president, E. C. Ludwig, has had a highly successful year, bringing in many new members and having many interesting meetings, at which many good things have been shown, and he turns over the finances of the club in the best condition in the club's history.

Various Notes.

There is talk of getting together a fund for the purpose of carrying a notice above the obituary notices in the newspapers, cautioning people regarding those florists who are known as crepe pullers and who visit the houses sometimes before the undertaker and solicit orders.

There has been considerable complaint among valley growers about the large percentage of bad valley pips. They are so bad this year that the growers scarcely know how many to put in the sand, as one time perhaps sixty per cent are good, while not over ten per cent of the next batch makes good flowers. One grower here says his loss will be over $1,500.

T. P. Langhans says that Charles Henry Fox's paper on "Zeitgeist," or "The Spirit of the Times," which appeared in The Review of January 9, is "sehr wahr und gut."

On Saturday, February 8, the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.'s big truck, which operates between the greenhouses and the store, was sent to the Packard garage for its regular inspection. This work is done on the fourth floor of the garage. When the work was completed, the chauffeur got into the car to wait for the elevator. Then, through some misunderstanding, he backed into the elevator shaft when the elevator was two stories below, and had a sheer drop of forty feet down the shaft onto the elevator. By some strange good fortune, the chauffeur was not scratched; neither was the truck injured to any extent.

Frank Myers, of Myers & Samtman, Philadelphia, was a visitor last week.

Vincent J. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, Mo., visited the retail stores of this city last week, looking for any new ideas that might develop.

Clarke.

BOSTON.

The Market.

February has so far given us steadily cold winter weather, in marked contrast to that of January. The changed conditions are welcome in some ways, as we seem now reasonably sure of an ice crop, which will mean a saving next summer to nearly all florists. The skies have been unusually clear and flowers have not materially shortened up. The advent of Lent has cast the customary cloud on the market and conditions are not at all good. Roses are still selling better than other flowers, as they are still in under crop. Beauties continue scarce and prices are high. Mrs. Charles Russell also is scarce. Killarneys are more abundant than White Killarneys, the latter moving well. Hillingdon is arriving in much better shape. Wards also are good. Taft, Sunburst and Radiance are three good selling varieties. There are more carnations than the market can digest and many are cleared at low prices. A few select Gloriosa and Pink Delight reach $4, but the general run make $1 and $2, with $3 for fancies.

Violets are for some reason less popular this season and are selling cheap. There is also considerable waste in short-stemmed sweet peas. Bulbous stock is abundant. Such double tulips as Couronne d'Or and Murillo sell well. In singles, La Reine, Flamingo and Yellow Prince are leaders. There is a glut of double daffodils and prices on these are low. Golden Spurs and Victorias are moving better. Lilies for the time being are in short supply. Antirrhinums and yellow marguerites are good sellers. Valley is good and has been selling fairly well. There is some let-up in the supply of cattleyas, and gardenias are a little more abundant. Mignonette is good. There is a considerable surplus of miscellaneous flowers, such as wallflowers, bachelor's buttons, calendulas, etc. There is only a fair call for fern and asparagus.

Various Notes.

The Horticultural Club, at its meeting last week, had among its guests F. R. Pierson, Eugene Dailledouze and S. J. Reuter. The question of holding a big open air flower show in a section of the Back Bay was mooted, on the occasion of the next S. A. F. convention here. The club voted at a previous meeting to send an invitation to the S. A. F. to hold its 1914 convention here.

F. E. Palmer and Miss Florence Palmer returned this week from their visit to Panama, Costa Rica, Jamaica and Cuba and are enthusiastic over the trip.

W. H. Elliott went to Amherst February 10 and spoke before the students in the floricultural department on roses. William Duckham and C. H. Totty spoke February 11 and Eber Holmes is to speak on roses February 14.

Welch Bros. Co. reports a fine call for Taft and Cardinal. P. Welch is well pleased with the coming of the new wholesale flower market near his firm and is convinced that here will be the future wholesale cut flower district of Boston.

At Penn's one window last week contained large vases of A. A. Pembroke's prize-winning carnations. Preparations were being made for an immense St. Valentine's day trade.

Mayor Fitzgerald, President Farquhar, of the S. A. F., and other prominent persons will speak at the opening of the new wholesale market of the Boston Flower Exchange, on Winthrop Square, February 15. A fine show of novelties is promised and a big attendance of those in the trade is expected.

John McFarland buried his father-in-law, William Twohig, at North Easton, February 7. Mr. Twohig lived to the ripe old age of 91 years. Among the floral offerings was a massive arch and lyre from the members of the Boston Coöperative Market, of which Mr. McFarland is president.

Kidder Bros. are among the few growers of single violets this season whose flowers are as fine as ever, and they are always beautifully bunched.

Peter M. Miller, of the T. J. Grey Co., is back from a ten days' trip in New York state and is this week covering Cape Cod. Advance orders are heavy with his firm.

William Rosenthal, of the Boston Cut Flower Co., is busy with general work and states that Lenten business is good.

Paine Bros., of Randolph, are one of our largest bulb specialists. Their Flamingo and Murillo tulips and Victoria, Golden Spur and Von Sion narcissi are of splendid quality.

S. J. Goddard, T. H. Westwood and R. T. McGorum are all on the sick list, but will soon be around again, we hope.

H. F. Calder, of Norwood, grows superb Campbell violets. He is also about the only successful grower of double white violets, having 2,000 plants of Swanley White.

Practically every carnation novelty and large numbers of vases of standard sorts will be seen at the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, on its carnation night, February 18. There will also be many other exhibits. Peter Fisher, S. J. Goddard and A. A. Pembroke will each contribute short papers and a banner attendance is certain.

D. J. Horrigan, of East Foxboro; W. P. Foley, of Mansfield, and the Mishawum Flower Co., of Woburn, are all large shippers of high grade sweet peas to J. M. Cohen, at the Boston Coöperative Market.

William Patterson, of Wollaston, is one of the few growers of grape hyacinths in pots. H. R. Comley handles practically all his output. Mr. Patterson's Murillo, Couronne d'Or and La Reine tulips and Golden Spur narcissi are equal to any seen in the markets.

R. H. Little, of Winchester, is a successful grower of single violets. He has 15,000 plants. All the flowers are sold at the Boston Coöperative Market.

J. H. Leach & Sons' new carnation, Pink Supreme, continues to make a good record. While quite a full, heavy flower, few blooms have burst and it sells even better than Pink Delight.

The Park street market of the Boston Flower Exchange will be used for the last time February 15. The new market on Winthrop Square will be used February 17.

F. H. Houghton, who is known as one of our most up-to-date floral artists, has been asked to contribute an article on floral designs to the next Christmas number of the Ladies' Home Journal.

A. F. Anderson, of Woburn, is the largest shipper of bulbous flowers to the Boston Coöperative Market. His Victorias, Golden Spurs and Murillos leave nothing to be desired.

Mayor Fitzgerald is seeking an appropriation of $100,000 from the Parkman fund for municipal greenhouses for Boston.

J. W. Simpson, of Woburn, is having good success this season with Gloriosa, White Wonder, Pink Delight and Beacon carnations. He still grows Lawson and finds it profitable. His yellow marguerites are as good as ever.

John McFarland has 7,000 longiflorum lilies which are nearly all showing bud and will be on time for Easter. Many growers are in the anxious seat and are running high temperatures in efforts to flower their plants.

Prof. W. W. Tracy, of Washington, lectured at Horticultural hall February 8, on "Adaptation of Local Grown Seed to Local Conditions," before a large and interested audience.

The spring show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is scheduled for March 14 to 16. A tempting array of prizes is offered. W. N. Craig.

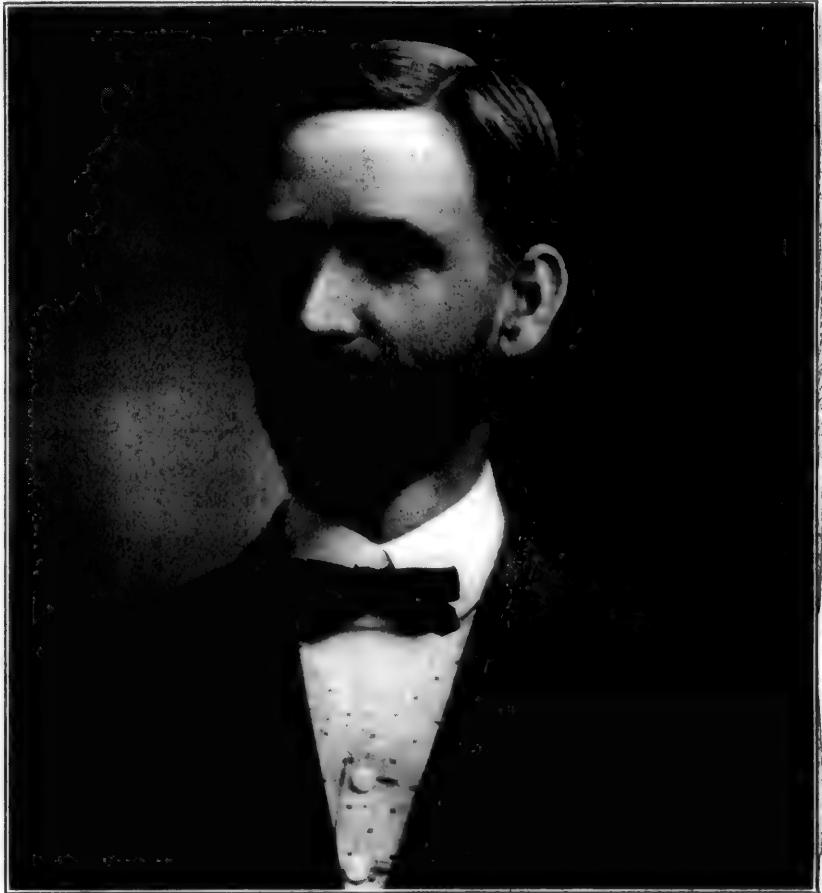

RICHMOND, IND.

The writer spent a profitable day recently at the greenhouses of the E. G. Hill Co. I was surprised at the large number of strong carnation plants they are propagating. They do not allow their stock plants to bloom at all, and, judging from the strong, stocky plants they are rooting, it pays to propagate in that way. I was especially impressed with a house of their new variety, Commodore, grown for cut flowers. This, side by side with Beacon, has a better color, is as free a bloomer, has stiffer stems and does not split. I looked for splits carefully, but did not see a single split calyx in this variety.

Salmon Beauty is a coming variety, if appearances count for anything. Gloriosa, the flesh pink carnation, seemed to me to be one of the best of its color I had ever seen. I saw a variegated variety, Benora, that must win a place. It is white, striped lightly with clear scarlet carmine. Euna Wallace is an English variety that is on trial and gives good promise. It is a large deep pink, with long stems and good, free habit.

Mr. Hill is testing a white seedling carnation of his own raising that I was much impressed with. It is a cross between White Wonder and May Day. To me it looked better than either,

"WHO'S WHO—AND WHY"

JAMES S. WILSON.

HAPPY is the florist located in a thriving city where he can retail the greater part of his product, for there is an ever-waiting wholesale market for any surplus. James S. Wilson has been in the business at Des Moines, Ia., just long enough to begin to appreciate the opportunities afforded by such a situation. There are few men who possess a broader experience in the flower business, nor are there many who are harder workers. Mr. Wilson has found that there is no difficulty in selling; the only trouble he has is to produce or procure in quantity the stock his trade demands—and it keeps him on the jump every minute to keep the orders from piling up. He is widely known and popular in the trade as well as in his home town.

but Mr. Hill said he was not certain that he would introduce it, as he was not yet sure of its superiority.

I saw the new gold medal rose, Mme. Edouard Herriott (Pernet-Ducher), in bloom. It is a mammoth rose of an entirely new color, a warm nasturtium copper red. My only regret was that I could not secure any of it for another year.

A bench of Mrs. Geo. Sawyer roses was in full bloom. I was charmed with its color, as well as with its strong growth and freedom of bloom. So strong a grower has seldom been seen. I shall test it in the field this season.

Mme. Chas. Lutaud is a new yellow rose that pleased me much. It is a real yellow with a chrome tint, is of good size and a strong grower.

Helen Taft is a new variety of rose originated in the government conservatories at Washington, D. C., and is quite promising. It is between a pink and a cerise and is of large size. It is of the Maryland type, but appears to be a better rose. It is not yet ready for distribution.

G. Manns is one of Mr. Hill's seedling roses, a cross between Richmond and Rhea Reid. It is a fine red.

No. 1,006 is a seedling that is much like Antoine Rivoire. The latter has always been a favorite rose with me, but the seedling impressed me as being better in every way.

No. 694 is a rose that looks much like Frau Karl Druschki, but is not so full of thorns. It is blooming for the first time and it is too early to tell its value.

Floyd Bralliar.

Albany, N. Y.—The bill backed by the Federation of Floral Clubs, providing for an appropriation of $60,000 for experiment greenhouses at Cornell, was introduced in the state legislature February 3.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market was steady and unchanged last week, and quotations continue on the same level as this week opens, but with a tendency downward. American Beauties have retreated from the dollar level to 60 cents for the best, quality also deteriorating considerably. All other roses remain at the levels of the last two weeks, but the short supply can no longer be depended on to keep the market steady.

Few carnations sold last week at over $2 per hundred; none, in fact, except the few specialties that are being introduced this season. Many carnations sold in large lots last week as low as 75 cents per hundred. Lilies, when perfect, have touched 12 cents, but $10 per hundred was high mark on Saturday. Some inferior stock fell as low as 5 cents, small and short-stemmed, however. Violets do not often climb above 30 cents, and growers of them must feel that way. These do be troublous times for the blue queen and the color seems most appropriate. Orchids still are unappreciated. The wholesale figure has been 35 cents for the best. There likely will be no rise until nearly Easter. Cypripediums are few and gardenias are going down. Acacia is here. Callas are now abundant and sell at from 60 cents a dozen up to $1.25. Valley can be bought for $3 per hundred. Of freesias, narcissi and daffodils there is no end. Daisies, sweet peas, forget-me-nots and wallflowers are all of excellent quality and abundant.

Club Meeting.

There was an attendance of eighty at the meeting of the Florists' Club February 10, when the following were elected to membership:

Charles F. Meyer, H. B. McKnight, Hervie C. Harris, Wesley B. Leach, John J. Gunther, James Deans, David Fuerstenberg, Peter Jacobsen, Alex. I. Anderson, D. Irving Deans, Charles Arnold, Henry B. Siebrecht, George L. Freeman, Frederick Cowperthwait, Marshall Crissman, John Hall, John White, Jr., and I. Warwick Smith. There were three resignations.

Discussion concerning the entertainment of the trade visitors to the National Flower Show occupied the greater part of the evening. Those who spoke at some length were Messrs. Weathered, Philpott, Ebel, Duckham, Smith, Totty, Bunyard, Simpson, Marshall and Traendly, but many others had something to say. Over $1,000 already has been subscribed. C. H. Totty, chairman of the committee in charge of the great exhibition, made a splendid address. He predicted an attendance of 20,000 the first evening the show is open. C. C. Trepel has bought 7,000 tickets for the opening night.

A. Farenwald, of Philadelphia, was present and spoke briefly. W. R. Pierson, of Cromwell, was called home by telegram and was unable to present the paper he had been expected to read. M. C. Ebel, who is some publicity man himself, read a paper on "The Publicity Propaganda."

Resolutions on the death of Alexander Hogg were read and approved. Messrs. Fenrich, Miller and Shaw were named as the committee to prepare resolutions on the deaths of Mrs. Blake and Mrs. Badgley.

Mr. McKnight showed his seedling carnation, Electra, which scored eighty-six points. The committee soon will see it growing in its New Jersey home. Northport and Matchless were other new varieties that were on view.

Various Notes.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, sailed for England February 11, on the Mauretania. He will return in time for the National Flower Show, accompanying the European visitors.

Herman Berchard took unto himself a better half February 5. C. C. Trepel was the best man. The happy couple are at Palm Beach.

Henry Schmidt, at Union Hill, N. J., still specializes on Primula obconica compacta. He has a fine stock for Easter.

L. W. Kervan writes from Welaka, Fla., that the swimming and fishing are fine.

The first annual supper of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society will be held at Germania hall, New Rochelle, Tuesday, February 18, at 7 p. m. Bowling begins at 2 p. m.

Thursday, February 20, the annual Greek and American florists' ball will be held at Tuxedo hall, Fifty-eighth street and Third avenue. Messrs. Nicholas and Fellouris assure me this will outshine any of its predecessors. Last year over 2,000 attended. Both wholesalers and retailers in large numbers indulge in this festivity.

Badgley, Riedel & Meyer were displaying Gladiolus Blushing Bride in their windows last week.

The first floor of the Coogan building witnessed some exciting foot races last week, participated in by two of the old-timers. Honors, it is said, were about even.

It is reported that the greenhouses of Ordenez Bros., of Madison, N. J., were burned February 6 and some valuable orchids destroyed.

Edward Sceery, of Paterson, N. J., was burned out at 10 a. m. February 6 and at 3 p. m. was ready for business in his new store. Nothing is too rapid for Jersey this year.

The plant growers sent H. C. Steinhoff to represent them at the State Federation meeting at Ithaca February 12. Quite a number of our prominent members were present. Harry Bunyard lectured on "Twentieth Century Horticulture."

Fred Smythe is enjoying his annual trip to Europe.

Robert MacNiff, of the MacNiff Horticultural Co., is comfortably settled in his new store on Vesey street. Auctions will begin about March 10. The seed department of this enterprise is busy. The two upper floors of the big building have been let for storage.

William Plumb is now manager of the Bound Brook Nursery Co., Bound Brook, N. J.

Wm. Turner, of Oceanic, N. J., will read his paper on the culture of orchids at Elberon, N. J., March 3, before the Elberon Horticultural Society.

Max Schling is much appreciated by the National Flower Show committee for his enterprise in taking space for his intended exhibits in the retail cut flower section.

Wm. Trumpore, of J. H. Small & Sons, is convalescing after a serious operation at the French hospital.

Manager Foley, of Lecakes & Co., says the "To let" sign above the firm's store does not refer to the green goods enterprise.

Moore, Hentz & Nash are offering a silver cup valued at $50 as one of the rose prizes at the National Flower Show.

The fall exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York will be held October 31 to November 4, at the American Museum of Natural History. It is hoped the dates of other fall shows will not conflict, and so this early notice is given.

McKinley day, notwithstanding considerable local newspaper advertising and window publicity, did not materialize the widespread interest anticipated. The problem of creating public interest is still unsolved.

The plant growers held their annual dinner January 29, at the Louis Martin banquet hall. Louis Dupuy is president. Messrs. Farquhar, Pierson, Roland and Siebrecht were the speakers of the evening. Miss Dupuy gave several selections on the piano and an excellent vaudeville performance added novelty to the occasion. Secretary Siebrecht was presented with a watch fob and locket studded with diamonds in recognition of long and faithful service. Dancing closed the evening's enjoyment. The committee was Julius Roehrs, Alfred Zeller and Herman Schoelzel. The monthly meeting of the association was held February 7.

J. Austin Shaw.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The market this week has been fair, although the extremely cold weather the last couple of days made things a little dead. Stock has been arriving in fine shape and in good quantity, except that carnations have been a little scarce. The Lenten season does not appear to be causing the slump that was feared. This is probably due to the increasing use of flowers as valentines, and St. Valentine's day comes during Lent this year. The trade is making a special effort and display for this day and producing some pretty and catchy novelties.

Various Notes.

George T. Boucher has had a number of big decorating jobs lately. Among the largest were the firemen's ball, at the Armory, and the auto show, at Exposition park. Besides the extra big jobs, he has been having his full share of funeral work. For his St. Valentine's day trade he had a large supply of Scotch heather and bleeding heart. The Scotch heather he also will use for Easter trade. He is expecting to soon start building a new house, at Brighton, for the growing of sweet peas, etc.

H. P. Neun has been showing a fine specimen of wistaria in his window.

J. B. Keller Sons have been showing a number of things, this week, that are somewhat out of the ordinary, for the Rochester trade. The center of attraction was a fine, large acacia, in full bloom. They had quite a display of Japanese cherry and crabapples, which were flowered in their greenhouses. They are also having a good cut from their own orchids. They have recently been putting out a new wrinkle for table decoration. It is a shallow glass dish filled with water, on one side of which is what appears to be an orchid plant, or some spring plant, in full bloom, while floating on the water are a couple of blooms and leaves. On the edge of the dish is a little artificial bird, or in the water a few little goldfish. Their window this week is decorated with a fountain pond, in the center of a green bank set with orchids and sweet peas.

H. E. Wilson's greenhouses are in fine shape for Easter trade. For his St. Valentine's day trade he put out a number of pots of red and white hyacinths and red tulips with white hyacinths.

H. J. Head is expected out of the hospital February 10. He will then go to stay with friends, in the country, for two or three weeks.

Visitors: Mr. Coe, of D. M. Ferry & Co., and E. H. Kipp, who has charge of the greenhouse department of the Burt Olney Canning Co., at Medina and Albion, N. Y. S. A.

At the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Florist Association, held at the residence of Mrs. John Dunbar, February 4, the following officers were chosen for the year: President, Mrs. Charles Suhr; vice-president, Mrs. Fred Vick; secretary, Mrs. C. F. Boland; treasurer, Mrs. E. Fry. The next meeting will be held on the afternoon of March 4 at the home of Mrs. R. F. Nagle, 17 Vick Park B.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

The fact that it is Lent has not been noticed by the local florists, so far as their business is concerned, for trade is keeping up wonderfully well. Prices, too, are quite good. Roses are still quite scarce, although the supply seems a little heavier than it has been. White lilacs are to be had in profusion, and this holds true of other blooming plants. These are augmented by pots of tulips and jonquils in large quantities, although some of the leading florists around the national capital have ceased producing bulbous stock for the reason that they cannot see where they get anything like a fair return from it. The supply of sweet peas is heavy, but they are selling well at from $5 to $10 per thousand. Carnations are not coming into the market in sufficient quantities to fill the demand. The supply and demand for Harrisii and calla lilies are about equal. The orchid market is steady. Locally grown lupines and snapdragons put in an appearance last week. The demand for these varieties of flowers has materially increased in this city, for use in table decorations.

Club Meeting.

Nominations for officers to serve for the ensuing year was the principal order of business at the February meeting of the Florists' Club. The election, which will take place at the March meeting, promises to be an exciting one, for the members will be called upon to select one man for each of the offices from the slate, which is as follows:

For president: David G. Grillbortzer
O. A. C. Oehmler, Otto Bauer.

For vice-president: Otto Bauer,
George Cooke.

For secretary: Elmer C. Mayberry, George Dalglish.

For treasurer: William F. Gude.

For two trustees, each to serve for three years: David Bisset, Peter Bisset, John Anderson, William H. Ernest, R. S. Jenkins, John Gutman.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, was present to point out the good features of the new roses Milady and Mrs. Charles Russell.

Considerable interest was shown when a report was made by N. S. Hammer, for the committee which has in charge the preparations for the trip to New York, and a number of those present signified their intention of attending. It is believed that a special train can be obtained. It also is planned to have the entire delegation of Washingtonians stop at the same hotel while in New York, so that a pleasant trip can be counted upon.

Considerable discussion was had on several purely local topics, following which an adjournment was taken and the talks continued while the buffet luncheon was being disposed of.

Various Notes.

The automobile dealers of the District of Columbia are this week holding a carnival at their respective stores, which are decorated with flowers, bunting and flags. A silver loving cup is a prize offered to the firm having the best decorated store, with the result that some good business is falling to the trade here.

John McCabe, son of M. J. McCabe, of Anacostia, had a narrow escape from fatal injury last week, when the horse which he was driving ran away, throwing him to the pavement. One arm was broken at the wrist and his face was quite badly cut and bruised. Erick Gebhardt and Bernhardt Kiplinger, who were with him, got off with merely a bad shaking up.

Edward Schmid is showing some edible snails which he states can readily be propagated by florists to good advantage. He states that these are in fair demand in this and other cities, particularly New York, and that the raising of these is quite an industry in France. C. L. L.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade was unusually heavy last week. A large proportion of the business was in the line of funeral work. A big lot of loose flowers were moved and there was plenty of stock to go the rounds.

Roses have been quite plentiful and of good quality. Killarney and White Killarney are the mainstays, with a few Richmond, Ward and Sunburst. The call for Beauties has been rather light, with the supply about equal to the demand. Carnations have been quite plentiful in the last two weeks and several stores had special sales on them in the latter part of last week. Sweet peas are more plentiful and the demand at times uses them all, though occasionally a few go to waste. Bulb stock cuts quite a figure now in the receipts and there is plenty of nearly everything in that line. The sale of narcissi has been away ahead of that of other seasons, while single jonquils and daffodils also get their share of attention. Tulips are rather short-stemmed yet, but otherwise the quality is satisfactory and a good number are moved right along. Valley has been rather scarce and the demand rather light.

The sale of pot plants has been large of late. A good number of azaleas, cyclamens, etc., are cleaned out and quite a few ferns have found buyers. The florists in general report business highly satisfactory and all look for a big trade at Easter.

G. H. Woodrow is still improving slowly. J. M.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Nothing special has happened this week to arouse more than ordinary activity at either the wholesale houses or retail flower stores. With an abundant supply of cut flowers in all varieties, excepting roses and occasionally lilies, there was no trouble to fill orders. Business was good, but receipts of carnations were ahead of the demand. And then such an influx of splits! It seems that every grower has more than usual of these.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held February 6 and was most successful in every respect. Having announced a carnation exhibition, the attendance was the best for many a day. Quite a number of out-of-town visitors were on hand to help make it a banner meeting. Albert Hare was proposed for membership. A committee of three was appointed by the chair to draw up resolutions of condolence to be forwarded to the family of the late Fred C. Schmeling. It was voted to hold a rose and miscellaneous show at the March 6 meeting. Any plants or cut flowers except carnations can be exhibited at that time.

The quality of carnations exhibited was fine. A vase of fifty The Herald, on long, stiff stems, showed up to the advantage of the Chicago Carnation Co. A vase of twenty-five Commodore, sent by the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., came through in perfect condition and made a favorable impression on those present. The C. C. Pollworth Co. exhibited three different white seedlings under number, all of which looked good and undoubtedly will come to the front in course of time.

Prize certificates were awarded as follows:

On Enchantress—Nic Zweifel, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; Mueller Greenhouse Co., third.

On white—Nic Zweifel, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second and third.

On red—C. C. Pollworth Co., first, with Beacon; Nic Zweifel, second, with Bonfire; Mueller Greenhouse Co., third, with Beacon.

On pink—Nic Zweifel, first, on Gloriosa; C. C. Pollworth Co., second, on Mrs. Ward. Both vases showed the varieties at their best.

Other exhibits were: Gust Pohl, Enchantress; Heitman-Oestreicher Co., Enchantress, White Enchantress, Beacon and Bonfire.

James Livingstone, gardener for the Vogel estate, exhibited orchids and a specimen plant of Begonia Cincinnati; his exhibit, The Herald and Commodore, were awarded honorable mention. The judges were James Matthewson, Sheboygan, and A. T. Pyfer, of Chicago.

Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Various Notes.

The Second Ward bank, which moved into its new home at Second and West Water streets, was the recipient of many floral offerings February 5.

The Currie Bros. Co. had the church and house decorations for the Grey wedding last week. Wm. B. Currie, of this firm, has been appointed vice-president of the S. A. F. for the Badger State.

Otto Sylvester and son, Alfred, of Oconomowoc, were guests at the club meeting last week, as was Mr. Kuehne, gardener for the Pabst estate.

Wm. and Fred Manke, of North Milwaukee, were in Chicago last week, on business and pleasure.

P. L. McKee, of the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, was a recent visitor. E. O.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Last week was the first genuine week of winter experienced this season. The cold snap had a decided effect on the coal pile and also produced a decided improvement in the appearance of stock, as the drop in temperature was also accompanied by bright days. Business, the fore part of the week, was good, with an exceptionally good demand for corsage bouquets and party decorations. A good many people were putting their time to advantage before the approach of Lent. All through the week, the demand for funeral flowers was fine. Stock on the whole is none too plentiful. Both roses and carnations seem to be off crop. Bulbous stock and blooming plants are helping out wonderfully, thus enabling the florist to fill his orders to the satisfaction of his customers.

St. Valentine's day seems to be bringing in some nice cut flower and corsage orders, as the use of flowers for valentines seems to be getting more popular each year.

Various Notes.

One would have thought that February 8 was carnation day, judging from the number of carnations worn on the street. The Fruit and Flower Mission was responsible for this condition, they having stationed school girls on the street corners with large armfuls of carnations, which were sold at 10 cents each. The receipts went to benefit this charity. The carnations were furnished by the various florists in the city.

The annual policemen's ball was a large event last week, at Memorial hall. E. E. Schaefer, of the Advance Floral Co., did the decorating.

Warren G. Matthews is busy getting the new addition to his Third street store in first-class shape. He will keep his Main street store open until after Easter.

The cold snap last week wrought considerable damage to some of the decorative plants of the Heiss Co. that were being brought in from a decoration.

Mrs. B. Haschke tells us that she picked a fine lot of violets for her St. Valentine's day trade.

J. J. Lampert and wife, of Xenia, O., were in town last week. Mrs. Edward Lampert, of the Engle Floral Co., of Xenia, accompanied them. She tells us of a recent purchase of a fine automobile, which in itself speaks well for trade.

Florence and Catherine Phebus are recovering from a severe attack of the grip.

Mrs. Blakeslee, of Chicago, mother of W. G. Matthews, with whom she has been spending the winter, is critically ill with pneumonia.

Chas. Schwake, with Chas. F. Meyer,

New York, en route to Columbus, O., last week, had an hour and a half lay-over in Dayton.

Louis Schellhaas, of Miamisburg, O., was in town this week.

H. P. Smith, of Piqua, was a caller last week.

The Dayton Florists' Club held its monthly meeting at the establishment of J. F. Young, February 6. After the business session a social was enjoyed.

Jos. I. Schaefer has added to his delivery equipment, a new light delivery wagon, which makes his delivery service ideal.

J. W. Rodgers is still carrying his arm in a sling. In addition to blood poisoning, he has several large boils on his arm. R. A. L.

CLEVELAND, O.

Club Meeting.

Novelty night at the Florists' Club brought out the crowd, about seventy-five growers and retailers being on hand to view the stock. The judges, Robert George, George W. Smith and H. A. Hart, handed in the following report:

The exhibit of George A. Barber, Beloit, O., is a creditable display of sweet peas, carnations and daffodils. Special mention to a vase of White Wonder carnations.

Charles Bartels, a vase of Freesia Purity, exceptionally well grown, worthy of comment.

J. M. Gasser Co., an exceptionally fine display of sweet peas in variety, remarkable for size of flower and length and strength of stem; a vase of Tulip Flamingo, a well colored variety showing great substance and form, also a vase of Prosperity tulip, an improved La Reine, worthy of mention.

J. D. Cockcroft, Northport, N. Y., a vase of the new dark pink carnation, Northport. This variety showed remarkably well; worthy of honorable mention.

Scott Bros., Elmsford, N. Y., three vases of new carnations, most noticeable among which was Wm. Eccles, a fine, large, bright red with exceptionally long, strong stems, well worthy of mention; also British Triumph, a fine deep crimson, and Lady Northcliffe, a fine flesh pink, a fine flower with good calyx.

G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, N. H., a vase of Silver Pink snapdragon, a beautiful variety and highly recommended by the committee.

S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Philadelphia, a vase of Carnation Philadelphia, a beautiful medium pink, exceptionally large flower on long, remarkably stiff stems, with good calyx, highly commended and considered by the committee as one of the best on exhibition.

S. M. Merwarth & Bros., Easton, Pa., a vase of Carnation Comfort, a new red with a long stem, attracting much attention.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., a vase of Carnation Commodore, a beautiful shade of red, large and well proportioned flower of good substance, with a stem that is all that could be desired; honorable mention.

Dailledouze Bros., Brooklyn, N. Y., a vase of Carnation Enchantress Supreme, a decided improvement over Enchantress, of which it is a sport.

Cleveland Cut Flower Co., three vases of carnations, Washington, sport of Enchantress and Rosette, all exceptionally well grown. Sport of Enchantress shows a decided improvement over its parent.

Visitors: Albert Pochelon, of L. Bemb Floral Co., and Robt. Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit; Wm. Scott, Elmsford, N. Y.; I. Rosnosky, Philadelphia; George Barber, Beloit, O.

A lunch was spread after the meeting and everyone voted novelty night a success. F. A. F.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

Favored by pleasant weather, this year's carnival proved to be as gorgeous as any previous one. The yearly capital of Rex was lavishly decorated and thousands of visitors from all parts of the country made the hospitable Crescent City their home for several days. The festivities continued day and night, from January 30 to Ash Wednesday, featured by elegant receptions during the day and grand balls at night. It surely was a strenuous time for the many retailers, with plant and flower decorations every day, besides the furnishing of elegant bouquets, made of the choicest cut flowers, for the queens and maids of honor of the different balls given by the many carnival organizations. Orchids, roses, valley, violets and yellow narcissi were the flowers mostly used.

Home-grown bulbous stock and valley are plentiful. Roman hyacinths and Paper White narcissi, as well as sweet peas, have been blooming outdoors since January. The crop of single, outdoor-grown violets was enormous, but, on account of the warm weather, was of short duration. Up to date we have had no killing frost, and such plants as latanias, nephrolepis, crotons, etc., have never stopped growing. Roses, as well as many other plants usually dormant at this time of the year, are putting forth new growth and fresh buds. The growers and landscape gardeners naturally do not favor such mild weather, for, as a rule, there is more demand for all kinds of plants after a severe winter than under the present conditions.

Various Notes.

U. J. Virgin is well satisfied with last season's business, especially during carnival time.

The Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. is doing a big business. During the last week the whole force was in a continuous rush.

C. W. Eichling filled several large orders for exclusive weddings and receptions during the last month.

A. Alot reports a steady increase in the cut flower business.

Charles Eble's store always looks attractive and his plant and cut flower trade keeps him constantly busy.

Peter Chopin says that since he opened his new store business has increased considerably.

J. A. Newsham supplied nearly every local florist with his home-grown orchids and he reports a large sale during the last month.

F. J. Reyes & Co. expressed themselves as satisfied with their carnival business.

Mrs. Carrie Rehm's show houses are always attractive. She reports that this winter's trade has been equal to that of any previous season. R. E.

OBITUARY.

John H. Walzl.

John H. Walzl, formerly well known in the eastern states as a landscape gardener and civil engineer, died of paralysis January 29, at his home in De Beque, Colo. For several years he was chief engineer of the Roland Park Co., at Baltimore, Md., and in that capacity he superintended the sluicing away of the hill between Roland Park and Homewood. About six years ago he married Miss Mary McColgan, a cousin of Charles C. McColgan, of Baltimore. He removed from Baltimore to De Beque about three years ago, to develop a large apple orchard of which he was owner. He is survived by his wife, three children, one brother, S. E. Walzl, of Baltimore, and a sister, Mrs. Ella Clark, of New Zealand.

Mrs. Jacob Elicker.

Mrs. Sophia Drews Elicker, wife of Jacob Elicker, Homestead, Pa., died February 8 and was buried February 10. She was the daughter of a florist. Her father, Frederick Drews, still has a small establishment, where, before her marriage, she assisted him. After her marriage, she and her husband started in business in Homestead and built up quite an extensive trade in cut flowers and plants. She had been ill for about a year, but never felt that she could afford to confess it until the advanced stage of her illness forced her to do so about two weeks ago. Besides her husband, she leaves one son and two married daughters, all connected with the flower business. To the family is extended the sympathy of all the trade.

Michael Crowley.

The death is reported of Michael Crowley, at Newburyport, Mass. Mr. Crowley was born in Ireland about eighty years ago, coming to this country when a young man. He went to California about 1855, and then to the Columbia river, in Oregon, where he found gold. Abandoning the claim, he returned to California and had the novel experience of seeing some of his own dust coined at the mint in San Francisco. He removed to Newburyport about forty years ago and followed the gardening profession until a year ago, when failing health caused him to retire from active life. Three daughters and two sons survive him. The funeral was held February 8 from the family home on Howard street, being largely attended.

A. F. Furbush.

Albourn F. Furbush, of Lynn, Mass., died February 3, at his home, 518 Chatham street, of pneumonia, after an illness of eight days. He was one of the best known florists of the vicinity, having as his patrons many of the wealthy residents of Nahant and Lynn, for whom he had furnished flowers and kept their flower beds in bloom for the last twenty-seven years. He was born in Lynn, August 28, 1864, and had always resided there. Of a genial temperament, he had a host of friends both in Lynn and Nahant. He was a charter member of Winnepurkit Tribe of Red Men and Glenmere lodge of Odd Fellows.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Annie E. Furbush, six daughters, Miss Lottie M. Furbush, Mrs. Effie Hall, Mrs. Shirley Annis, Miss Annie E. Furbush, Miss Grace C. Furbush and Miss Zelma R. Furbush, and four sons, Albourne F. Furbush, Jr., David H., Arthur Russell and Kenneth C. Furbush. He also leaves four sisters, Mrs. Jane Bailey, Mrs. Susan Young, Mrs. Mabel Burnham, of Lynn, and Mrs. Drucella Millick, of Milford, Mass.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

Club Meeting.

The Springfield Florists' Club held its monthly meeting in the rooms of the Commercial Club February 10. The business session was cut short in order to afford time for the address of the evening, which was delivered by Dr. V. G. A. Tressler, of the faculty of Wittenberg College, whose theme was "The City Beautiful in Europe." Extensive experience as a traveler has thoroughly qualified Dr. Tressler to handle such a subject in a masterful manner. At the close of the address a general discussion was participated in and questions freely asked by the members and readily answered by the lecturer.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Dr. Tressler, after which the entertainment committee invited all present to partake of a buffet lunch, and while disposing of this various subjects were informally considered until a late hour.

Various Notes.

The shipping season for plants has opened in good shape, having suffered only one recent interruption by reason of severely cold weather. The growers as a rule have ample and well assorted stocks and the start already indicates that the oncoming season will bring an unprecedented demand for roses and bedding plants. G. Dale.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

For the last week business has been unusually quiet, due partly to the extremely cold weather, with the mercury frequently at the zero mark. Bulb stock is commencing to come in pretty well. Roses are more abundant and of better color.

Various Notes.

The Toledo Florists' Club held its annual show at Peck's hall, February 11. Miss Patten has returned from a much needed rest at French Lick Springs.

F. J. Farney, of the M. Rice Co., visited Toledo. Mr. Nelson, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., was also a caller.

H. F. P.

YONKERS, N. Y.

The Yonkers Horticultural Society held its regular monthly meeting in Hollywood Inn on Friday, February 7, with President W. H. Waite in the chair. The flower show committee reported a balance of $47 from the fall show. Two new members were elected.

As there was no exhibition and no lecture, questions were invited from the members and an enjoyable and instructive hour followed in the discussion of different methods of growing vegetables in coldframes and hotbeds, with references, also, to the habits of growth of trees and shrubs. The executive committee has promised to have an essay for the next meeting, and Robert Cochrane has offered a prize for the most meritorious exhibit. So it is hoped the members will turn out in good force and bring some of their best products to fill the exhibition table on Friday, March 7. W. M.

TULIPS FAILING TO FLOWER.

As we are having considerable trouble with our early tulips, we would be thankful for any information you might give as to the cause. I will try to give you the culture they have been subjected to. The varieties are La Reine and Yellow Prince. We received our bulbs about November 10, panned them about ten to a 10-inch pan. We placed them out in a trench ten inches deep, watered them thoroughly and covered them with ten inches of soil. After the first freezing we covered them about eight inches deep with straw horse manure and leaves. I am certain the manure did not heat. We brought in the first batch of La Reine December 28 and placed them under a bench below the steam pipes in a temperature of 80 degrees to draw up the stems, having the front closed up with burlap. While there are two or three good flowers to the pan, with stems six inches long, the remaining ones kept about two inches long and are blind. The soil we used was an ordinary good mum soil. The bulbs were purchased from an up-to-date wholesale house. I would like to know where I made the mistake, if there is one, as I have forced these tulips for ten years and am at a loss as to the failure. I wish also to say that the pans were full of roots, which appeared white and healthy. They could not have been kept too wet where they were covered, as this fall was exceptionally dry. A. G.

The two principal causes for your tulips doing so unsatisfactorily are: first, too late planting, and secondly, too early forcing for late planted bulbs. Your soil and general treatment up to housing time was no doubt correct, but November 10 is a late date to place tulips in the soil, even for mid-season forcing. Successful bulb growers get practically all their La Reine and Yellow Prince into the soil in September and never later than the early part of October.

While the practice of burying tulips and other bulbs may have some things to commend it, a far better plan is to store them on the floor of a cellar or pit, where there will be no need to bury them in deep soil and protect with straw, and where they can be comfortably taken out in all weathers and watered at any time they may need it. We have yet to see better, or for that matter, as fine bulbs stored outdoors as those which have had some frostproof roof over them.

Tulips when housed for early forcing should be sprouted two to three inches and then be drawn up in a dark, warm case. Your bulbs cannot have been sufficiently sprouted if planted at so late a date as November 10. C. W.

Charles City, Ia.—Arthur M. Briscoe says that trade is excellent, the winter having been one of the best in many years.

A GOOD PAIR.

The trade is saying many pleasant things of The Review's Album of Designs, the second edition of which recently was issued:

Enclosed is my check for $4, of which $3 is payment for the Albums of Designs, good for the money, and $1 for another year of The Review, which I couldn't get along without.—Arthur M. Briscoe, Charles City, Ia., February 6, 1913.

Woonsocket, R. I.—Edward Stanley had a narrow escape in a big wind storm that carried away the awning from his store just at an exceedingly busy time.

Hilo, Hawaii.—C. J. Austin, who for the last year and a half has been proprietor of a market garden near Honolulu, is now making arrangements to start in business here as a florist, and one of his first preparations was to subscribe for The Review. From 1900 to 1903 he was employed as nurseryman at the government nursery in Honolulu, and since that time he has been engaged more or less in experimental work with both flowers and vegetables.

under an order issued by the post-office department last week.

CHARLES WILLIS WARD evidently is enjoying life in the south, to judge from the illustrations in Outdoor World, the handsomely printed New York magazine, of which he is president.

THERE is a growing disposition on the part of cut flower producers to find out just what it costs per square foot of bench to operate a greenhouse, and just what each crop is worth per foot.

HE is the wise advertiser who sees to it that complete satisfaction follows every sale—but the way to do it is not by replacing stock or refunding money; instead, see that the stock gives satisfaction in the first place.

SAYS a man who isn't neglectful:
"Care, in a business, may almost amount to monopoly in that business." It's worth thinking about.

THERE have of late been an unusual number of complaints of the non-arrival of The Review. It must be the fault of the post-office, as the papers are mailed regularly. Any subscriber who misses a copy will confer a favor on the publishers by writing for another.

TURN back to last week's issue of The Review and read again the address of Wallace R. Pierson as delivered before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia. It is without doubt the most accurate summing up of trade conditions ever typed and in it there is food for thought for everyone who looks to the florists' business for a livelihood.

THE LITTLE LINERS.

This week The Review breaks all records for Classified plant advertising, although the high water mark is not usually reached until April or May. The department has increased at the rate of nearly a page a week for the last four weeks.

The interesting part of this Classified department is that the advertisements come practically unsolicited, from those who have used them before with satisfactory results, or from subscribers who are in the habit of consulting the Classified ads when in need of stock and who naturally try them when they have some little surplus of their own they want to move.

Here is the how:

Please discontinue the petunia ad; more orders than I can fill.—B. B. Pohlmann, Rockford, Ill., February 5, 1913.

Please discontinue my pansy ad; all sold out;
had fine business.—J. H. Krone, Jr., Fort Smith, Ark., February 5, 1913.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The social season prior to Ash Wednesday closed with a good run of business, but nothing to disturb the equilibrium of the market. There was the customary slump with the arrival of Lent, and the week just closed has been extremely dull, appearing, probably, duller than it really was because of extremely large quantities of stock on the market. Some do not agree with the statement, but the consensus of opinion is that there never before have been so many flowers on the market in the first two weeks of February as has been the case this year.

There is no scarcity of anything.
Some of the wholesalers have few short roses, but the special demand for these has subsided and most of the houses state they now are able to fill all the orders that come in. There is an abundance of long roses, although the supply has not yet begun to affect prices adversely. Beauties are not over-abundant. Strictly first-class long stock is commanding a good price, because no large proportion of the receipts answer this description. The supply of medium and short Beauties is larger than it has been at any time since Christmas.

Carnations have come into full crop and during the last week have afforded the wholesalers much trouble. Apparently the out-of-town retailers mostly have local supplies, and city trade has not been sufficient to consume the heavy

WINTER-BLOOMING BUTTERFLY PEAS

HERE is something that you cannot get in quantity anywhere else in the United States, but that everybody wants. All the big sweet pea specialists have been working for a Winter-blooming Spencer. In a few years nothing else can be sold in the cut flower markets. We are now able to offer the flowers in considerable quantities; the true Spencer (Butterfly) type; pink; stems 12 to 18 inches, $2.00 per 100. This is our first announcement of these and we anticipate an extremely heavy demand, so we recommend ordering in advance of day of shipment.

Special fancy Blanche Ferry, $1.50 per 100. Good stock of other varieties, $1.00.

(There are plenty of Peas to be had at 50c to 75c per 100, if you can use the common kind.)

ORCHIDS

You will find our Cattleyas the most satisfactory you can use. We pride ourselves on the quality. The supply is so large and steady you can get all you need at any time. Use them in your corsage work and watch your business grow.

VIOLETS

We handle the cream of the crops, Hudson River doubles and fragrant home-grown singles. We believe we have the largest Violet trade of any house west of New York, built up by years of painstaking care to see that our stock always is the best.

VALLEY

We handle Bruns' famous Chicago Market Brand Cut Valley exclusively. Can always supply.

FREESIA

A large crop of fine Freesia now on; stock that will surely please.

CARNATIONS

There is an abundance of Carnations in this market, but there are not so very many that are strictly good. It is not what you pay but what you get that determines value—and the more you think about it the more certain you are to order your Carnations of Amling.

LILIES

A large crop of good lilies now ready; can supply in any quantity.

BULB STOCK

Plenty of Jonquils, Tulips, Daffodils, Romans, first-class quality.

BEAUTIES

We are particularly strong just now on short to medium Beauties. This is stock that with you will sell at sight—it will please your trade. We also can supply long-stemmed Beauties that you will recognize as a distinctly superior grade. We make it possible for you always to get good Beauties in this market—but why not order direct?

FANCY ROSES

Our cut comes from double the number of plants we were selling from at this date last year. The stock is of the high standard on which we have built our Rose business. Mostly medium to long.

receipts. The result has been that the outlet for carnations has been through the special sales channels, and growers know to their sorrow that when department stores are getting the bulk of the crop, averages cannot be otherwise than low. The wholesalers' point of view is that when a big lot of stock is shipped out of town the local market is strengthened thereby and averages made better than they would have been had the large quantity been left at the mercy of the local buyers.

The most unhappy man at the moment, however, is the wholesaler whose consignments consist principally of bulbous stock. It is so plentiful everywhere that there is no special demand. Shipping orders do not call for many bulbous flowers, because the out-of-town buyers have a home supply, and local buyers prefer to take their local stock off of a wholesaler who can supply them with roses, Beauties, or other stock more in request. Consequently, the wholesaler whose receipts are principally Romans, jonquils, Paper Whites, daffodils, freesias and tulips, finds it difficult to make an average that satisfies his growers when the neighborhood comparisons are made.

Violets have sold poorly this season, but cleaned up February 8, selling much better than in the middle of the week. This week St. Valentine's is expected to make considerable extra demand, quite a few orders having been booked. The average day's receipts are now forty to forty-five boxes of New York violets, approximately 80,000 to 90,000, with something more than half as many locally grown singles, making a total of 125,000 to 140,000 violets per day to be disposed of.

Cattleyas are again more plentiful and prices are slightly easier. Valley is abundant, and so are Easter lilies. Occasionally a bunch of stevia still is seen. Bouvardia is gone. There is a little mignonette. The principal increase in supply has been on sweet peas, which are now coming in heavily. There are all kinds, stems three inches to eighteen inches long. As usual, the best grade sells most rapidly.

Ferns are working up to the usual February price.

The Chicago Florists' Club held its regular monthly meeting at the Union February 6, President Guy French in the chair. Harry Balsley, of Detroit, and Benjamin Keppell were elected to membership. Most of the evening was given to routine and financial affairs. Mr. Page, an Englishman who is acquiring a knowledge of American ways through employment with the Poehlmann Bros. Co., was called on for a talk and contrasted English and American business methods. He is not one of those who think the older country is behind.

Quite a few florists went out to Oak Park February 8 to attend the opening of the new building of the State Bank of Oak Park, of which E. C. Amling is president. The officers and directors and their wives were the reception committee and the best people of the suburb attended in large numbers. There were flowers everywhere, music, refreshments and souvenirs. It was one of the social events of the season. The bank was organized eight months ago and has had much success, having now $355,000 of resources. The new building, opened Saturday, already is known as the model small bank of the country. It is a gem. The main banking room is marble. The ladies', consultation, coupon rooms, etc., are Circassian walnut. President Amling's private room and the directors' room are all mahogany, and there is nothing finer in any of the big banks downtown.

M. C. Gunterberg comments on the improved outlet for violets at the close of last week, but says that for a long time, if prices were not made attractive to buyers, they never returned, indicating that if the buyer went far enough he always could find a place where he could make his own prices.

Bert Budlong has returned from Cramer, Ind., where he has spent many weeks, and is feeling fine as the result of the treatment there.

Fritz Bahr has returned to Highland Park after a trip to southern California. He was there during the recent cold snap, but is enthusiastic over the climate and possibilities of the country.

In May, 1907, Pennock Bros. installed our one-ton machine to cool a cut-flower display refrigerator 16½ x 9 x 3½ ft. For over five years it has run practically without expense except for the cost of electric power and oil. Formerly it cost $500.00 yearly to ice this refrigerator. Now power to drive the Brunswick plant costs $300.00 a year. Any employee can run it. Charles Thorley, 562 5th Ave., New York City, is another big retailer who uses a Brunswick plant.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The first week of Lent has made little difference in the cut flower market. The fashionable local shops shortened their buying orders immediately upon the arrival of Ash Wednesday—all the sharp buyers asked for lower prices on the ground that Lent had come, but the wholesalers felt that with prices generally lower than usual this season they were not justified in dropping with the first touch of real winter weather. Their judgment proved correct, for, excepting two or three varieties of flowers, the market quickly absorbed the rather limited supply at last week's figures. Beauties fell—there was practically no local demand and little shipping, but with a decreased supply the Beauty market is recovering at the lower level. Other roses have increased in numbers; they are selling well, the shorts a grade easier. There have been plenty of Richmond, useful for the high school commencements, a novel feature for February. The fancy grade of Richmond usually seen at this season is scarce; most of the stock is of medium length and short. Carnations have held their own in price, but will not average so well as last week. Cattleyas are in oversupply; the buyer of 100 or more, ungraded, can get low prices. Daffodils continue to be the most plentiful flower on the market; their support is poorer than it was a week ago. Violets have strengthened a little, particularly the fine singles; the smaller receipts are thought to be due to the cold and to the approach of St. Valentine's day. There are no other special features to the market except an improved demand for ferns and leucothoe.

The Philadelphia Prize.

Adolph Farenwald, president of the American Rose Society, announced at the February meeting of the Florists'

Club that he proposed to offer a special prize from the rose growers of Philadelphia at the National Flower Show to be held in New York city April 5 to 12. This prize is to be awarded to the best seventy-five roses of any variety or varieties that the exhibitor selects, one sort or a dozen, it matters not, so there are seventy-five roses in each exhibit. All Philadelphia rose growers are invited to contribute $10 each to make a handsome trophy to be offered for the honor of the Quaker City. Subscriptions so far have been received from J. R. Andre, George Burton, G. E. Campbell, August Doemling, Adolph Farenwald, David Fuerstenberg, Victor Groshens, Joseph Heacock Co., Stephen Mortensen, Alexander B. Scott, John Stephenson, Edward Towill and Clarence Upton. Mr. Farenwald will be glad to receive subscriptions from any rose grower of this city who wishes to join in offering this prize.

Four New Roses Every Grower Will Want Next Year

IRISH FIRE FLAME

The dainty new single Rose, trimmest and sweetest little bud ever seen, and well named as to its lovely color. A Dickson seedling of strong, vigorous growth, very free, particularly during the Winter; color fiery crimson, shading to a rich orange salmon at the base; foliage a dark green, reverse side of leaf deep bronze; a new departure in Roses, a distinct novelty; beautiful and charming; a favorite wherever shown; nothing to compare with it. March and April delivery.

Mrs. Chas. Russell

A new American pedigree seedling. Of American Beauty size and fragrance; color, a lighter cerise that does not fade to blue, but to a lighter rose as the flowers age; a strong, vigorous grower; good, heavy stems; flowers carried erect; no weak necks; no blind wood like Beauty; very prolific, remarkably so considering its size. As tested in the various shows over the country this Fall, it has proved a wonderful keeper and established itself at once as a Rose of unusual merit, creating a sensation wherever shown and attracting not only the commercial man, but the public as well. Delivery after March 15th.

Milady

A strong, sturdy grower, excellent foliage; flowers large and double; opens perfectly at all seasons; similar to Richmond in color, although richer in color in bud form; shape of flower resembles Gen. Jacqueminot; very prolific; good keeper; the coming Red Rose. Grafted or own root, $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000.

Mrs. Geo. Shawyer

A free-flowering pink Rose; very highly recommended by some of our best rose growers; has been selling exceptionally well in the New York market this season. Grafted or own root, $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000.

early '80s, but the stock in them is as fine as anything to be found in a modern range. Henry I. Faust is a master in the art of lily growing; his stock shows what can be done by cultural skill. Of good height, clean, vigorous and with the buds showing, this is no small achievement for one of the earliest Easters on record. Mr. Faust grows Lilium multiflorum to perfection, with scarce a sign of rogues to mar their even similarity; lilies to bring pride to the heart of any grower.

Mr. Faust's method of starting his lilies is interesting. The soil is prepared. The pots, perhaps 10,000, are placed upright in solid phalanx, on a level piece of ground. A man with a barrow and shovel half fills them with soil. Then the bulbs are sorted. A man drops them in the pots, a good sized bulb to each pot, or two or three smaller ones. Two men follow him, planting the bulbs firmly in place. The man with the barrow and shovel completes the job by filling the pots with soil, leaving the rain to settle the soil. This work is

CHERRIES ARE RIPE WE HAVE THEM

MAKE A CHERRY DECORATION IN YOUR WINDOW. Use Cherries in all your work next week. It will stir people. You see if it doesn't. Nothing so patriotic just now as Cherries, and nothing smarter. TRY THEM.

EASTER MATS

An overdue steamer has just arrived with a large cargo of Easter goods, including a splendid lot of PORTO RICAN MATS—fresh stock, in all flower colors.

We hope that you will make it a point to come to see our Easter goods.
If that is not possible, then send for our "Silent Salesman."

two important vases of carnations, a beautiful pink believed to be superior to Enchantress, from Mrs. J. N. Eison, Columbia, S. C., staged by Edward Reid, and the fine cerise, Ruth, from the Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., staged by Eugene Bernheimer.

George Burton's new house will be 56x275 feet, to be planted with about 8,000 Beauties in raised benches. Other improvements include a new boiler, a 75-foot stack and a new packing room and ice-box. Mr. Burton expects to plant his whole place in Beauties, 28,000 in all. The entire cut is distributed by the Leo Niessen Co.

John R. Andre, of Doylestown, is another of the crack growers of the Leo Niessen Co. who contemplates building this season. He will add a house for Killarney.

Louis Fein will erect a greenhouse 32x100 feet at Audubon, N. Y., of King Construction Co. material.

Raymond Brunswick will have charge of the new mail order department of M. Rice Co. Mr. Brunswick says that a single mail brought orders for 2,000 wheat sheaves.

Stephen Ager spoke on dwarf fruit tree culture before the Germantown Horticultural Society February 10. James G. Scott, a past master in the art, led the debate.

The Robert Craig Co. is much pleased with the condition of its Easter stock. William P. Craig left for Pittsburgh February 10.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. received 239 cases on seven steamers this week.

Emil H. Gerschick finds his new Ford delivery car does the work of four teams.

George Augle points with pride to the superb sweet peas received by the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co.

A hitch prevented the opening of Joseph Joseph's branch store at Thirteenth and Market streets.

There was a star pool game before the February meeting at the Florists' Club's rooms, between Eugene Bernheimer, Robert A. Craig and Ralph G. Shrigley. The winner? Well, it was not a case of the first being last.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Last week's market proved to be the kind we have when there is more than an adequate supply and only an ordinary demand. The opening was good; everything sold. All stock of quality cleaned up at the close at prices varying from good to sacrifice values. During the intervening days everything was decidedly quiet. The demand for choice flowers as tokens of congratulation for the new judges who took their places on the common pleas and court of appeals benches was large February 10. American Beauties and other long stemmed roses were mostly used.

arrangements for Valentine's day. They all arranged for goodly supplies of valley, orchids, violets, sweet peas, red carnations and red roses.

If the present situation as to bulbous stock were taken as a criterion, an observer would immediately say that the demand for these flowers is on the wane in this market.

Various Notes.

The Cincinnati Florists' Society held its regular meeting at the rooms in the Flower market. Only routine business was transacted. This meeting was the thirty-seventh consecutive one for Alex. Ostendarp, the thirty-fifth for Charles H. Hoffmeister and the thirty-fourth for Otto H. Hoffmeister since they became members of the society. The other regulars there included Max Rudolph, A. C. Heckman, Jr., James Allen and Henry Schwarz.

C. E. Critchell reports having booked a large number of advance orders for valley, orchids and red carnations for Valentine's day.

E. G. Gillett's wire working force is being kept so busy by the inrush of orders that they can hardly keep up with the call.

Frank & Son's consignments of roses to L. H. Kyrk are, after a fortnight of small shipments, again getting back to their normal size, as other houses have come on crop.

P. J. Olinger supplied the retailers with most of the Beauties that were used at the installations of the various new members of the judiciary. Mr. Olinger is gratified with the results from his recent display advertisement of carnation cuttings in The Review. Within a week after the publication came out, practically all of his stock was sold.

Albert McCullough is sending good Dutch hyacinths to the J. M. McCullough's Sons Co.

It is stated locally that Myer Heller has withdrawn from the Hill-Heller Co. Much of his stock, however, is being sent to the stores.

LANCASTER, PA.

On the morning of January 30 twenty-two members of the Lancaster County Florists' Club visited the establishment of M. J. Brinton, at Christiana. Mr. Brinton is the successor of a worthy sire, who grew a variety of plants and flowers to perfection. The father is living in the original homestead and takes an active interest in the work, giving his big boy advice. The miscellaneous stock is kept in better shape than any such stock the writer ever saw. All manner of Easter stock is working itself into shape and a lot of general spring stock is coming along to fill the vacancies that Easter will leave. Mr. Brinton's carnation range is almost ideal and his Gloriosa altogether ideal. A bed of O. P. Bassett was absolutely without any imperfections; if this bed could be duplicated everywhere, all other beds would be relegated to the rubbish heap.

Mrs. Brinton surprised us with a fine lunch, and that it was fully appreciated goes without saying. She made an ideal hostess and was extended a vote of thanks by every one of us.

Coming back toward Lancaster, the first stop was made at Mr. Ranck's,

The next stop was at H. W. Denlinger's, where a fine lot of Alma Ward were in evidence, the dark weather making them closely resemble Prosperity.

The third stop was at the establishment of G. H. Landis, of Paradise. Here we saw an especially fine bench of Benora. Mr. Landis also had a bench of Lawson-Enchantress that he was proud of, and with good reason. He also grows freesias and white and yellow daisies for cut flowers, and had a few lupines, a curiosity to most of us. Outdoors he has a big lot of sweet peas and centaureas, and he grows gladioli by the millions, as well as a big lot of peonies.

The fourth and last stop was made at the two adjoining and interlocking establishments of Chas. B. and Elmer Weaver, their glass combined making the largest place in the county. Chas. B. grows sweet peas in his new 400-foot house exclusively, as well as in some others, and calendulas and mignonette in the balance, all of it good stock. Elmer is a carnation and tomato man. Here Carnation Comfort was in strong evidence and is well liked. He has discarded Enchantress for Pink Delight, of which he has a fine lot. He contemplates making White Wonder his exclusive white. He uses concrete benches for propagating and, as he is building some new ones, they must be satisfactory.

The next meeting, February 20, will be carnation night. Any one sending flowers should address them to H. A. Schroyer, Lancaster, Pa.

Albert M. Herr.

Des Moines, Ia.—The city council has authorized Councilman Zell G. Roe to prepare specifications for a new greenhouse to be erected at Union park.

La Porte, Ind.—The Kaber Co. will open a downtown store on Jefferson avenue, between Michigan and Indiana avenues. The stock will be supplied from the firm's greenhouses on Fox street.

GREEN CARNATIONS

Send 25c and receive by mail a package of dye that will color 75 to 100 carnations green. Have many letters stating it is best on market. 8 packages, 60c; $2.00 per dozen. 2c stamps accepted.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The market was in splendid condition all last week, but the demand was not any too brisk, as business, among the retailers, fell off considerably the first few days of Lent. For several days we had cold, sunless weather, but this did not seem to affect the supply, as there was plenty of stock to be had, at any of the wholesale houses. Shipping trade has increased considerably with this market.

Roses, while still somewhat scarce, are more plentiful than for some time and the price has dropped a little. Killarneys are of extra fine quality at present, also Richmonds, Brides and Maids. Beauties in all grades are coming in and are of a better quality. Carnations average good in all varieties, with the highest price at $3 per hundred. There is a splendid lot of Beacon, White Enchantress and Rose-pink Enchantress. Sweet peas are fine and abundant, with prices not any too high. Violets have been plentiful, with reduced prices, but prices for St. Valentine's day are from $10 per thousand for choice stock down to $3.50 for the common grade. Bulbous stock is just becoming plentiful and fine valley, freesias, Dutch hyacinths, jonquils, Von Sions, Paper Whites, tulips and lilies can be had in large lots, at low prices. Easter lilies and callas are in this market in fine shape.

Wholesalers are looking for some good business, especially for St. Valentine's day, with a great many orders booked ahead for both local and shipping.

Various Notes.

The following well known^a traveling men called on the trade during the week: E. J. Hall, of Wertheimer Bros., New York; Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co.; Arthur Zirkman, of M. Rice Co., and J. J. Karins, of H. A. Dreer's, all of Philadelphia. They all report a good business.

Vincent Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, has returned from a trip to New York, stopping on his way back at Detroit and Chicago. Mr. Gorly says he had a splendid time and bought a lot of supplies for their new store.

Oscar Kuehn, head of the wire department of the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., has made quite a reputation as an amateur photographer. He recently won the first prize offered by the Amateur Photographer Weekly, Cleveland, O., which he proudly displays to his many friends in the trade.

ing February 12 at the new home of Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Jr., on Watterman avenue.

The Florists' Club's publicity committee, Messrs. Windler, Beyer and Bergstermann, and the Retail Florists' Association's publicity committee, Messrs. Young, Bourdet and Geranios, held a joint meeting last week at Bergstermann's store on South Grand avenue. Plans for a lot of publicity, for St. Valentine's day and Easter, were made.

J. Dimant, a Greek from New York, who recently opened a flower stand at Sixth and St. Charles streets, has sold the place to D. Bova, a Union market florist, who will stock it up with fruit and cut flowers.

C. Young & Sons Co., the St. Louis Seed Co., the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co. and the Schisler Grain Co. are busy mailing out their spring catalogues. They are all prepared for a rushing business, which will soon be at hand.

Pilcher's Mazzura violet has been in great demand all season. The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., which handles the output, say orders for St. Valentine's day took all the prospective supply nearly a week ahead.

The Bourdet Floral Co., at Tower Grove and Magnolia avenues, has a fine assortment of bulbous stock. Mr. Bourdet says the demand for these has been good among the store men.

Suburban visitors were: H. Wensel, Geo. Hecht, W. J. Pilcher, J. F. Am-

Henry Baer, of Peoria, Ill., who is a big shipper to this market, spent February 10 in the city.

The Engelmann Botanical Club held its monthly meeting February 10, with a good attendance. The feature of the meeting was a paper by Dr. J. M. Greenman, on "Classification, With Reference to Herbarium and Garden Collections," and a paper by W. W. Oulweiler, on "Arrangement of Plants in the Missouri Botanical Garden." Carl Haltenhof, secretary, in his report says that the following gentlemen will lecture at future meetings up to June: Geo. T. Moore and Dr. B. M. Dugger, for March; Dr. G. R. Hill, J. R. tiful every day. Tulips are coming in quantities, but mostly short stems, and roses, which were somewhat off on account of the dark weather, are coming better in color. Killarney, which suffered most, is much improved. Marguerites are coming better and sweet peas are fine. Bulbous stock is getting better and is in big demand. Violets are plentiful. They have let down in price and will likely continue so for the balance of the season.

Social affairs have let up since Lent began, but the retail shops are busy with funeral work.

Various Notes.

Syracuse florists gathered in the Hiawatha room, of the Onondaga hotel, Sunday afternoon, February 9, and organized a Florists' and Gardeners' Club. The following were elected officers of the club: President, M. T. Keenan; vice-president, W. E. Day; secretary, T. J. Godvine; treasurer, D. J. Murphy. H. D. Mann is well pleased with business. He keeps cleaned up on stock.

Chester Harris will move from his Jefferson street store to the Bastable block on East Genesee street.

Miles Henckle is kept busy with funeral work.

The little Fairmount Flower Shop is well stocked with spring flowers.

The Baker Floral Co. has a fine crop of lilies, that will be ready for Easter.

George Friend, for some years employed in the park department, died suddenly, January 29, from heart disease, while potting plants in one of the city's greenhouses. He was a man of exceptional ability as a landscape gardener. Twenty years ago he was sent to this country by Dickson's, of Edinburgh, to lay out a large estate on Long Island. Afterwards he came to this city. His funeral was held privately, January 31. W. C. M.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. B. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE worst feature about seed peas is the high price of the kinds we need.

It looks as though there will be enough of most kinds of onion seed to go around this year, though probably this is not news.

THERE is a scarcity of many of the popular varieties of flower seeds; as common a kind as morning glory is hard to get in any fair sized quantity.

THE man who can submit the fine appearing sample seems to have all the best of it in seeds this year. Neither viability nor pedigree prevails against good looks.

THERE is a narrowness in the seed trade, according to some critics. This may be so, but the wideness of the circulation of the principal catalogues has a tendency to mitigate the offense.

THE canners' convention at Louisville this week is well attended by representatives of the canners' seedsmen. It is of interest to note in passing that some former seed salesmen are now good canners and some former canners are now, shall we say, poor seedsmen. Exchanges of this kind are of some benefit to both trades. It is hoped that each will see to it that the "farmer stocks" of seed peas are eliminated.

CAN a product be sold continuously at less than it costs to produce it? This is a question which some of the onion set handlers are trying to solve. It would seem safe to answer the question in the negative, but in meeting the requirements of the buyer for quality and the competition of some of the sellers for price this product actually goes out at below cost, and has so gone out for some time, according to some of the interested parties.

IN Congress February 7 Representative Cox, of Indiana, offered an amendment to eliminate the provision for the congressional free seed distribution from the agricultural appropriation bill. Discussion was deferred until February 11, when Mr. Cox and Representative Moss, of Indiana, led an unsuccessful fight for the adoption of the resolution. The vote to cut out the free seeds was 13 to 47 to retain them.

REPORTS in general show good business all along the line. The large wholesale seedsmen have all advance business well cared for and are in shape to push out the regular orders as they arrive. The market garden seedsmen report general orders coming in strong, but on some items a reduction in quantity compared with last year is noticed. The present market value on produce carried over winter is lower than normal. This has some effect in causing gardeners to reduce orders for onion and other varieties of seeds. A little life in the produce market later on will likely make them brace up, however. The mail order business is well up to normal, those who had their catalogues out early getting the best share of it. Onion sets are doing well, considering the many-sided conditions which always prevail in early February. On the whole the year promises well.

plants, and the provision contained in the act approved August 24, 1912, continuing said articles under the provisions fixed by Section 482 of the postal laws and regulations is hereby repealed."

In beans, Wardwell's and Davis' Wax seem to be about the shortest of any at present. All varieties, however, are quite short compared with last year and the outlook for good stock seed is not encouraging.

EDWARD WEBB, senior member of the prominent English seed firm, Edward Webb & Sons, of Stourbridge, died in Paris, France, January 21, in his sixty-ninth year. Mr. Webb did some important work in the improvement of garden and field seeds.

J. H. EVERETT & SON, for many years in the wholesale field seed business at 29 West Alabama street, Atlanta, Ga., have taken possession of the adjoining store, doubling their space to make room for the new business they have recently started under the name of the Everett Seed Co. The Everett Seed Co. will deal in garden and field seeds at wholesale and retail.

It looks as though those who wish seeds kept out of the parcel post will have a continual fight on their hands. The public does not understand the seedsmen's view and even the postmaster general has recommended that seeds be "let in." What the seedsmen wanted, when the law was under consideration, was to be permitted to stay out. Perhaps some of them now are changing their minds?

HOWARD NASH has purchased the interest of the Ransom family, being about eighty-six per cent of the stock, in the Champaign Seed Co., Champaign, Ill. The company has been established about two years and was incorporated last year with capital stock of $10,000. The company deals in farm seeds in a wholesale and retail way. The new management expects to increase the capital and conduct the business on an extensive scale. B. C. Henness, who has had charge of the concern for the last year, and who owns the balance of the stock in the company, will have the management. Mr. Nash has been elected president of the company, and Mr. Henness secretary. The company is located at 10 East University avenue, but will build a store and warehouse at the expiration of its lease.

THE ways and means committee, having devoted a month to hearings, is writing a new tariff bill to be introduced at the opening of the approaching extra session of Congress.

ONE surprise has been the scarcity that has developed in cow peas. There was an unusually large acreage in Tennessee last season and they produced a heavy crop of hay. Yet there has seldom been a season when the price was so high for the peas at this season, $2.25 to $2.35 at Nashville being received for all that are sold. It seems that the growers cut them all for hay, hence the shortage.

QUALITY

Our special strains have always been looked upon as better than the best of others, and the uniform good quality of our general stocks is one point which has been known and acknowledged throughout the trade at home and abroad for over half a century. We trade in high-class seeds only and recommend a trial of our stocks the next time you are on the market.

PRICES

Our prices, consistent with the high-class quality required by the trade, will be found very reasonable, as a careful comparison with those quoted by other reputable houses will show. The fact that every mail brings us new customers who admit it is to their advantage to trade with us proves this, and you can prove it for yourself if you will make comparison. We are prepared to meet reasonable competition if what we say is not correct.
